Jefferson City, Mo. June 9, 1900.

To the people of Jefferson City and State of Missouri:

In presenting this, our first volume of a series of Missouri County Sketch Books and Directories, we feel that the value and usefulness of our new field of work has in this book been fully demonstrated. We promise that no future edition shall fall below this one in any particular.

To the citizens of Jefferson City we here express our grateful thanks for their hearty co-operation, liberal patronage and generous support, which has enabled us to produce this valuable book. In this connection, however, we think it but right to claim that this volume will do more to advertise the great advantages and beauties of Jefferson City than any other agency employed before or since the memorable battle against the removal of the Permanent Seat of Government.

Our aim has been to reflect on the pages of this book the County and Capital City as they are today, that we have fallen short in many particulars and omitted much that should have a place in the volume is true, but to the advertiser we have given full value in every respect. We have associated their advertisements permanently with a class of matter which secures its frequent reading and at the same time gives prominence to the firms represented. To advertisers who may be our patrons in other counties and to those whose business is not confined within the limits of one county, we will cheerfully give any information desired in associating their names and business with the prominent and substantial interests of the counties for which we produce a Sketch Book and Directory. Our next edition will be an Illustrated Sketch Book and Directory of SEDALIA AND PETTIS COUNTY, which will include a complete directory of every city, town and village within the bounds of that rich and prosperous commonwealth. Although Jefferson City and Sedalia were rivals for the location of the Permanent Seat of Government, the fight is over, and their common purpose now is to place Missouri, which is the fifth in rank, at the head of the list of American States. We thank the press most cordially for their very courteous assistance.

Respectfully,

MISSOURI ILLUSTRATED SKETCH BOOK CO.

A BOOK OF ESSAYS FOR YOUNG AND OLD.

This popular work is intended to stimulate the youth of our country to more successful effort in fighting the battle of life; to develop the highest ideas of true manhood, and to imbue the mind with those sterling qualities so essential in building up a noble, energetic character. In the battle of life there is always room and demand for the well-equipped young man in every department of human activity, but there is no room for the incompetent or the irresponsible.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT THE BOOK.

Judge C. G. Burton, Nevada: "It is really what its name implies; gives proper trend to thought and direction for conduct. Exceedingly valuable to all who read it, especially so to the young man or woman just entering upon and into life's practical duties and responsibilities."

John C. Fetzner, Chicago, agent estate of C. H. McCormick: "I think no greater benefaction could be done than to place a bound copy in the library of every high school in the country, that the rising generations of young men may read and reread."

Rev. C. McPherson, Waxahachie, Texas: "The young man who reads this book will learn the truth, that it is strong, industrious, brave, earnest, faithful, real men for whom the world is always seeking."

Rev. A. B. Phillips, pastor Christian church, Fulton, Mo.: "The book is brimful of common sense and abounds in wholesome advice that every young man can read with profit and pleasure."

A prominent merchant of Louisiana: "I have read the book with great pleasure and profit. Send me fifty copies as I wish one for each of my fifty employees, of whom I shall retain only those who become familiar with its contents."

Mrs. L. P. Miller, Secretary Monarch Book Company, Chicago: "The chapter on 'Law of Life and Remuneration' is worth many times the price of the book."

Dr. N. Green, Lebanon, Tenn., the most prominent educator in the South: "Its sentiments are worthy to be engraved on the foreheads and in the palms of every young man."

The Western Economist, Des Moines, Ia.: "It should be in the inside pocket of every man, and can be read with profit once a week."

Rev. Cadesman Pope, Pres. Arkadelphia Methodist College, Arkadelphia, Ark.: "There is not a dull chapter in the book nor a foolish sentence on its pages."

Rev. W. J. Patrick, a prominent Baptist minister, Bowling Green, Mo.: "Coming from a business man and illustrated by facts drawn from active life, it will reach many unreached by more elaborate works."

A. D. Brown, President Hamilton-Brown Shoe Company, St. Louis: "I consider it worth a fortune to any young man to read the 'Guide Post' and travel in the direction it points."

Phil E. Chappell, Kansas City banker: "The sentiments expressed are wise and full of good, common, business sense, and it should be read by every young man who desires to make a success of life."

Rev. T. W. Lewis, pastor M. E. church, Grenada, Miss.: "Its lessons so thoroughly accord with my ideas I wish I could thunder them into the ears of every young man in the land."

"If America will read it, the tramp will disappear like the buffalo. It is fatal to idleness; its trend is happiness, and it ought to be in every home."

A. Sherwin Cody of the Chicago Record, Novelist, Poet and Scholar, says of it: "The Guide Post to Success" reads more like an ancient classic than the production of a modern business man; like the Bible, it deals with the essential things of life, and like the Bible also, it is expressed in simple, homely, direct English, as if it were written for all time and all places. When we can get the life experience of a thoughtful, earnest, successful man bodied forth in absolutely natural language, we have literature that can justly be called great. There is nothing in it that does not have weight, and in a certain sense originality; and there is nothing in it that should not interest every human creature. Mr. Johnston, its author, has produced one short work of genuine greatness which probably sprang spontaneously from a warm heart and a rich experience."

Lester S. Parker, prominent shoe manufacturer, Jefferson City, Mo.: "No one can read 'The Guide Post to Success' without finding himself already well advanced along that highway, for success comes only after clear-cut plans, with activity and enthusiasm and everlasting force behind them. This book is truly a storehouse of both."

Hon. John L. Peak, Kansas City, ex-Minister to Switzerland: "The Guide Post to Success," by J. W. Johnston, should be the constant companion of every youth in the land."

Thomas B. Bryan, Chicago, Lawyer, Orator and Scholar: "It behooves aspirants for success to weigh well, and carefully heed just such sound advice as this essayist so emphatically presents."

Prof. J. M. Greenwood, superintendent public schools, Kansas City: "Every boy should carry it in his coat pocket and read from it every time he feels the least bit discouraged."

David B. Page of Browning, King & Co.: "No one can read this book without profit. But to him who reads it aright it will prove a most valuable aid to the achievement of business success, through the channel of honorable methods and personal integrity."

The Baptist Review, Little Rock: "The general reading of the 'Guide Post to Success' by the young people would be an incalculable blessing to the nation."

A. J. Brown, State Agent of Texas for the Fidelity Mutual Life of Philadelphia: "If read and heeded will prove the most valuable book ever given mankind."

A BOOK FOR EVERYBODY.

"The Guide Post to Success," which is now in its ninth edition, is a book that should be read often by preacher, lawyer, doctor, merchant, clerk, farmer, in fact everybody. It is the great book of the century. It costs 10c and is worth $5.00 to one who reads it. Kansas City, U. S. A.—Drovers' Daily Telegram.

 of Short-Order Work in This Line.

The following testimonials speak for themselves:

From Cole County Court, April 8, 1897.

Among other proceedings of the above Court an order was issued releasing from further responsibility in the matter of the new Court House, the contractor, Mr. H. J. Wallau, and added that the Court express complete satisfaction with the work done, and the thorough, conscientious and gentlemanly manner in which the contract was fulfilled. The Court, at the time, was composed of H. J. Dulle, Presiding Judge; T. M. Barker, Geo. Elston.

From the Department of Education, State of Missouri, July 3, 1896:

"Mr. H. J. Wallau was the contractor and builder of the new Lincoln Institute school building recently completed at a cost of about $35,000; his work was done on said building in a workman-like manner in every respect. We believe him to be an extremely careful and very conscientious gentleman in fulfilling all his obligations, and we hereby express our entire satisfaction with his work. "John R. Kirk, State Supt. Public Schools; B. B. Cahoon, J. F. Heinrichs, Geo. H. Green, Jesse W. Henry, Oscar G. Burch, J. W. Dickert, Board of Regents."

From Rev. O. J. S. Hoog, October 4, 1897:

"Mr. H. J. Wallau has erected St. Peter's Parochial school and hall, and also reconstructed the sanctuary and sacristies of our church to the entire satisfaction of both people and priests. He is ranked among the very best and most reliable builders in the State. I also know him to be a conscientious man."

From the Judges of the Gasconade County Court, Hermann, Mo., April 2, 1898:

"We, the undersigned, take pleasure in certifying that Mr. H. J. Wallau of Jefferson City, Mo., had the contract for the building of our new Court House at Hermann, Mo.; that he has completed said building according to contract, plans and specifications, in a workman-like manner, and to our entire satisfaction. We have found him to be just and fair in all his dealings, and can conscientiously recommend him to all persons desiring such services. "C. M. The Weekly St. Louis

GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

A Great Semi-Weekly Paper. Republican in Politics.

❁ ❁ ❁ $1.00 PER YEAR $1.00 ❁ ❁ ❁

Issued in Semi-Weekly Sections

Eight Pages each Tuesday and Friday.

AS A NEWSPAPER

The Weekly Globe-Democrat, issued in Semi-Weekly sections, is almost equal to a daily, at the price of a weekly. The two papers each week give the complete news of that week from all parts of the world, so selected and arranged as to preserve the thread of events from issue to issue. The preparation of the news in this form involves an immense amount of labor and expense, and comprises the most complete and comprehensive news service of any dollar-a-year publication in the United States, if not in the world.

AS A HOME JOURNAL

The Weekly Globe-Democrat is equally as pre-eminent. It is morally clean, and may be read without contamination by all the members of any family. It contains the very cream of current literature and the best pictorial illustrations. Its departments devoted to "The Home," "For Women," "Agricultural News," "The Farm, Garden and Dairy," are each of the highest grade, and its market reports are correct and complete in every detail.

IN A WORD

The Weekly Globe-Democrat is a complete newspaper, prepared and printed for intelligent and thoughtful people. We have confidence in its ability to speak for itself, and will cheerfully mail sample copy, free of charge, upon receipt of request. Address.....

THE GLOBE PRINTING CO., St. Louis, Mo.

THE DAILY GLOBE-DEMOCRAT is without a rival in all the West, and stands at the very front among the few really great newspapers of the world.

Daily, including Sunday—One year, $6.00; six months, $3.00; three months, $1.50.

Daily, without Sunday—One year, $4.00; six months, $2.00; three months, $1.00.

Sunday edition, 36 to 60 pages—One year, $2.00; six months, $1.00.

THE OLD RELIABLE

Missouri Volksfreund

Published Since February 9, 1876, by Albert Kroeger,

Is not the Cheapest nor the Largest,
But one of the BEST German Weeklies in the State. ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀

Office: VOLKSFREUND BUILDING on Madison Street, between High and McCarty Streets. ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀ ❀

The Volksfreund has been a most welcome guest for nearly a quarter of a century in hundreds of German families in the counties of Cole, Osage, Miller, Maries, etc.

An advertisement in the Volksfreund is a badge of reliability and fair dealing. This paper publishes no fake or snide advertisements, and tolerates nothing objectionable in its columns. An all home-print paper.

The Sheldon Enterprise.

A paper that covers its field, south Vernon and north Barton Counties, completely. The subscription price is reasonable—$1.00 per year—and it clubs with Any Paper Anywhere at less than the publisher's price. As

AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

It is unrivaled. Being the only paper printed and, to a large extent, the only paper circulated in its particular field, it brings large returns to the advertiser. [Advertising rates are low, particularly on yearly contracts, and

LIVER TONIC

Is a scientific combination of Sanative Agents, that has been used in an extensive practice about THIRTY YEARS, and probably no other medicine is so well known in Nevada and Vernon County. Its effect is not miraculous. It simply acts in harmony with the laws of nature. It is SAFE. It is RELIABLE, and is what every family needs to protect them from MALARIA and TYPHOID FEVER. Observe your neighbors who use this medicine, and ask them their opinion of its merits.

DR. CHURCHELL'S REMEDIES FOR CROUP AND DIPHTHERIA

Have been extensively used about twenty-five years, with unparalled success, and hundreds of families keep them ready for immediate use, their experience and observation convincing them that no other remedies can so safely be relied on.

These medicines are sent by express to patrons in twenty States and three Territories.

HOME OF SILVER SIMMONS,

21,656,

(Race Record, 2:16 1-4.)

Sired by Simmons Boy, 17 517; he by Simmons, 2:28; he by Geo. Wilkes, 2:22.

Dam—Hattie Cromwell, by Harrison Chief, 3:41.

Dam of J. H. L., 2:08½ and Indelible Ink (2):2:22½.

SILVER SIMMONS, 2:16½, is a beautiful black horse, 16 hands high, weighing 1,200 pounds, of powerful build, coupled with phenomenal agility of limb—an assured producer of trotters. He is an exceedingly handsome horse, with fine style and splendid action. In his 3-year-old form he was unbeaten in the harness ring at Paris, Mt. Sterling and Lexington, Kentucky; winning over aged horses with records. He has trotted a mile in 2:12¼; half mile in 1:03¾.

EAGOLYTE, 29,215, best son of Onward in Missouri. Sired by Onward; he by Geo. Wilkes; he by Hambletonian, 10.

First dam, Betsy Baker, 2:30; by Dictator 113—dam of three in 2:30 list.

Second dam, Mother Hubbard, by Toronto—dam of three in 2:30 list.

Eagolyte is a dark brown horse, very powerfully made, of fine muscle, good style and weighs about 1,150 pounds.

OUR AIM in presenting to the public these two pure bred trotters has been to secure stallions of individual excellence, animals of good size and color, stylish, and of the best producing family in the world, with kind dispositions and game to the end, so that those who patronize us, if they fail to get trotters, will be sure to obtain colts which will make game and stylish roadsters—horses that are always in good demand.

TERMS: $15 at time of service; $25 to insure living colt.

We also have a number of MARES by ONWARD, FREE COINAGE, NORVAL (2:14¾) and SILVER SIMMONS, out of dams with such sires as ROBERT MCGREGOR, CUYLER, GEORGE WILKES, ONWARD and GAMBETTA WILKES. All of these are of the celebrated Wilkes family, the largest and greatest of any blooded horses in the world, having nearly 4,000 in the 2:30 list, and of these one-third are in the 2:20 list. With such blood in them these mares are naturally of fine style and conformation, and clearly demonstrate their close proximity, in point of pedigree, to that illustrious fountain-head, Hambletonian 10.

We also have a number of fine Electioneer COLTS by Norval, sired by Stanford's old Electioneer.

OUR HERD OF SHORTHORNS

Is headed by the famous Cruikshank Bull, ST. PATRICK. This bull is of the finest breed in the country. He is sired by the great Cruikshank Bull, Ambassador, formerly owned by W. P. Harned, of Bunceon, Mo., and sold fall of '96 for $600.

A Glimpse of a Few of the Furnished Cottages of the

South Haven, Mich.

South Haven, the most delightful summer resort on the Great Lakes, is located on the east shore of Lake Michigan, a village of about 4,000, cultured and moral people, who have been drawn there by the delightful surroundings and to enjoy the refreshing breezes which are cooled by the fresh water of the Great Lake, and invigorated by bathing in the sparkling element. It is only a few hours from the city of Chicago and is connected by magnificent steamers running night and day, the expense of the round trip being only $1.00. 'Tis here is located the famous AVERY BEACH HOTEL. The furnished cottages of the Monroe Park Cottage Co., of which they have about forty, are equipped with every modern convenience, electric light, hot and cold water, bath and perfect sewerage. A stay there during the heated months, relieved of the worry of business (while not expensive) as the delicious fruits of the great state of Michigan are at hand at a nominal price, makes new men and women who return home refreshed with new life.

For further information in regard to this famous resort, noted for its glorious beach, safe bathing, good boating and fishing on lake and river, its peach and general fruit orchards, its berries, its magnificent steamers arriving twice daily from Chicago, write to the Monroe Park Cottage company. L. S. Monroe, president and treasurer; L. BeCraft, secretary and manager, South Haven, Mich. Directors: L. S. Monroe, L. BeCraft, South Haven, Mich., and L. S. Parker, Jefferson City, either of whom will gladly furnish any desired information.

COTTEY COLLEGE,

NEVADA, MISSOURI.

A PROSPEROUS AND GROWING INSTITUTION FOR YOUNG LADIES AND MISSES.

Is beautifully located in the western part of the enterprising city of Nevada, and is accessible to all parts of the country by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, and Missouri Pacific railways. The earnest and faithful work done by the teachers and students of the Institution is already widely known throughout the States, while its Christian character, splendid discipline and progressive spirit commend it to the consideration of all who have daughters and wards to educate.

THE COLLEGE DEPARTMENT

Offers three regular courses of study: The English or Normal course, for the completion of which a certificate is given. The regular Collegiate Course, embracing Mathematics, Natural Science, Languages, Literature, Psychology, Ethics and Christian Evidences, and leading to the degree of M. S., the post-graduate, leading to the degree of M. A.

THE PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT

Is under the supervision of a careful and painstaking teacher, and, besides the thorough Preparatory Course, also embraces a regular system of Kindergarten Work.

THE BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Offers a thorough, practical, business education, embracing Short Hand, Type Writing, Arithmetic, Book Keeping and Penmanship.

THE ART DEPARTMENT

Furnishes superior instruction in all the various branches of Art and Decorative Work, and is under the control of an experienced teacher.

THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT

Is superior in every respect. In charge of splendidly trained, competent teachers. It affords fine facilities for Piano and Organ playing, Voice Culture, Chorus Singing, Theory and Harmony.

ELOCUTION AND PHYSICAL CULTURE

Is taught by an able and experienced teacher, and includes the Delsarte system of instruction. The large and well furnished gymnasium affords ample facilities for the development of graceful motion, easy carriage and soundness of body.

THE SEWING DEPARTMENT

Is an important feature. In this is taught all the varieties of Plain Sewing, including Hemming, Felling, Seaming, Darning and Button Holes.

THE CULINARY DEPARTMENT

Furnishes instructions in Bread Making, Cake Making and Salads; also Hints on Plain and Fancy Cooking.

THE G. H. DULLE MILLING CO.....

For nearly half a century the name "Dulle" has been familiarly associated with what is best in flour. In 1838 G. H. Dulle located in Jefferson City where he engaged in first in the manufacture of brick, and later in the business of the dairy. In 1854, he built on the ground (near where now stands the best equipped and most substantial milling property in central Missouri), a small mill which was ample to meet the requirements of that day, but with the growing business it was enlarged from time to time, to almost its present proportions. It was, however, destroyed by fire, in 1896, when it was replaced by the present model, modern, substantial and virtually fire-proof structure, containing the very latest and best in the wonderful improvements made in milling machinery within the last half century. The sterling qualities of the founder of this plant, Mr. G. H. Dulle, and his exceptional capacity as an honest, thorough and substantial business man, resulted in his being frequently called upon to serve the county in an official capacity, a duty which he always performed in a manner most credible to himself and satisfactory to those who had thus honored him. At his death, 1885, the G. H. Dulle Milling Company was organized and incorporated, the officers being Henry J. Dulle, President; Bernard Dulle, Vice-President, and J. W. Schulte, Secretary and Business Manager. Mr. J. W. Schulte, to whom the very great success of this mill is largely due, is a step-son of Mr. G. H. Dulle, and has been since reaching his majority, continually in the mill and largely the manager, a duty devolving on him in consequence of the frequent absence of Mr. G. H. Dulle, when engaged in his official duties. The President, Mr. Henry J. Dulle, has been honored by the county with several positions, having recently retired from the office of presiding judge of the court. He is now President of the First National Bank, one of the largest and most prosperous financial concerns in Jefferson City. The capacity of the Dulle Milling Company is 500 barrels of flour per day; the leading brands are "Dulle Patent," "Capital Star" and "Baker's Delight," all of which have an established reputation, covering several states, and the merit of which has been attested by a number of prize medals, where exhibited in competition with the products of the leading mills of the world; the most recent being at the Exposition at Omaha. The immense product of this mill is sold throughout a number of states, and is shipped to several foreign countries. The grain necessary to supply the demand of this mill is drawn largely from the wheat-growing district of central Missouri, an area which is recognized as the best for the production of winter wheat in the United States. It can be seen without the suggestion of a figure that in the employment of labor and the purchase of grain, the G. H. Dulle Milling Company has dispensed more money, by far, than any other manufacturing concern in Central Missouri. It is certainly one of the most substantial elements entering into the progress of Jefferson City, and Cole county. An idea of the Dulle Milling structure may be drawn from the picture above, the building in the rear being an elevator with a capacity of 50,000 bushels.

THE H. BOCKRATH SHOE COMPANY.

In the United States, in no manufacturing, has there been such marked progress as in the making of shoes. This is a line of goods in which the United States excels the world and the products of her shoe factories are sold in all countries, where there is a people sufficiently prosperous to buy the best. The work of the village shoemaker is now almost entirely one of repairing; in fact, with the facilities for manufacturing, buying in large quantities, raw material and the use of greatly improved machinery, the manufacturer now sells a shoe complete for less money than the country shoemaker can buy in a small way the raw material. The headquarters of this great manufacturing interest has of late years been leaving New England, Missouri now being one of the leading manufacturing states of artistic and substantial footwear. At an early date one manufacturer made a general line of boots and shoes for men, women and children, but the growing and sharp competition has forced a more thorough division of labor, which gives to the manufacturer of a specialty the advantage of using skilled labor only on the class of work in which it is most proficient, enabling them to turn out a finer and better class of work and at lower prices than is possible by the maker of a general line. The H. Bockrath Shoe Company of Jefferson City was organized May 1st, 1896, incorporating with a capital stock of $22,000.00. The first stockholders, who were also directors, were H. Bockrath, Geo. A. Bockrath, J. W. Schulte, G. H. Schulte and F. Loeffler. The officers being H. Bockrath, President; J. W. Schulte, Vice-President; Geo. A. Bockrath, Secretary and Treasurer, and F. Loeffler. In May, '96, they commenced the manufacture of a special line of ladies', misses', children's, boys', youths' and little gent's shoes, in a building 25 by 110 feet on Stuart Street, selling their product direct to the retail merchants. Their working force, the first year, numbered about 40 people. By the employment of efficient and intelligent salesmen, who were able to get the attention of the best dealers, they introduced their goods rapidly, the substantial character and low price of which was appreciated by the merchants when compared with eastern makes, and as a result their trade has gradually increased, until now they employ a force of 150, their manufacturing space being enlarged to 110 by 198 feet on the ground floor, and in addition, a space on the second floor, 40 by 110 feet. The factory on the corner of Stuart and Water streets is equipped with the latest improved machinery and every department is under the supervision of an expert; as a result, no factory in the United States turns out more artistic or substantial shoes than the H. Bockrath Shoe Co., or at more favorable prices to the shoe merchant. In November, '98, the capital stock was increased to $42,000. E. Holtschneider and D. M. Noonan becoming stockholders, and added to the directory. Mr. Noonan is also foreman of the packing department. The employees in this factory are largely from the ranks of the home people, and have become very efficient in the work. The Bockrath shoes are now sold and recognized as leading standards in all directions within a radius of several hundred miles. The President, Mr. Bockrath, is an old merchant, who came to Jefferson City from Florissant, St. Louis county, seventeen years ago, and until recently retired, was one of the leading general merchants of the Capital City. Geo. A. Bockrath, the Secretary and Treasurer, who looks largely after the management, is a sterling young business man with the executive ability necessary to manage this large and prosperous manufacturing plant, the most important in Jefferson City, outside the prison walls. The success of the Bockrath Shoe Company and the popularity of their artistic and substantial products are largely due to the practical management in the manufacturing department of Mr. F. Loeffler, who is superintendent and manager of the factory.

Above is a view of a few of the cottages of the Monroe Park Cottage Company. For those who wish to enjoy a summer outing where all the surroundings are conducive to the highest order of innocent sports and recreation, there is no more inviting resort on the American Continent than South Haven, Mich., a village of about 4,000 cultured people who strive for the highest in life. No saloons, billiard halls or bowling alleys and none of the fakirs or rough element frequently found at popular summer resorts. In addition to the fine surf bathing within a few steps of the cottages, there is splendid boating, fishing and elegant drives. In the midst of the famous fruit growing section, the price of supplies for the table are reasonable, the expense of the average family during the summer months being but little more than at home, the rental of the furnished cottages which are supplied with every convenience, is low. Within a few hours' ride by elegant steamers (which run night and day), of Chicago. The expense of the round trip, $1.00. For further information write to the

St. Francis Academy and Orphan's Home

DESCRIPTION.

This academy and orphan home is in charge of the Sisters of St. Francis and offers a good opportunity to all who can afford to spend but a moderate sum to get their children or wards educated. It is located on an eminence overlooking the city, and enjoys all the benefits nature can bestow—pure air, pure water and beautiful scenery.

TERMS.

The terms are moderate, viz.: $5.00 per month for orphans, and $9.00 per month for those who wish to enter as boarders of the Academy.

CARE BESTOWED UPON PUPILS.

During the time the pupils are at the Academy, the Sisters watch over their well-being with the greatest care, and endeavor to train the minds and hearts of their charges to the noblest aims in life.

COURSE OF STUDIES.

The course includes, in the first place, all the branches taught in the Grammar Schools. Pupils who, on entering the Academy, can pass a satisfactory examination in the Grammar School studies, will find the Sisters competent to teach, in addition to the above, Algebra, Rhetoric, Etymology, General History, Natural History, Literature, Physics, Physical Geography, Botany, Book Keeping, Business Forms, German and French.

OTHER USEFUL PURSUITS.

Aside from literary pursuits the pupil may also take lessons in Music, Painting and Needlework of all kinds, specialties being made of the latter two pursuits.

Burch-Berendzen Grocer Company.

The Burch-Berendzen Grocer Co., wholesale and retail grocers 304 E. High street, Jefferson City, Mo., was organized and incorporated November 15, 1895, under the laws of Missouri, the original incorporators being O. E. Burch, Henry Berendzen, W. H. Gundelinger, Fred Yost and J. P. Mason, the latter three of whom have since disposed of their stock, a portion of which was purchased by Fred Bohn, who is now President, Henry Berendzen Vice-President, and O. E. Burch Secretary and Treasurer. They do both a wholesale and retail business, handling in addition to a full line of groceries, a large stock of queensware and glassware. Doing an exclusively cash business in both buying and selling and purchasing direct from the original source of supply enables them to secure the low rates made to the largest jobbers, this being one of the secrets of their ability to make such exceedingly favorable prices to their customers, and build up such a large and prosperous business in a few years. They occupy their own magnificent building, a cut of which heads this article, and although the corporation has only been in existence five years the stock is now worth nearly 100 per cent. above par, a result of the intelligent, well directed efforts of the officers and close attention to business.

The R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Company.

IN the commercial world the most prominent branch of business is that of dry goods. In the productions of the artists and manufacturers in this line more skill is exercised and more expense entailed in preparing material that will please the eye of the feminine portion of mankind than in any other. An observer may glance at a thousand well-gowned women and will rarely find two dressed alike; that is, who have frocks, hats and wraps of the same combination of colors and fabrics. When we contemplate how much this great variety of tention to business, places them distinctly at the head of the list. In Jefferson City this place must be conceded to the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Company, whose spacious and well-appointed dry goods emporium is on East High street. The store is modern in all its appointments; heated by is the largest and most complete. The volume of business being greater than that of any dry goods house between St. Louis and Kansas City, a fact largely due to the very low prices they are enabled to make through the advantage of buying and selling for cash. Many of their purchases are direct from the manufacturer, brought for spot cash and in such quantities as to enable them to get the lowest prices obtainable. All the members of this firm give their close and personal attention to the business. Of the officials,

J. L. BECK, Vice-President.

hot water; lighted by electricity and gas; counters, shelves and furniture of polished oak, while in the two main aisles of the main floor (which is 40x150 feet) everything is arranged not only to properly display the stock, but to expedite business. The stock embraces everything in the line of dry goods, notions, cloaks, wraps and ready-to-wear ladies' garments. In addition a large and complete line of carpets, the designs and colors of which are the most perfect produced by the looms of America (which are, in the production of carpets, the leaders of the world). The building occupied by this firm (the property of the president, R. Dallmeyer), is the best appointed dry goods store in Central Missouri, and the stock carried by them the president, Mr. Rudolph Dallmeyer, is conceded to be one of the best dry goods merchants in the state, while the vice-president, Mr. J. L. Beck, in addition to his natural capacity brings to the firm a large experience in the same business. The secretary, Frank Dallmeyer, is a young man of exceptional habits and the best business training. They employ to assist them nine experienced and efficient clerks.

beauty has taxed the brain of the artist, designer and manufacturer we can gather some idea of the talent, ingenuity and industry exercised in order to gratify the varied tastes of the shoppers of America. The dry goods trade has developed more prominent merchants than any other line of business. In most cities and towns there are men whose natural tact, keen practical sense; fine judgment and close at-

The Central Hotel.

Of the many hostleries open for the entertainment of guests in the Capital City, the Central Hotel, of which Mr. J. A. Huegel is the Proprietor, is unquestionably at the head of the list. Mr. Huegel leased the property, which he now owns, on the corner of Jefferson and High streets, January 1, 1874, and continued to run the hotel as a tenant until 1885, when he purchased the property. The business, under his able and popular management, continued to grow until 1899, when it reached a proportion demanding larger and more commodious quarters, which determined him to enlarge and modernize the building, and as a result he has the most elegantly appointed and best arranged hotel in Central Missouri. The building is extended to four full stories and a basement, the exterior of which presents an imposing and symmetrical appearance, while the interior arrangement embodies in elegance and comfort everything necessary to gratify the most fastidious taste. The entire building is brilliantly illuminated with electric lights, a perfect system of call bells, elegant bath tubs and sanitary arrangements second to no hotel in the country. The main floor is finished throughout in highly polished oak. All the rooms are nicely decorated and arranged, the floors being covered with lovely carpets, fresh from the loom of the weaver. His dining room in the basement is large and well arranged, while on his table is found at all times the best the market affords, prepared by experienced cooks. Of the luxuries furnished his guests, are parlors on both the first and second floors. The appointments of the building throughout are most convenient and comfortable, meeting the demands of the most exacting. Mr. Huegel is to be congratulated on his good management and prosperity, evidenced by this monument, which is, indeed, a credit to the city.

OUR RAILROADS.

Next to the press, the most important factor effecting the material and intellectual progress of a civilized people is the railroad. Though comparatively new, there being many now living in Cole county who were well grown before the first railroad was built in the United States, they have introduced themselves so rapidly and we have become so accustomed to the many advantages afforded by them, we do not realize how much they contribute to our comfort and convenience. Without the railroad, the daily paper could not exist. It is the element which enables our postal system to be the grandest and most efficient organization of public utility on earth. Without them the misfortunes which befall communities through fire, pestilence or famine would result in great suffering; communities, which fail to produce crops on account of unfavorable seasons, would feel the pangs of hunger. The immense deposits of coal and mineral, which underlie a large portion of the interior of the United States, would remain in their natural beds, useless to mankind. The delicious fruits of California would decay in the orchard. The great wheat fields of the Northwest would cease to bloom and supply a golden harvest as there would be no return to the producer. The railroads regulate supply and demand, taking the surplus of one community to those in need. They equalize prices as water find its level. To them we are indebted largely for the wonderful advancement in civilization and education of the last half of the Nineteenth century. Through them the people of the United States are all neighbors, not only having the privilege of general social intercourse, but the advantages of the exchange of ideas in personal contact with people from all parts, thus affording the educational advantages of a cosmopolitan life. The railroads represent the largest business interests of the world. By them an army of skilled labor is employed and better salaries are paid as a whole than in any other industry. Their management requires the ablest financiers. The magnitude of the capital invested in these great vehicles of progress in this country alone being sufficient to stagger one who attempts to grapple with its enormity. Jefferson City has the advantages of three great railroad systems—two of which, the C. & A. and the M., K. & T., have no mileage within Cole county, their depots being in North Jefferson across the river, which is now spanned by a magnificent steel bridge.

MISSOURI PACIFIC STATION, JEFFERSON CITY.

The Missouri Pacific, however, has a large mileage within Cole county, the main line running its entire length from east to west, the Lebanon branch of that system going through the southwest part of the county. Of the Missouri Pacific railroad it is difficult to refer in a review without connecting the article with the late great Napoleon of finance, Jay Gould. There are many well posted people of the state who have some idea of the immense value the operations of Jay Gould were during his lifetime to the great Commonwealth of Missouri. He took hold of the Missouri Pacific when it was bankrupt, and developed it into one of the most important railroad systems of the entire country. Its value in building up not only the country through which it passes, but the two great commercial and manufacturing cities of Missouri—St. Louis and Kansas City—is simply beyond compute. It has brought each of these trade centers into close touch with the fine agricultural and live stock districts of Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, the cotton fields of Arkansas and Texas, the mineral districts of southwest Missouri, and the untold wealth which is brought to the surface annually in that great producer of precious metals, Colorado. In addition to this great system, his genius had much to do with bringing to its present high standard the Wabash system both east and west of the Mississippi. His far seeing and fertile brain coupled with his wonderful executive ability, was the principle element in developing the Western Union Telegraph system to its now wonderful efficiency. Mr. Gould was superior to Napoleon in that he did not let the dazzling splendors of wealth and power debauch his modest and virtuous manhood. To facilitate the great enterprises conceived by his fertile mind he associated with him the most practical and brainiest men to be found. The friendship and interest taken in Jefferson City by the Missouri Pacific is evidenced by the magnificent new depot (a cut of which heads this article) which they have recently provided for the comfort and convenience of the citizens of, and visitors to, the capital. That this railroad has always been ready and prompt in response to requests for special rates and other favors necessary to facilitate and promote the selection of the capital city for public gatherings, conventions, etc., is well known, and as a result, it enjoys and deservedly, the warm friendship and support of the people of Jefferson City and Cole county.

THE SCIENCE OF ADVERTISING.

Comparatively few men, taken as a whole, realize the importance of advertising and how much its study and judicious application effects their prosperity. The human mind is guided and controlled by influences which are properly brought to bear just as sure as the apple when detached from the twig of the tree is carried by the force of gravity to the earth. Counter influence may effect or stop the downfall of some of the apples, so in the work of advertising in its effect on the human mind it may be turned aside by counter influences. The value of an advertisement depends much on the tact, skill and force of its presentation. The most effective way is by personal work, presenting intelligently a title to patronage in person, using that means which the Creator in his wisdom gave to us to convey our thoughts and wishes to each other—the human voice. This, however, is most expensive. A manufacturer or merchant of New York may send a representative to San Francisco at a cost in expense and salary of $500 and to see it may be only one customer. A regular salesman may make trips to all parts of the country during the year calling on perhaps 100 customers or less. Salesmen who visit only the larger buyers command a salary of at least $6,000 a year, to which is to be added the expense of traveling, etc., about $3,000, making the work of this salesman cost in one year $9,000. The manufacturer or merchant could have printed the words used by his salesman, express himself with greater care and reach the buyers, through the mails at an expense of $50, saving apparently $8,950, but his loss in trade through the activity of competitors, who recognize the importance of certain work being done in person, would likely reach many thousands more. There are various ways of advertising: newspapers, magazines, personal work, letters and many other means and so much to be accomplished by it, it is reduced to a science that requires a most thorough study. Advertising reaches out and affects the business world more than any other element which enters into its progress. The farmer, seeing the advertisement of an article in a newspaper, little thinks the advertisement in many cases reduce the cost to him more than half. By this means the manufacturer can increase his output to such an extent that he goes to the original source of supply for material obtaining the lowest price in his purchase, the enlarged business, carrying with it a corresponding reduction, in the cost of making and selling the finished product. By judicious advertising, the manufacturer, in many cases, is enabled to sell articles on account of the large output, at five cents, which produced in a limited way would cost $1. Through this means the cost of almost every article of general use which contributes to the comfort and well being of mankind, is reduced to a minimum and the quality greatly improved. To illustrate, the railroads will carry you in a moving palace with every comfort of the well regulated home from New York to San Francisco, at a cost of less than $100, while the expense of running these trains, if they did not advertise and secure a large number of passengers, would bankrupt a millionaire in a few months. We see the advertisements of the railroads in every publication, in pamphlets, signs, the employment of artists, the most talented writers and an army of brainy men, whose whole duty is to travel and talk in the interest of the road they represent; so it is with great merchants. Mr. Wanamaker, the largest retail merchant in the world, was on the verge of failure a few years ago, but by judicious advertising he has made himself a many times millionaire. With his immense stocks of goods in Philadelphia and New York, if he were to stop his advertisements he could dispense with three-fourths of his employes in a few months, and within a few years would most likely go to the wall. He employs one man to write advertisements at a salary of $15,000 a year. Arbuckle Bros., who are the largest importers and dealers in coffee in the world, were running a grocery store in Pittsburg where they began to roast coffee in a small way for their retail trade. By judicious advertising they have increased their business and fortune to their present gigantic proportions. James Pyle, the manufacturer of Pearline, which we find in every grocery store and in almost every home, a few years ago, had only a small business and little capital, but a keen insight into the value of advertising, he owes his present immense fortune and large business almost wholly to this means. He recently paid over $4,000 for a page advertisement, one issue, in a popular magazine. Robert Bonner, the late millionaire, publisher of the New York Ledger, fifty years ago, had no means, and was working in a newspaper office at $50 a year and board. Just before his death he stated that for many years he expended virtually, in advertising, all his earnings, and to this practice was indebted almost wholly for his great fortune. The manufacturers of aniline dyes, the many and varied colors of which, at a nominal cost, add so much to the artificial beauty now extant, owe their present immense business to judicious and liberal advertising.

The presidents and managers of the colleges, those who teach in the higher paths of education, are of late years showing evidence of their appreciation and recognition of the value of this art. We now find colleges of recognized merit, and prominence largely advertised and to a close student of practical life, this is the best evidence they can give of their qualifications to impart to the receptive minds placed in their charge, the practical knowledge necessary to enable them to play their part well and credibly on the stage of life. Another effect of advertising is the increased patronage thus secured, stimulates the advertiser to render the best service and value possible, thus increasing his friends and business.

Of the many means to be used in advertising, all have some value, but aside from personal work, the most potent is the columns of a well conducted newspaper, yet of the millions of newspapers published in the United States daily, within 48 hours after their publication, the number in existence is only a few thousand, while an advertisement in a book which contains valuable information of frequent use in which our interest is not only for the day, but lasting, is valuable for the reason that such books take a permanent place in the homes of the people. In addition, the influence of an advertisement on the reader is effected largely by its association. An advertisement associated in a publication, with matter which the reader feels should be preserved, has a stronger influence than when associated with transitory matter, which is read at a glance with no attempt to give it a permanent place in the memory.

A. Heim, The Clothier.

Abraham Heim, the popular and leading clothier of Jefferson City, was born in Bavaria, Germany, July 3, 1842, where he was reared and educated. In 1860 he immigrated to America, stopping first at Mansfield, Ohio, where he engaged as salesman in a clothing store, continuing about ten years. In 1870 he came to Jefferson City, and the following three years was salesman for Sachs & Wolferman, when he went to Germany visiting the Vienna exposition. On returning he opened business on his own account in the City Hotel building. Here he continued to do a prosperous and growing business ten years, when, finding his increasing trade demanded more commodious quarters to accommodate the enlarged stock needed he purchased the store he now occupies, one of the most valuable business properties in the city, corner High and Madison. Mr. Heim is blessed with good health, a genial disposition and a well-balanced mind, all of which, coupled with a rich experience with some of the best clothing merchants of Ohio and Missouri, he has used diligently in building up a trade of which he may be justly proud. He is now well and favorably known to almost every family in the county. Occupying his own store and buying for cash in large quantities from first hands, he is able to give his customers better values than less favored merchants.

John F. Heinrichs, who is familiarly known to every one in Cole and surrounding counties as the "Furniture King," was born in Cologne, Germany, November 30, 1848, from which place his parents immigrated to Jefferson City when he was four years of age. The subject of this sketch was reared and educated in Jefferson City, attending public schools, later Wyman's University of St. Louis and St. John's Commercial College. On his return to Jefferson City, after completing his commercial education, he assisted his father, who was engaged in the business of furniture and undertaking. He was later associated in the business of which he became the owner in 1879, when the location was on the corner of Jefferson and Main streets; from there he removed to one of the store rooms under Bragg Hall, corner Monroe and High streets, and to his present location, 207-9 East Main, in 1897. He was united in marriage May 13, 1873, to Miss Mildred (daughter of the late Judge Milo Blair of Boonville, a prominent man of the State). To this union has been born six children, four boys and two girls, one of each died in infancy. Milo, Charley, Claud and Agnes are at home. Agnes, the youngest child, is a musical prodigy, whose wonderful performance on the piano, for one of her age, has attracted much attention and been a subject of frequent reference in the papers and magazines. Mr. Heinrichs is a member of the Catholic church, K. of P., The Elks, L. O. H. and A. O. U. W. In politics he is a Democrat. He is at present a Regent of Lincoln Institute, and was twelve years a member of the city school board; and appeals for charity always find a response in his generous heart. It may be truly said of him that the title by which he is known, the "Furniture King" of Cole county, is most appropriate, as he carries in his spacious store on East Main, a stock of everything in the line of furniture and undertaking. His large business attests his popularity as a man, and the low prices he makes on his merchandise. His comfortable home, with his very interesting family, is 324 East Main.

H. Wyman, Clothier and Gent's Furnisher.

Shakespeare, the greatest writer of any age, when he gave to the world, more than 300 years ago, the sad and tragic story of the Prince of Denmark, made Polonius, the chief counselor of the King, give to his son, Laertes some wise and wholesome advice, on the eve of his departure for France. Among many good things he said:

"Above all things, to thine own self be true,
And it must follow, as the night the day,
Thou canst not then be false to any man.

Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy,
But not expressed in fancy;
Rich, not gaudy,
For the apparel oft proclaims the man."

This is as true to day as when written by Shakesp ar three centuries ago. Dr. Samuel Johnson, in his "Tale of the Tailors," says, "Clothing is the dividing line between man and beast;" while the great philosopher, Herbert Spencer, says, "The object of education is to qualify ourselves to properly house, clothe and feed the body."

In the memory of many people now living, it was only the favored few, who were the envy of the neighboring boys, that could afford to wear store clothes. The clothing business, in the outside towns especially, was confined to a small bunch of coats and pants, a very minor part of the varied stock of the general merchant. But today we note in this important branch of commerce as great evidence of the progress of the age as in any other industry. The business has assumed its own place in the commercial world, the stocks carried by prominent clothing merchants requiring more capital invested and skill in conducting the business than any other line, and in that field are now the largest and best merchants of the progressive cities throughout the country.

These changes have developed, as all other lines in their advancement, men whose business qualifications, close and thorough application, enable them to outstrip less favored competitors; as the large amount of goods used by such men, coupled with the capital with which to purchase, makes them sought after by the leading manufacturers, and, as a result, the advantages they enjoy over ordinary competitors are brought about by the incidentals attending a large and prosperous business all along the line, from the time the raw material leaves the hand of nature, until the perfect and artistic garment is finished, ready to adorn the person of man.

Of this class of merchants, Harry Wyman, of the Golden Eagle, stands at the head of the list in Jefferson City. He was born September 14, 1867, in Cleveland, Ohio, where in his early youth, he attended school. At the age of 11 he entered his father's grocery store and assistant manager of the entire business, in which important position he continued four years. He then removed to Humbolt, Kansas, taking charge of a department store for his brother, from which place, after three years, he went to Arkansas City, Kansas, where he held a similar position five year with a Kansas City house. Removing to Pratt, Kansas, he engaged in business on his own account, having two rooms, one of which he devoted to groceries, the other to clothing and gent's furnishing goods. Here he did a prosperous business six years, when he removed to Tipton, Mo., engaging in the clothing business exclusively, from which place he removed to Jefferson City, in 1897, and opened the Golden Eagle One Price store. Soon after Mr. Gus Hirschland associated with him and continued as his partner until January, 1900, when they disposed of their joint interest, Mr. Wyman leasing the store for five years and having it remodeled throughout, utilizing every modern convenience and making it one of the most complete clothing stores in the city. In this splendid building he occupies two floors the upper being devoted to boy's and youth's clothing and furnishings; the lower to men's goods, which includes the latest and best from the manufacturers of New York and Chicago. Mr. Wyman was married in Humbolt, Kansas, January, 1885, to Miss Maggie C. Neely of that city, (who had recently removed from Neelyville, Ill.), where her father was prominently engaged in coal mining, owning the large mines operated there; the town being named in his honor. To this union has been born two children: Arthur, a bright lad 14 years of age, assists in his father's store; Barbara Middelmarsh, an interesting girl of six, is a pupil at the private school of Miss Epps. His home is 319 Monroe street. Mr. Wyman is a naturally bright and active merchant who has had a wide and varied experience in the commercial world, an experience which he uses most successfully in

continued as a clerk three years, when he went to Chicago, where he was employed by his brother in a large department store as clerk until the age of 16, when he was made floor walker. In this position he continued five years when he entered the employ of the late E. J. Lehman, owner of the "Fair," one of the largest and most prosperous concerns of the kind in the world. Here he was the conducting his large and constantly growing business. His stock embraces everything in the line of men's, boy's and youth's clothing and gent's furnishing goods, hats, trunks, valises, e.c. By doing a strictly cash business, his low prices, in connection with his large stock draws trade for many miles in every direction in response to his wide awake and judicious advertising.

The Sieling Dry Goods Company.

The Sieling Dry Goods company, successors to the Sieling-Brenneisen Dry Goods company (the members of which are H. W. Sieling, president and treasurer; Arthur Sieling, vice president, and Miss Ida Grieshammer, secretary), although the youngest dry goods house in the capital city, occupies a front rank among her leading merchants, and is known over this and adjoining counties as the strictly up-to-date dry goods house of the capital city. The president, H. W. Sieling, has been in the city since 1896, where he came with a fine experience and knowledge of the dry goods business gathered from ten years active work with the great wholesale dry goods house of Hargadine-McKitterick company, of St. Louis, and to which has been added the result of his association with the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods company two years, followed by two years as president of the Sieling-Brenneisen Dry Goods company, which the present corporation succeeded in February, 1900. In addition to the advantages of the experienced and popular president, they enjoy the benefits of a resident buyer in St. Louis, in the person of the vice president, Mr. Arthur Sieling, a thorough dry goods man of long experience, while the secretary, Miss Ida Grieshammer, has been actively in the dry goods business of this city a number of years.

This firm occupies two floors of the spacious building, 227 Madison street, devoting the entire space exclusively to up-to-date dry goods, of which they carry one of the best selected and most complete stocks in the state. Buying and selling for cash, they are able to make such advantageous prices to their customers that they are at once building up a large and prosperous business. In addition to dry goods, one of the special features of this great emporium is their tailoring department, which is taxed to its fullest capacity to supply the demands of the ladies who require the highest in art, design and manufacture of suits and skirts. This department is in charge of Mrs. H. W. Sieling, who is blessed with a talent and taste for work of this kind, and to which she has added, by the close observation of her bright, receptive mind, the advanced ideas of the leading establishments of this class in America. So satisfactory has been the productions of this department that many who were ordering gowns from the most prominent ladies' tailors of the United States, are now placing their orders for up-to-date tailor-made suits and skirts with this popular house. The Sieling Dry Goods company carry a finely selected stock of exclusive dry goods of from $25,000 to $30,000. In their advantageous connection and experience with the large dry goods houses with which they have been so long associated, they are able to secure in their purchases, all the advantages obtainable, and selling for cash exclusively, they are able to give the benefit of these advantages to their many customers, whose appreciation is demonstrated by their liberal patronage. In addition to the president, secretary and Mrs. Sieling, all of whom give their close personal attention to the business, they have eight efficient and experienced assistants.

OMENA RESORT.

Summer Resorts.

The most charming and desirable spot in the invigorating lake region to build a summer cottage. Omena is located on a high point of native forest, threaded with beautiful woodland drives and shady walks extending one mile into the beautiful Grand Traverse Bay.

There are now many handsome cottages erected here. Two fine hotels for the accommodation of tourists and guests, an abundance of fine fishing, protected harbor for boating, pure air and invigorating climate. The temperature here is delightful even upon the hottest days in midsummer.

❧ CHOICE BUILDING LOTS FOR SALE AT ❧
❧ TAGES TO RENT FOR THE SEASON. ❧

Omena is accessible by all the large lake boat lines and by rail to Traverse City. For full particulars, plat of grounds and illustrated resort book, address

B. G. Vieth.

Bernard G. Vieth is a native of Jefferson City, where he was born September 21, 1857. His education was at St. Peter's Parochial School. In early manhood he learned the trade of brick making with B. H. Pohl, in which business he continued ten years, after which he worked at the cooper's trade for the Dulle Milling Co. six years, from here taking a position with William W. Wagner of the Monroe House, with whom he continued five years, after which, in partnership with C. J. Miller, (at present proprietor of the City Hotel) he was engaged for three years in conducting the City Hotel, when he disposed of his interest and purchased the Madison Hotel in 1896. This building he has greatly improved, adding new carpets, electric light, steam heat, bath and all the modern conveniences and is now enlarging the same with an addition on East Main street of five stories, 64x33 feet, which will be modern in every respect throughout.

Mr. Vieth was married in 1892 to Miss Lizzie Tihen, of Jefferson City, to which union has been born one girl, Angeline, now seven years of age. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood and all his undertakings have been attended with uniform success, and as he has been active, has reached a position of unusual prominence and importance for one of his age in the Capital City; his hotel being the largest, most popular, complete and best managed between St. Louis and Kansas City. It is not only headquarters for the politicians of the State of both parties when in the Capital City, but also of the commercial men, at whose disposal are the finest sample rooms in the State.

He is a member of St. Peter's church, of the Elks, a charter member of the Commercial Club and one of its active workers. He was one of the most efficient workers in opposition to the Capital removal, and a generous contributor to the expenses of that campaign; a member of the bridge building committee and a large contributor to its construction, one of the most important and valuable improvements added to Jefferson City within the last quarter of a century. Mr. Vieth is a character of unusual interest, he possessing the financial ability to run this large and popular hostelry in a way to produce financial profit, at the same time gaining and retaining a popular place in the esteem of the traveling public.

The National Bank of Commerce

OF KANSAS CITY, MO.

Which occupies its own palatial home had its start under the modest name of the Kansas City Savings Association, in 1865, with capital stock of $100,000. In 1882 the name was changed to the Bank of Commerce, the stock being increased to $200,000, and in 1887 the capital stock was increased to $1,000,000 under its present name,

The National Bank of Commerce.

During its entire existence it has been signal fortunate in its management; so much so that during its more than a third of a century of history it has passed through all the financial storms that have occurred during that period, unshaken by the tempestuous seas, as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar, never closing its doors once nor asking one single favor for extension, and it is now conceded to be one of the most solid and ably managed financial institutions in the State, its only rival for first place being the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis.

The deposits of the Bank are now over $19,500,000, while its daily clearings are more than $800,000.

It enjoys the entire confidence of the Banks of Missouri and the Southwest, and is the Kansas City correspondent of a large number of them.

Dr. W. S. Woods, the President, is one of the great financiers of this decade, possessing a combination of prudence, decision and boldness rarely found in men engaged in banking.

Repairing and Engraving.

WATCH WORK.

Watch repairing is the most important branch of my business. My eighteen years' experience in making and repairing Time Pieces by hand (not in factory by machine), and my two years' association with the most renowned horological students of Europe have given me a great advantage in this work.
Our guarantee is guilt edge. Ask us for a written guarantee when you pay us for watch repairs.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

By Its Association With the New York World.

By this combination of resources the POST-DISPATCH is enabled to give to its readers not only the latest happenings from all parts of the globe, but to present a magazine service, which is unequalled by any other paper on earth, an evidence of which is most apparent in the rapid strides by which the POST-DISPATCH has forged to the front under the phenominal management of Mr. Pulitzer. The merits of this paper have won for it a larger bona-fide circulation—Sunday or Daily—than any other newspaper west of the Mississippi River, and larger in the city of St. Louis and its suburbs than any two morning or evening newspapers combined.      ❧      ❧      ❧      ❧

A. Nowman, The Tailor.

A. Nowman, the popular tailor at 133 East High street, Jefferson City, was born March 2, 1869, in Lattenburg, Poland. He received his education in the public schools and in his father's dry goods store as clerk until 14 years of age, when he came to America, stopping in Brooklyn, N. Y., remaining seventeen months, learning the business of tailor. From Brooklyn he went to Leadville, Colo., where he worked at his trade as journeyman tailor five months, after which he engaged in the business on his own account, continuing four years, when he sold out and traveled through all the western states, working at his trade in the leading cities. In St. Louis he remained fourteen months, when, in 1895, he came to Jefferson City and accepted a position with the Star Clothing Company as foreman, which he held three months, when he opened a tailor shop in the Lartonoix building on High street. Later (1899) he moved to his present place. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and of the Modern Woodmen of America. Mr. Nowman was married in November, 1895, to Miss Alice, daughter of J. W. King, a prominent farmer of Callaway county, Mo.

Mr. Nowman is the leading tailor of the Capital City. His productions represent the latest fashion plates. His fine work and low prices have drawn to him a large trade, requiring at all times a number of assistants. His home is 516 East High street.

Much interest centers in the subject of this sketch, from the fact that he is president and founder of the Jesse French Piano and Organ Co., one of the largest concerns of its kind in America, with distributing points in many of the large cities.

He started out in life as newsboy, printers devil, clerk, accountant, then assistant secretary of the State of Tennessee, commencing his business career acres of land with water power and natural gas, where they make the famous Starr, Jesse French and Richmond Pianos. This is the second largest piano factory in America, and they expect this year to turn out six thousand pianos.

Mr. French is only fifty-four years of age, and gives the business the same careful supervision as ever. He has three sons, John, Horace and Jesse, jr. The former was for some years secretary and in 1872, in a small way, in the sheet music business in Nashville, Tenn., in which he was very successful. In 1876 he entered the piano business, which presented a larger field of operation; putting the same energy and discretion in this, as others, he won the same success until he is now at the head of this mammoth institution.

His business extended to all points of the compass, and some years ago he removed from Nashville, Tenn., to St. Louis, as a more suitable place for the headquarters of such a vast enterprise. Foreseeing the necessity of manufacturing high grade pianos to supply their ever increasing trade, the stockholders bought one of the most desirable plants in the United States, embracing thirty-five treasurer, but recently branched out in the manufacture of Automobiles, and is now president of the St. Louis Motor Carriage Co., the leading institution of its kind in America; Horace, his second son, succeeded him as secretary and treasurer of the Jesse French Co., and is also secretary and treasurer of the St. Louis Motor Carriage Co., and proves a valuable help to both concerns, while Jesse, jr., is acknowledged to be an all-round piano man, "a worthy son of a noble sire." One secret of Mr. French's success is that he has won the confidence of the public by his courteous and fair dealing; so that customers run no risk in dealing with their company. They make nothing but what they can sell on honor and full guarantee.

THE CITY OF JEFFERSON.

By an act of Congress, approved March 6, 1820, or the admission of Missouri Territory into the Union as a State, four sections of land were granted by the Federal Government to the State for the purpose of locating their seat of government thereon. The Constitution of Missouri provided that no place should be selected for the Permanent Seat of Government which was not situated on the banks of the Missouri River and within forty miles of the mouth of the Osage. At the first session of the Legislature held in Missouri, after its admission as a State, an act was passed fixing the Permanent Seat of Government, and in the same act the Legislature accepted, for the use and benefit of the State, the four sections of land selected by the Commissioners,

Among other wise provisions was a reservation for a park surrounding the Capitol Building and Governor's Mansion. It seems, with their limited opportunities for observation, almost a miracle that the committee for the selection of the location of the Permanent Seat of Government should have selected the most beautiful and by nature the most perfectly adapted spot in the State. This is true, however, as will be attested by all who have observed its beauties as compared with any other place of equal size in Missouri. The City of Jefferson is incomparably the most beautiful town in the State. In charms of natural location, modified, not altered, by man, it stands without a rival in the United States. It is built on lovely hills at whose

the act also stating that on the aforesaid sections a town should be laid out, and the lots sold in such manner as should be prescribed by law. This act was approved December 31, 1821. By an act of the General Assembly, approved January 1, 1822, the town was to be laid out in at least one thousand lots, and the principal streets should not be less than one hundred feet wide; the other streets not less than eighty. On the first Monday in May, 1823, said lots were to be sold on the premises to the highest bidder, except such as would be reserved for public use. This act also stated that the town should be laid out as the Permanent Seat of Government, and should be called the "City of Jefferson."

base surges one of the largest and longest rivers on the Continent. From the head-waters of the Missouri River to where the Mississippi empties into the Gulf of Mexico, it is the longest river in the world. There is no more enchanting view than one from any part of the Capital City, of the endless landscape of green surroundings, when viewed in connection with the turbulent waters of the Missouri. The glorious handiwork of God in nature has no greater attraction than the surroundings that are found in the City of Jefferson, which sets on a crown of hills overlooking this great waterway with a landscape whose shades of color are too delicate and varied to be depicted on the can-

Charles Czarlinsky, Clothier.

Charles Czarlinsky, Manager and Secretary of the Globe Mercantile Company, was born in Prussia, October 20, 1850. When eighteen years of age he immigrated to America, coming to Jefferson City. Later, after traveling over a considerable portion of the country, selling clothing on his own account, he settled in Jefferson City in 1888, where he became Manager of the clothing store of J. Siegfried, under the name of The Globe Shoe and Clothing Store, where he remained about ten years, when, with others, he organized the Globe Mercantile Company. March 3, 1899, with a capital stock of $10,000, he being made Secretary and Manager of the company, which has in a short space of time built up a large trade in clothing and gents' furnishing goods. Mr. Czarlinsky was united in marriage in March, 1897, to Miss Minnie Davidson, of St. Louis, who is the mother of his bright boy, Solomon, now aged two years. He is a member of the M. W. A. and the I. O. O. F. lodges of Jefferson City, and also a member of the Hebrew church. He takes an active interest in the Commercial Club, his genial disposition doing much to make the social gatherings of the Club most pleasant. Mr. Czarlinsky has had a large and varied experience, which he is using judiciously in building up a well merited business in this important branch of trade in the Capital City. On May 1, 1900, he purchased a controlling interest in the corporation. His home is No. 107 East Miller street.

A. H. Hatch, Oph't D.

Dr. Alonzo Hurbert Hatch, the optician and watch-maker at 132 East High street, Jefferson City, Mo., was born April 12, 1852, in Brookfield, Vt., his early education being in Norwich Seminary, at Montpelier, Vt. He left school on account of the death of his father, September 23, 1863, and went to Quebec, Canada, to learn the business of watch-maker. Here he served an apprenticeship under Tubel Holmes, one of the leading watchmakers of America, with whom he remained four years. In 1869 he went to the Waltham (Mass.) Watch Factory, where he remained until August, 1872, when he began business on his own account in Fairbury, Ill., in partnership with L. C. Morris, where the firm continued to do a prosperous business as watchmakers and dealers in jewelry until 1875, when he took a special course in optical instruction under Dr. Williamson of Cincinnati, Ohio. In 1875 he took a second course in this science under J. W. Edmonson of Indianapolis, Ind. During the time of his receiving instruction in the optical science he continued his business at Fairbury. In March, 1875, a destructive fire consumed his stock at Fairbury, a total loss, after which he engaged in business in Gibson City, Ill., from which place, after one year, he removed to Windsor, Ill., where he continued 14 years to do a successful jewelry and optical business. During this time he took two courses in the optical science under the celebrated opticians, Drs. Prince of Springfield, Ill., and Holmes of Chicago. In 1890 he disposed of his business at Windsor, and for one year traveled for the Peoria Optical Company as refractor; resigning this position he went to Mt. Carmel, Ill., where he engaged successfully in the practice of his profession until October, 1895, when he removed to Jefferson City, accepting a position with A. Guyot where he continued two years, when he opened his present business at 132 East High street.

Dr. Hatch was united in marriage March 1, 1876, to Miss Julia Carny of Gibson City, Ill. To this union have been born two daughters: Alice is the wife of Mr. Earl Blood of Texarkana, Texas where he has a position with the K. C. P. & G. Railroad; Miss Gertrude Jasmin is at home. Dr. Hatch has been a member of the I. O. O. F. and the K. of P. for more than a quarter of a century, in which organization he has occupied all the official positions in the lodges of Illinois, where he has been so long a member. He has also been for 14 years a member of the M. W. A., and is at present clerk of the local camp No. 2304. He has all his life taken a deep interest in the optical science, and as a result, with his large experience, he is today, one of the best equipped men to serve those with unfortunate defects in that most delicate organ of the body (the eye) in the State of Missouri. His close, intelligent and skillful attention to the important science of properly treating the eye with glasses rather than drugs is meeting with merited success in the Capital City, where he enjoys a large and growing business and is a most worthy citizen.

The Jefferson City Base Ball Club was organized in 1896 by Henry F. Priesmeyer. Associated with him were W. A. Dallmeyer and E. J. Miller. The club of 1896 defeated all the crack teams of Missouri, and were called the "Amateur Champions of Missouri." The above management continued to handle the team until the Summer of 1899, when the franchise was purchased by H. W. Sieling and George Stampfli, who continued in the management for several months when Mr. Stampfli disposed of his interest to Mr. Sieling, he taking full control of the team. The above picture was taken late in the season of 1899. During last year's season the team was the strongest since its organization, Mr. Sieling having secured the best talent obtainable.

Charles Dewey, now of the Press Printing Co., was Captain of the team the greater part of the season of 1899, when he resigned, and the captainship was tendered to Lee Garvin, who finished the season as such. In 1899 the team made a circuit of the States of Missouri and Illinois, defeating every club they came in contact with except the Alton Blues of Alton, Ill., who won the series. The club had three pitchers, Messrs. Popp, Coleman and Maupin, and each had enviable records; the back-stop work was performed by Capt. Lee Garvin and Wilcox. The other positions were filled by excellent ball players. The club, as a whole, was a splendid advertisement for Jefferson City. The club has not been reorganized at date for the season of 1900.

T. G. Burkhardt, Jeweler.

Theodore G. Burkhardt, the popular jeweler of the Capital City, is a son of G. A. Burkhardt, a prominent merchant of California, Mo., where he has been in business since 1857, and in addition to his mercantile interests, is now President of the Farmers' and Traders' Bank of that place, where the subject of this sketch was born, March 9, 1867. He remained at the place of his birth, attending the schools of that town until 14 years of age, when he went to Belleville, Ill., where, the following two and one-half years, he was with Roodiger Bros., manufacturers of jewelry. From here, in 1884, he went to St. Louis, where he was with Frank Yeager, manufacturer of jewelry, two years, during which time he attended, at night, Bryant & Stratton's Business College. Leaving this position to further qualify himself in the business of his choice, he went to Europe, remaining two years in Glashutte, Germany, where he not only learned to manufacture the tools necessary to conduct the business, but while there he made with his own hands, two watches, one of which is a chronometer now in his possession, and one of the most perfect timepieces that can be produced. Returning from Europe, in 1888, he spent one year in Chicago with one of the prominent jewelers on State street. In 1889 he went to St. Paul, where he worked at his business until the summer of 1890 when he removed to Jefferson City, and opened a jewelry store October 7, 1890, in the City Hotel building, from which place he removed to his present store in the Realty Building in 1898. He was united in marriage, November 17, 1897, to Frances, daughter of Capt. W. T. Summers, a prominent live stock man of Centralia, Boone county, Mo. Mr. Burkhardt is a member of the Evangelical Central church; is a member of the A. F. & A. M., K. of P. and the M. W. A., also of the Commercial Club. With his charming and accomplished wife he makes his home with Mrs. Woodrum, 419 East High street. Few men of his age are better equipped for the pains-taking work of a jeweler than is Mr. Burkhardt. In addition to his large and thorough experience both in America and Europe, he has a natural taste for the business in which he has all his life taken a deep interest. His store is a model in every respect and contains the most complete and best selected stock of jewelry in Central Missouri, and as a result of his close and thorough attention to business, he now enjoys, and deservedly, a large and growing trade.

THE BANKS OF JEFFERSON CITY.

Nothing reflects so much the substantial and permanent growth of a city as her banking institutions. Their beneficial effect permeates every venue of trade, and stimulates and aids its advancement. They are the means of putting into the active channels of commerce a large volume of currency that would otherwise be hoarded or lie idle. Their aggregation of wealth is a magnet which influences greatly the location of the best class of business and professional men. They encourage thrift, and, being the avenue of exchange between their city and the outside world, including the neighboring communities and villages, the whole of the commerce virtually passes through their doors.

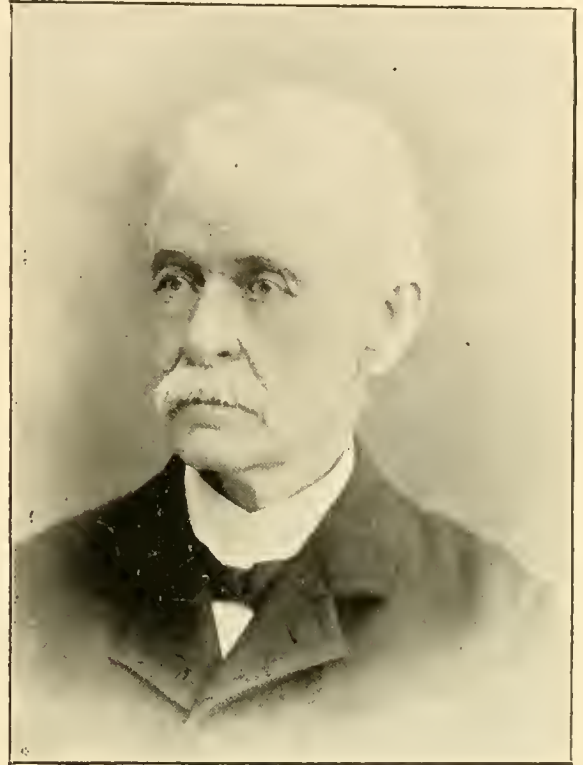

The reasons of the influence and importance of these great factors in permanent progress are many. One of them, they are organized and managed, as a rule, by men whose industry, foresight and prudence exercised in other pursuits has enabled them to accumulate wealth, thus establishing their ability as financiers, which must be associated with a reputation for integrity and probity, carrying with it the full confidence of the people, to successfully conduct a banking business.

The City of Jefferson is signally fortunate in her three banking institutions. They are ably managed, solid and substantial, and reflect in their financial reports the prosperity and progress of the city.

THE EXCHANGE BANK.

The Exchange Bank of Jefferson City was first organized February 15, 1864, as the Jefferson City Savings Association, with a capital stock of $9,000, the stockholders of which were William E. Dunscombe, P. T. Miller, Chris. Wagner, H. Clay Ewing and Joseph Obermayer. William E. Dunscombe was made President and P. T. Miller, Cashier, both of whom are now deceased. January 30, 1869, the capital stock was increased to $50,000, continuing to do business in the same name until September 23, 1872, when it was organized under the national banking system under the title of the National Exchange Bank of Jefferson City. The stockholders were Phil. E. Chappel, J. L. Smith, H. Clay Ewing, Chris. Wagner, Joseph Obermayer, Green C. Berry, P. T. Miller, George Wagner and William C. Rickey, who were the first Board of Directors, the officers being H. Clay Ewing, President; Chris. Wagner, Vice-President; Phil. E. Chappel, Cashier; Nick E.

Miller, Assistant Cashier. On May 8, 1879, the stockholders decided to retire from the national banking system and reorganized under the State banking system of Missouri. As a result on that day the Exchange Bank of Jefferson City was organized with a capital stock of $22,700, the shareholders being Phil. E. Chappel, J. L. Smith, H. Clay Ewing, Chris. Wagner, Henry W. Ewing and Nick Grieshammer. Phil. E. Chappel was elected President with Nick E. Miller, Cashier. August 10, 1882, W. Q. Dallmeyer, who had been Cashier of the First National Bank, became a stockholder and was made a director of the Exchange Bank, at which time J. L. Smith was made President, and he (W. Q. Dallmeyer) Cashier. At this time W. A. Dallmeyer, son of W. Q. Dallmeyer, entered the bank as bookkeeper, later made teller, and having purchased the stock of J. L. Smith and Phil. E. Chappel, who removed to Kansas City, Mo., he was, on July 5, 1887, made Assistant Cashier, which position he at present occupies. The officers of the bank are Gen. H. Clay Ewing, President; W. Q. It now has a surplus fund and undivided profits of more than double its capital stock, while its deposits are nearly half a million dollars.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

A reliable barometer of a city is her banking institutions. When they have stood unshaken through the fluctuations of half a century they are regarded as substantial and conservative. The First National Bank of Jefferson City was established in January, 1871, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States authorizing Messrs. N. C. Burch and W. Q. Dallmeyer to organize a National Bank in Jefferson City, with a capital stock of $75,000.

The Capital City Bank (organized 1867) entered into negotiations with Messrs. Burch and Dallmeyer, by which its capital stock was increased to $75,000, and was converted into "The First National Bank of Jefferson City." A full charter was granted (April 8, 1871), with J. S. Fleming, President; John G. Schott Vice-President, and W. C. Boone, Cashier. They continued as officers until 1874, when W. Q. Dallmeyer was elected Cashier, (Vice Boone) continuing until August, 1882, when he resigned and was succeeded by H. C. Lambert, who, two years later, was succeeded by Oscar G. Burch (1884). A. M. Davison succeeded J. S. Fleming (Jan. 1875) as President, continuing five years (1880) when Maj. J. M. Clarke was elected, serving until 1888. In January, 1889, W. C. Young assumed the responsibilities of this office, retiring (1891) when J. W. Henry was elected, continuing until 1900, when Henry J. Dulle was elected. Mr. John G. Schott continued Vice-President of the organization until the day of his death (1894), when his place was taken by Geo. Wagner, upon whose death (1895) Dr. R. E. Young was chosen Vice-President, and remains such today. Mr. Emil Schott, Assistant Cashier, has been with the bank since a youth and has occupied his present position since January, 1895. In July, 1879, the capital stock was reduced to $50,000. With the

THE MERCHANTS' BANK.

The Merchants' Bank of Jefferson City was organized and incorporated under the laws of Missouri, March 21, 1889, with a capital stock of $25,000, but did not open for business until its building was completed. In the meantime the capital stock had been increased to $50,000. On December 2, 1889, the doors of the bank were opened for business with the following officers: Maj. J. M. Clarke, President; Hon. EQUAL TAXATION LEAGUE.

The Equal Taxation League of Jefferson City, Mo., was organized April 12, 1898. On motion of Chas. Opel, Rev. J. P. Pinkerton was elected Temporary Chairman and A. J. Menteer, Temporary Secretary. The following committee was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws: Chas. Opel, J. E. McHenry, H. J. Tettmer, J. Goldman and H. F. Sarman. At the meeting on April 26, 1898, the committee appointed for the purpose reported the following permanent officers for the ensuing year:

President, Rev. J. P. Pinkerton; Vice-President, H. J. Tettmer; Secretary, A. J. Menteer; Treasurer, H. F. Sarman.

The present officers are: Rev. J. P. Pinkerton, President; J. E. McHenry, Vice-President; B. Goldman, Secretary; H. F. Sarman, Treasurer, who were elected June 6, 1899.

ing been honored with the Presidency of the Missouri Single Tax League, which organization has, since the beginning of this year, been actively engaged in pushing the work throughout the State on the question of direct legislation, otherwise known as the Initiative and Referendum. Single Taxers have always advocated and worked for the idea of governmental control of public utilities as may be seen by referring to their public declarations and platforms.

We herewith copy the Single Tax League platform, with notes, which expresses the ideas which they advocate on the social and economic problems more clearly than we are able to do with our limited opportunities for investigation:

SINGLE TAX PLATFORM.

The single tax contemplates the abolition of all taxes upon labor or the products of labor—that is to say, the abolition of all taxes save one tax levied on the value of land, irrespective of improvements.

Since in all our States we now levy some tax on the value of land, the single tax can be instituted by the simple and easy way of abolishing, one after another, all other taxes now levied, and commensurately increasing the tax on land values, until we draw upon that one source for all expenses of government; the revenue being divided between local governments, State governments, and the general government, as the revenue from direct taxes is now divided between the local and State governments, or a direct assessment being made by the general government upon the States, and paid by them from revenues collected in this manner.

The single tax is not a tax on land, and therefore would not fall on the use of land and become a tax on labor.

It is a tax, not on land, but on the value of land. Thus it would not fall on all land, but only on valuable land, and on that not in proportion to the use made of it, but in proportion to its value—the premium which the user of land must pay to the owner, either in purchase money or in rent, for permission to use valuable land. It would thus be a tax, not on the use or improvement of land, but on the ownership of land, taking what would otherwise go to the owner as owner and not as user.

In assessments under the single tax all values created by individual use or improvement would be excluded, and the only value taken into consideration would be the value attaching to the bare land by reason of neighborhood, etc. Thus the farmer would have no more taxes to pay than the speculator who held a similar piece of land idle, and the man who on a city lot erected a valuable building would be taxed no more than the man who held a similar lot vacant.

The single tax, in short, would call upon men to contribute to the public revenues not in proportion to what they produce or accumulate, but in proportion to the value of the natural opportunities they hold. It would compel them to pay just as much for holding land idle as for putting it to its fullest use.

The single tax, therefore, would—

1. Take the weight of taxation off the agricultural districts where land has little or no value irrespective of improvements, and put it in towns and cities, where bare land rises to a value of millions of dollars per acre.

2. Dispense with a multiplicity of taxes and a horde of taxgatherers, simplify government and greatly reduce its cost.

3. Do away with the fraud, corruption and gross inequality inseparable from our present methods of taxation, which allow the rich to escape while they grind the poor. Land cannot be hid or carried off, and its value can be ascertained with greater ease and certainty than any other.

4. It would, on the other hand, by taking for public uses that value which attaches to land by reason of the growth and improvement of the community, make the holding of land unprofitable to the mere owner, and profitable only to the user. It would thus make it impossible for speculators and monopolists to hold natural opportunities unused or only half used, and would throw open to labor the illimitable field of employment which the earth offers to man. It would thus solve the labor problem, do away with involuntary poverty, raise wages in all occupations to the full earnings of labor, make overproduction impossible until all human wants are satisfied, render labor-saving inventions a blessing to all, and cause such an enormous production and such an equitable distribution of wealth as would give to all comfort, leisure and participation in the advantages of an advancing civilization.

The ethical principles on which the single tax is based are:

1. Each man is entitled to all that his labor produces. Therefore, no tax should be levied on the products of labor.

2. All men are equally entitled to what God has created and to what is gained by the general growth and improvement of the community of which they are a part. Therefore, no one should be permitted to hold natural opportunities without a fair return to all for any special privilege thus accorded to him, and that value which the growth and improvement of the community attaches to land should be taken for the use of the community.

HENRY GEORGE.

Henry George, the great political economist and the ablest writer on social problems the world has produced, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., September 2, 1839. He was a son of a publisher of Protestant Episcopal church books. He received his early education in the public schools of Philadelphia. His first work was in a queensware store, from which, after one year, when 14 years of age, he made a trip to New York, London, Melbourne, Calcutta and back again to New York as a cabin boy, the voyage covering fourteen months. At the earnest wish of his father he learned the printer's trade, the confinement, however, being distasteful to him he shipped as an ordinary seaman on a coasting vessel bound for Boston. In 1858, he was drawn by the reports of the discovery of gold in British Columbia, and shipped before the mast on a vessel bound for the Pacific Coast. He worked his way to the gold regions on the Frazer River, where his hopes of securing the precious metal were not realized. He returned to Victoria, B. C.; soon took steerage passage to San Francisco, Cal., which place he reached in 1859, penniless. After suffering extreme poverty here he went to Sacramento, where he found employment in a printing office. But from this place he was soon tempted by the stories of the great wealth of gold mines, to the interior of the State, a trip that again resulted in disappointment. Returning to San Francisco he was for sometime a compositor in a newspaper office. In 1860, he established, with others, a newspaper called the Journal, which he discontinued on account of the difficulty of obtaining news from the East. He later opened a job printing office in San Francisco. This venture proved unprofitable. When the attempt was made to establish an empire in Mexico under Maximilian, he joined an expedition and intended to aid the Mexicans, but was prevented from sailing by the United States forces. He now began writing for different newspapers under an assumed name. His identity was discovered, however, by the editor of the San Francisco Times, on which he accepted an editorial place, and subsequently became managing editor. He was later engaged with the San Francisco Chronicle, Herald and Oakland Recorder. While on the last-named paper his opposition to corporations and monopolies led the Central Pacific Railroad Co. to buy a controlling interest in the paper and make a change in the editorship. In 1871 he published a pamphlet under the title of "Our Land and Land Policy, National and State," which had a limited sale. The following year he was delegate to the convention that nominated Horace Greeley for President. He later established the San Francisco Evening Post, a venture which resulted in the loss of his accumulations. He was then appointed Inspector of Gas Meters in San Francisco, a position which yielded him a fair salary and left sufficient leisure for literary work. In 1879 he completed his book, "Progress and Poverty," of which a few copies were printed privately in San Francisco. He removed to New York, in 1880, where, after one year, with great difficulty, he secured the publication of the book in that city and London. Going to Ireland, in 1881, he wrote up the land question for several American newspapers, during which time he delivered a series of lectures in England. He also lectured in Scotland, on the invitation of the Scottish Land Restoration League. The result of his observations while in England and Scotland was the "Irish Land Question," "Social Problems," and "Protection and Free Trade." On his return to the United States he was a candidate of the Union Labor Party for the office of Mayor of New York, but was declared defeated, but always believed and claimed he was elected. In 1887 he established the "Standard," and with Dr. McGlynn organized the Anti-Poverty Society, in whose interest they both lectured extensively. He was an unsuccessful candidate for Secretary of State of New York, in 1887. In 1889 he visited England, and in 1890 made a lecturing tour in Australia. He died in New York, October 29, 1897, in the midst of the campaign for the mayoralty of Greater New York, for which office he was a candidate. More than 30,000 persons viewed his remains while lying in state in the Grand Central Palace. His work "Progress and Poverty" was published in French, German, Spanish, Italian, Dutch, Swedish, Russian, Japanese and Chinese languages. His pamphlet on "The Condition of Labor," "An Open Letter to Pope Leo XIII," and the "Perplexed Philosopher," were among the greatest productions of this remarkable man. His latest production was entitled "The Science of Political Economy," which was published in 1898. Mr. George was blessed with an observing analytical mind to which was added the severe experiences which can only be secured through a fight for existence in a battle with poverty. He is unquestionably the greatest writer on social problems the world has produced. It is on the great truths discovered and developed by this great mind that the Equal Taxation League bases the objects of its existence.

THE MISSOURI STATE PENITENTIARY.

The Missouri State Penitentiary, located at Jefferson City, is the largest single institution of the kind in the United States. It occupies fifteen acres within the prison walls with accommodation for 3,000 hospital. In close proximity, as shown by the accompanying view, is a brick yard and stone quarry with an inexhaustible bank of fine building sand, all of which material is used in the construction of prisoners. There is a farm of 48 acres adjoining on the East, where are raised by the labor of convicts, vegetables for the institution and pasturage for the cows which furnish the milk and butter for the buildings of the institution, enabling them to erect the same at a minimum cost. The State has two large pastures where the State's mules are pastured; also a cemetery for deceased

onvicts. Within these walls are operated ve shoe factories with an aggregate output of ,000 pairs of shoes daily; the saddle tree factory s one of the largest in the world. There is also manufactured within the walls brooms and working men's clothing. Through the contract labor system the institution is made self-sustaining and the prisoners receive the benefit of the wholesome exercise of a busy, useful life, and to this fact is largely due the excellent physical condition of the men. This is the only prison in the United States where the income exceeds the expense of operation. 1500 men are employed in the factories at 50 cents per day; 30 women are employed at 30 cents per day. The factories are modern, well ventilated and thoroughly equipped, being in every respect equal to the best in the United States outside of prison walls, while the order and system of business is just as thorough and complete if not more so. The power for the factories, electric light plants and the steam for heating and cooking purposes, is furnished by a central power plant. Six powerful Corliss engines drive the machinery. The electric light plant furnishes, in addition to the lights for the entire prison buildings and grounds, light for the Capitol building, Supreme Court building, Armory, Warden's residence, and operates motors for running light machinery. The prisoners at this date, May, 1900, number 2,135 of whom 2,070 are men and 65 women; one-third of the men are colored and four-fifths of the women. The cost per capita for maintaining the prisoners during 1897 and 1898, was 25.29 cents per day, the average earning 28.38 cents, leaving a daily balance of 3.09 cents. The daily average number of inmates during these years was 2,228. The amount paid by contractors to the State for labor of convicts, use of buildings, power, etc., was $440,508. During 62 years, 289 prisoners were received whose ages ranged between 16 and 20 years; 686 between 20 and 25, and three were received who were over 70 years of age; thirteen entered under sentence of 99 years and four under life sentences; 3,403 pardons have been granted since the opening of the institution. The three-fourths law, which went into effect in 1870, has resulted in the release of 498 prisoners under its provisions. In the past forty years, 872 deaths have occurred. No epidemic has existed in the prison for many years and the death rate has been less than that of the average village. In 1898 the State property was valued at $1,589,474.59. The prison was open for the reception of prisoners in 1836, the first prisoner received, March 8, of that year, was Wilson Eidson, 22 years of age, a native of Tennessee. He was sent from Greene county, Mo., under a sentence of two years and forty-five days for grand larceny. There are many refining and elevating elements of which the unfortunate inmates of this institution receive the beneficial influences. Among them is a thoroughly stocked green house, a floral court which is constantly kept beautiful with seasonable flowers, and a library under the supervision of the Chaplain, Rev. W. G. Pike, containing 5,280 well-selected volumes, the largest and best prison library in the United States. There is in charge of the Chaplain also an orchestra and musical department. A well-appointed chapel is provided with a seating capacity sufficient to accommodate the entire population of the prison, where every Sunday afternoon, may be witnessed the novel sight of most of the inmates at worship, the services being conducted by a regularly appointed Chaplain. The song service, with orchestra accompaniment, is led by a choir selected from among the prisoners. The present officers of the institution are: J. D. Starke, Warden; T. M. Bradbury, Deputy Warden; J. B. Tolin, Assistant Deputy Warden; W. E. McMahan, chief clerk; G. W. Hobbs, book-keeper; Porter Gilvin, yard master, and Mrs. Lina Spahr, Matron of the Female Department. In addition there are subordinate officers and 110 guards employed. All prisoners when released are required to leave the city and county within 12 hours. For this reason Jefferson City has fewer of the criminal class than any city of its size in the State.

Capitol Brewery Company,

Moerschel Bros., Proprietors.

No concern in Central Missouri furnishes a better illustration of the reward which attends the well-directed efforts of thrifty, honorable business men than the established business of Moerschel Brothers. Jacob F. Moerschel was born July 20, 1848, in Miltenberg, Bavaria, Germany, where he received his

In January, 1890, he bought the plant which he at present owns and operates in St. Charles.

Andrew Moerschel, the younger brother, was born in Miltenberg, December 31, 1854, from which place he came to America in 1869, locating in St. Louis. He engaged extensively in the market busiearly education, and later served an apprenticeship of three years in the brewery, after which he immigrated, in 1867, to the United States, coming directly to St. Louis. Here he was engaged as brewer in the different breweries of that city until 1884, when he was given the position of Superintendent of the Klaussman Brewery, where he remained until 1890.

ness until 1884, when he took a position under his brother in the Klaussman Brewery. In 1892 the two brothers purchased the Wagner Brewery in this city, changing the name to the Capitol Brewery Company. The purchase price of this plant was about $40,000. They added greatly to its value by extensive improvements until at present the buildings over more than one acre of ground. The brewery building proper is a four-story structure, built of brick, and is fire proof. The main building took the place of several old buildings which constituted the Wagner Brewery. On the first floor is located the cooking apparatus, where the requisite ingredients are first prepared and the beer cooked in a large copper receptacle by means of steam, after which it is pumped to the fourth story, where it is exposed to the air in a large copper pan, occupying the entire upper room. From this pan the beer is passed through a series of horizontal pipes to the cooler, and is then conveyed to the cellars, where it is stored away in large tuns to undergo the proper amount of fermentation. The cellars, located in the main building, are three in number, situated one above the other. As one steps into these cellars from the outer air with a temperature of 90 degrees Fahrenheit on a Summer day, he is suddenly plunged through a change of nearly 60 degrees in a second of time, the cellars being constantly kept at freezing point. Arranged in double rows are the immense tuns or casks containing hundreds of gallons of beer passing through the various stages of fermentation. From these dark cellars the foaming beverage is pumped through pipes into filling machines, run into kegs or bottles and made ready for market. The scene here is weird beyond description. The pipes above are incased in solid ice, the hard cement floors below sparkling with frost, reflecting back the gleams of the sputtering torch when held aloft, adds to the spectacular and fascinating scene. The capacity of this brewery is 20,000 barrels annually. The demand for its popular product, which is shipped throughout Central Missouri to points on the Mo. Pac., C. & A. and "Katy" Railways, keeps it running to its full capacity. The ice factory consists of a four-story building, facing Dunklin street, where many tons of ice are manufactured daily by the ammonia process. The water for this immense ice plant is supplied from two deep wells, one 275 and the other 350 feet deep, the water being raised to the surface by powerful pumps which are kept running constantly during the season. There are two gigantic ice machines on the first floor of the building, one of 60 and the other of 75 tons capacity per day. Only the purest artesian water is used in the manufacture of the celebrated Moerschel Artificial Ice, which is frozen in clear solid cakes of 300 pounds each, being free from all acid taste and foreign substances, and absolutely pure. Of the 50 tons made daily the larger part is consumed by the Brewery and Jefferson City, although large orders are filled for outside towns. This ice is cheaper and better than the natural product, as a result the old time of ice harvesting is almost a thing of the past. The Moerschel Brothers not only make their own ice but also generate their own electricity, pump their own water, have their own power house and furnish their own steam heat in Winter. They keep twelve splendid horses for their drayage and delivery. They give steady employment to 20 men, all of whom are thorough in their business, although every detail is watched carefully by the manager at this place, Mr. Andrew Moerschel, who personally inspects and gives orders in the different departments. The enterprising spirit of Moerschel Brothers is highly appreciated by the citizens of Jefferson City. They always respond liberally to any fund to be raised to meet emergencies or advance the interests of the town. They did their part nobly in the fight against Capital removal and are always willing to foster and help new enterprises. In the building of the bridge, they subscribed promptly $4,000, and have now subscribed $1,000 to help raise a railroad bonus for the extension of the Springfield & Lebanon Branch. The value of their splendid brewery plant is now more than double the amount invested when they came here in 1892. They have been eminently successful, and deservedly so, not only turning out the very best product in their line, but their business methods are so straightforward and liberal with their patrons that they have an ever increasing number of friends and volume of business.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB OF JEFFERSON CITY.

The Commercial Club of Jefferson City is largely composed of her leading business men, the purpose of the organization being to encourage and assist in movements to advance the material, social and educational interests of the city. Their elegant suite of club rooms, the best located and most completely equipped in the State outside of St. Louis, are shown below; we also present a view of the reception hall. The rooms are supplied with periodicals and read-

Ewing, Jno. G. Lewis and Lester S. Parker, who then elected Jno. G. Lewis Secretary of the Club and Jesse W. Henry Treasurer. At this meeting Mr. J. C. Fisher addressed the Club at length upon the important subject "A Bridge Across the Missouri River at Jefferson City," hence his sobriquet, "Father of the Bridge." The directors at present are Judge Philipp Ott, G. A. Fischer, H. F. Priesmeyer, zation is now taking active and effective steps to locate a number of factories, and will doubtless succeed with several, adding greatly to the material wealth of the city. The initial or preliminary meeting of this organization was held April 6, 1893, with A. P. Grimshaw temporary chairman and Jno. G. Lewis temporary secretary. April 21, 1893, Mr. A. P. Grimshaw was elected to the office of President

F. M. Brown, Chas. Opel, W. W. Wagner, James Houchin and Dr. G. Ettmueller, all of whom are representative men both in business and social circles. The President is Judge Philipp Ott; Vice-President, Dr. G. Ettmueller; Secretary, Chas. Opel; Treasurer, Ed. Holtschneider. The organization engineered and was the means of carrying through the building of the great steel bridge, county court house, sewerage system, opposition to the Capital removal; in fact, almost every move to advance the material interests of the city was conceived and pushed to completion by this organization.

JEFFERSON CITY HORSE SHOW.

Within the last few years horse shows have become fashionable and popular in the West and consequently Jefferson City, being up-to-date in matters pertaining to good horses, gave her first annual horse show in 1897, followed by one in 1898, and another in 1899, and the show for 1900 promises to eclipse all former efforts. Great interest is taken in these annual events by the people of Missouri, and especially is this true of the people of Jefferson City, and properly so, it being the Capital of a State con-

ity of whom were instrumental in inaugurating this popular form of entertainment two years previous, organized themselves into the State Horse Show Association of Jefferson City, with the following officers: H. Clay Ewing, President; G. C. Ramsey, Vice-President; A. M. Hough, Secretary; W. A. Dallceeded to be the home of the best horses bred in America. The first show, in 1897, was not strictly a horse show, but sufficient interest was manifested to encourage the organization of a strictly up-to-date Horse Show Association, which was duly consummated in the year 1898, with the following officers: Jesse W. Henry, President; L. D. Gordon, Vice-President; F. J. Wildberger, Secretary; Emil Schott, Treasurer. Executive Committee: L. D. Gordon, Fred. H. Binder, W. W. Wagner, M. F. Overstreet, George C. Ramsey. The exhibition of 1898, given under the above management in Cottage Place Park, was handicapped by bad weather and other untoward circumstances, but despite these, many harness horses, high steppers and saddlers, ordinary and high school, participated in the events.

In the year 1899, encouraged by the success of former meetings, and desiring to have an exclusive horse show, forty citizens of Jefferson City, a majority of whom were instrumental in inaugurating this popular form of entertainment two years previous, organized themselves into the State Horse Show Association of Jefferson City, with the following officers: H. Clay Ewing, President; G. C. Ramsey, Vice-President; A. M. Hough, Secretary; W. A. Dallmeyer, Treasurer. Executive Committee: G. C. Ramsey, F. M. Brown, L. D. Gordon, T. B. Mahan, Herman Schulte. The previous meetings had been participated in chiefly by local horse fanciers, and prizes were awarded mostly to horses owned in Jefferson City, but the Program Committee of the 1899 show determined to widen the scope of the competition by increasing the amount of premiums and furnishing a greater variety of exhibitions.

The committee was aided in its efforts to devise an attractive list of exhibitions by the co-operation of Mr. A. E. Ashbrook, of Kansas City, publisher of the Kansas City Horse Show Monthly. The events of this show surpassed all former exhibitions, the high-jumping of "Joe Wheeler," "Black Douglass" and "Bonnie Lassie" being an especially popular feature, though by no means detracting from the general interest manifested in the other events, in which the best talent of the State was competing.

The grounds of Cottage Place Park are peculiarly adapted to events of this kind, and with the special and brilliant illuminations provided, made a most attractive scene. Here were gathered the youth and beauty of our city, the members of the smart set, and everyone who admires the symmetry and faultless action of the high bred horses. The Association provided every accommodation for the proper care of the valuable horses, and spared no pains to make pleasant the stay of visiting horsemen. The street parades on the program each day were carried out and were a very attractive and popular feature, being participated in by the citizens held at Cottage Place Park August 7-8-9, promises to surpass in scope and magnitude all former exhibitions, and under the management of the following named officers, will no doubt be a grand success: Judge W. C. Marshall, President; J. D. Starke, Vice-President; F. J. Wildberger, Secretary; W. A. Dallmeyer, Treasurer. Board of Directors: J. M. Wells, H. F. Priesmeyer, V. J. Kaiser, W. A. Moore, C. A. Ware. The management is assured of the presence at the coming show of such horsemen as D. L. Parrish of St. Louis, Mo., Augustus Busch of St. Louis, Mo., A. E. Ashbrook, of "The Horse Show Monthly," of Kansas City, Mo., all of whom are enthusiastic adgenerally, and bringing into play many artistic and novel ideas. The parade attracting the most admiration was the Flower Parade, under the auspices of the ladies of Jefferson City. At least 40 vehicles were in line and each vied with the other in beauty of design and decoration. The parade was recognized by visitors as comparing most favorably with those of the larger cities and many compliments were bestowed on the ladies for their taste in the decoration of the handsome turn-outs.

The prospectus of the coming 1900 show to be

mirers of horse flesh and breeders of horses which have won fame throughout the country.

The State Horse Show of Jefferson City has won an enviable position among associations of like character in the country, and the warm esteem of horsemen throughout the State, which will no doubt result in increased interest and attendance at the coming exhibition. The citizens of Jefferson City may well afford to extend every encouragement to its promoters, and every hospitality to visiting horsemen.

COLE COUNTY ILLUSTRATED SKETCH BOOK.

INTRODUCTION.

Our purpose in this publication is to reflect on its pages Jefferson City and Cole county as they are today with only a sufficient glimpse of the past to enable us better to appreciate the many blessings, comforts and advantages we enjoy (physical, intellectual and social), as a result of the broad, far-reaching efforts of the pioneers who laid, in the then wilds of the West, the foundation of the great commonwealth of Missouri.

The first European to place foot on what is now Missouri soil was the adventurous Spanish Cavalier DeSoto, in 1547. The early settlers, however, were largely French, coming nearly two centuries later. In 1762, as a result of war between England and France, the French claims east of the Mississippi fell to England, while those west of the river to Spain. In 1801, through the manipulations of the great Napoleon, France again had ceded to her by Spain the vast domain west of the Mississippi, which in 1803 the United States, under the administration of Thomas Jefferson, purchased of Napoleon for fifteen million dollars, this being the Louisiana Purchase, the one hundredth anniversary, of which event St. Louis is preparing to appropriately celebrate in 1903.

In 1812 the Territory of Missouri was organized, and in 1820 entered the Union as a slave State, a result of the pacifying influence of the great statesman Henry Clay, the measure admitting being known as the Missouri Compromise. This compromise and the famous Dred Scott decision made the State specially conspicuous in the exciting debates which immediately preceded the tragic horrors of the war of the rebellion. At the beginning of the century just closing, the whites within the present boundaries of the State numbered only a few thousand and the struggles, hardships and tragedies attending their efforts to plant civilization in a land habited by savages and secure from primitive nature the necessities of life for themselves and families, we will not attempt even to suggest nor will we (although Gibbon says mankind gives more glory to its destroyers than its benefactors, and the tales of war are most absorbing) mention the intensely interesting and tragic events of the dark period which followed the attempt to dissolve the Union. We will only say that during this bloody strife the loss of the State in her best blood was great while that of her material wealth was almost beyond compute, but the character, enterprise and indomitable will of her people coupled with her unlimited and varied natural resources enabled her to rise, Phoenix like, from the ashes, and, measured by the standard of education, wealth and political power take fifth place in the list of States, although much younger than her out-ranking rivals, none of which suffered by the war, but on the contrary profited largely by the great demand for their products resulting from the strife.

The great State of Missouri in the Geographical Center is unquestionably favored by nature more than any other of the American Union, as attested by her boundless treasures of rich soil, coal, iron, zinc, lead, copper and well distributed forests of the best timber, abundantly supplied with water from the graceful flowing streams and sparkling springs, while certainly none have been more fortunate in the character, enterprise and intelligence of its people; for these reasons, and judging by the rapid and substantial progress of the past, we may confidently expect the future to place on her brow the crown of first place among the States.

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher said: "All admit the State of Missouri, in natural resources, leads all the rest, and is the crown and glory of the Union."

MISSOURI.

SKETCH BOOK PRIZE ESSAY ON MISSOURI BY RUSSELL C. McMAHAN.

It has been truly said that the ancient boast, "All roads lead to Rome," might with equal propriety and without distortion of facts be changed to "All roads lead to Missouri." Located as she is, about midway between the Atlantic and Pacific. A State that "graples hold upon Mexico and Central America on the South, and upon Alaska and British America on the North, and through which is a thoroughfare to the golden gate of the Pacific." She is the very heart of the Union, with resources enough to nourish the whole body. The area of Missouri is sixty-nine thousand four hundred and fifteen square miles or about forty-five million acres; such a vast extent that the entire states of Maine,, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Delaware could be put down side by side within its boundaries and still leave a margin of nine hundred square miles. But few portions of the world are so well watered as Missouri. The Mississippi river washes the entire eastern boundary. The Missouri washes it on the west from the northwest corner southward for two hundred and fifty miles, and hence on clear through the heart of the State. These two mighty rivers have many tributaries, large and small; and springs in large numbers and great varieties refresh and beautify all parts of the State. Missouri has no desert lands. No words can describe the beauty and grandeur of her native forests. Walnut trees one hundred and ten feet high and twenty-two feet in circumference; oak trees one hundred and twenty-five feet high and twenty feet in circumference; sycamores one hundred and thirty feet high and twelve feet in diameter; hickory, elm, gum, birch, cedar and pine, all grow in every part of the State, and from these, in 1898, Missouri, after using all she needed in each district, exported three hundred and fifty million feet of lumber; forty million feet of logs, besides six thousand three hundred and seventy-one cars of cord wood, three thousand cars of cooperage and four million ties. The soil of fully two-thirds of the State is adapted to the raising of all the small fruits. The southern part being famous not only in the United States but in Europe as the "land of the big red apple." The fruit crop alone in Missouri amounts to twenty-six million dollars annually, and as a producer of corn, wheat, oats, hay and potatoes no country in the world can surpass her.

Missouri does not claim to be a cotton producing State, but in 1898 more than one million two hundred thousand dollars worth of that product was sent to market, and the cotton seed products amounted to about sixteen million pounds. She stands first in the production of mules, hogs and poultry. Fortune has been kind and set the boundary lines of this State around a portion of country filled with an unusual amount of the mineral substances useful in the manufacturer's art. There is no territory of equal extent on the globe which contains so many different kinds and such large quantities of the most useful minerals as the State of Missouri; and though her mineral wealth has hardly been touched she ranks first in the production of lead and zinc, producing more of the latter than all the other states combined. Her iron fields, including Iron Mountain, which covers five hundred acres, and Pilot Knob, are almost inexhaustible. The coal area of Missouri is said to be twenty-three thousand square miles, and her coal mines produced in one year recently almost three million tons of coal, and that is said to be a small amount compared with what might be produced annually. In addition to its immense lead, zinc, iron and coal industries Missouri also has silver and copper; great beds of glass sand, pottery, tile, brick clay and an endless variety of building stone; granite limestone, sandstone and marble, and for purely ornamental purposes, a Mexican onyx, susceptible of the most beautiful polish. Missouri has had a wonderful history which reads almost like a fairy tale. Some of her inhabitants yet living can remember when she was a part of the district of Louisiana, a wild waste of forest and prairie, without a population; the home of the Indian and the buffalo, and now such has been her thrift, she ranks in population as fifth in the sisterhood of the forty-five states which compose the American Union, and boasts of a taxable wealth of almost one billion dollars. In many lines of business and manufacture Missouri's cities lead the world. St. Louis is the great metropolis of the West; stretching nineteen miles along the Mississippi river and about eleven miles back from the river front. She has twenty-one railroads, and their cars arrive and depart from the largest and most perfectly equipped depot in the whole world. This limited space barely admits mention of her great population of six hundred and eighty-five thousand, her manufactories, mercantile houses and various industries. Viewed from the dome of her highest building one can hardly believe that this vast city can be the growth of less than a century, and seven-eighths of it has grown there inside of twenty-five years. Kansas City, Missouri, has the second live stock market of America, and many of her smaller cities are examples of wonderful advancement. The population of Missouri is estimated at about three million two hundred and fifty thousand. As to the character and quality of her people she admits no superior. Her most distinguished sons and daughters have become so by honest toil, combined with intelligence. Missouri takes a proud position in the educational world, and enjoys the high distinction of having the largest public school fund of any state in the Union. She has a State University, three Normal schools, and a school for the higher education of colored people. She has three insane asylums, a school for the blind, a reform school for boys and an industrial home for girls, where the kindest care is taken of her unfortunates. I have space to mention only a few of Missouri's sons who have risen above the ranks to distinction and world wide fame. Marvin, the preacher, Eugene Field, the poet, Clemens, better known all over the world as "Mark Twain," the humorous writer, were all born in Missouri. She has produced Statesmen in plenty; in the United States Senate and in Congress have been seated many Missourians of whom she is justly proud. Among the list of her own governors may be found the names of several who were born and reared in Missouri.

We have seen that in all the elements of desirable location, area, fertility of soil, inexhaustible mines, and enterprise Missouri is an empire in itself, but not half of her possibilities have been told. She is a land of infinite promise, and giving the broadest welcome to all honorable men and women whatever creed or clime in the future.

"Rising rugged and reliant,
Like Anteus, the old giant,
She will dare and do great things."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The First Baptist church of Jefferson City, was not always the strong, prosperous and influential congregation it is today. Its history affords a striking illustration of the great advantages enjoyed by the citizens of the Capital City of the present over those who struggled with the circumstances attending its early history. The first organization was July 8, 1837, in what was then the new capitol of a new and undeveloped State. The original members were Daniel and Ann Colgan, Jason and Sally Harrison, P. H. and Sarah Steinbergen, Rachel Walker, Ava Rice, and three colored persons named General, Adam and Jennie. The presbytery was composed of Elders Kemp Scott, M. D. Noland and R. S. Thomas. Immediately after the organization five additional members were received by recommendation. Elder M. D. Noland was first pastor being followed by Elders Kemp Scott, S. H. Ford, W. W. Keep, T. F. Lockett and J. A. Hollis. This list includes all who served the organization as pastor previous to the war of the Rebellion. The original meetings were in the private homes of the members, the ordinance of Baptism being administered in the Missouri river and neighboring creeks. In 1838 they purchased ground on Monroe and Miller and began the erection of a building, although the entire cost of the structure was less in dollars and cents than one fourth that of the foundation of the present magnificent church home; it required four years of struggle and self denial for this little band to complete the house which was dedicated in 1842; the building also being used for school purposes, another evidence of the marked advantages of today when contemplated in connection with the number of magnificent brick structures now devoted to educational purposes. Unable to longer brave the discouraging circumstances with which the little flock was burdened they disbanded giving each other letters of dismission. Two years later there was a struggle for renewed life but the struggle was without fruition as there is no record of any meeting during the period of five years from 1847 to 1852. In 1858 Elders A. P. Williams, M. D. Noland and W. B. Walthall, held a protracted meeting which resulted in renewed strength but soon after, the tragic events of war made another blank in the history of the organization which did not meet during the strife of 1861 to 1865. Elder R. H. Harris, was called to the pastorate immediately after the war and was succeeded by Elder W. J. Patrick, under whose wise and faithful work the little church took on new life, selling the old building they began the erection of another on Monroe street between Main and High. This building was dedicated, Dr. G. J. Johnston preaching the sermon, January 29, 1871. Elder Patrick resigned in 1870, his successors being Elders C. H. Hurlbet and ——— Evans both of whose services were of short duration. In 1873 the church called to its pastorate Elder T. W. Barrett who although entering upon his labors under most unfavorable circumstances, by wise and patient management the church was cleared of a burdensome debt and gained spiritual strength and membership. He was succeeded in 1884 by Elder Ray Palmer, an orator of zeal and ability, who resigned in 1887 being succeeded by Elder J. T. M. Johnston, whose qualifications admirably fitted him for the pastorate of a church in the Capital City. His thorough knowledge of men and fine social qualities with his ability as a speaker, soon drew around him a large congregation of enthusiastic admirers. The church was too small to accommodate the largely increased attendance and arrangements were made to sell the building which was done and the present well appointed and modern structure was erected on Main and Monroe streets at a cost of about $13,000. Both the prompt erection and perfectly designed arrangements of the entire church building, (which in addition to the large and well appointed auditorium, includes a Sunday school room on the first floor, while in the finished basement are the church parlors, pastor's study, and, in fact, every convenience for the home of this now strong and zealous organization with its fully alive and active auxiliaries) is due greatly to the efforts of the building committee composed of J. W. Edwards, H. A. Gass, G. M. Maus and J. R. Lamkin. The church was dedicated on November 11, 1888, Dr. Green of St. Louis preached the dedicatory sermon while Dr. T. W. Barrett of Columbie offered the dedicatory prayer. While Dr. Johnston was pastor, the church bought the beautiful home at 513 East High street for a parsonage. During Dr. Johnston's ten years services as pastor, this congregation was greatly enriched spiritually by his earnest and zealous efforts for Christ and materially benefitted by his able and marked ability as a financier. He resigned, accepting a call from Delmar Avenue Baptist church of St. Louis, of which he is at present pastor. He was succeeded by Rev. W. C. Taylor of Frankfort, Kentucky, a man of great pulpit powers who for two years preached with great acceptance to both the church and community. He resigned August 18, 1899, accepting a call from the College Avenue Baptist church of Indianapolis, Indiana, where he is now serving. The pastor, Elder W. T. Campbell, under whose spiritual guidance the church with all its auxiliaries is in a most happy and prosperous condition, is the successor of Dr. Taylor. The present officers of the church are: H. A. Gass, moderator; W. W. Hutchinson, clerk; T. M. Hampton, treasurer; James A. Ellis, Honck McHenry, E. L. Bumpus, L. S. Parker, Porter Gilvin, Dr. H. E. Hammen and J. B. Reynolds are the trustees; W. W. Hutchinson, H. W. Clarke, Benj. Hampton, G. M. Maus and T. H. Whitney deacons. H. A. Gass is superintendent of the flourishing Sunday school, numbering nearly 200 scholars. Byron Leslie is secretary of the Sunday school and president of the B. Y. P. U., which society numbers 70 members; the secretary is Mrs. Byron Leslie. Mrs. H. W. Clarke is president of the Ladies' Social Circle. The pastor is the teacher of the Bible class, which, at their regular meetings on Friday evening, engages in a thorough and systematic study of the bible. The finance committee is the deacons, trustees and the treasurer. The membership numbers 373. This church is highly favored in its pastor, various officials, earnest, zealous members, and its modern, well appointed home.

REV. W. T. CAMPBELL.

Rev. William Tinsley Campbell, pastor First Baptist church of Jefferson City, was born in Searcy county, Arkansas, March 9, 1852. His father, G. W. Campbell, was a native of Tennessee. He was a captain in the Confederate army in the war of the Rebellion and while in service died December, 1862. In the misfortunes of war the family lost their property and were separated. The subject of this sketch came to Missouri in 1865 with his eldest brother, settling on a farm in Greene county, near Springfield, from which place he removed to Saline soon after. Rev. Campbell was converted in 1867 and during a short stay in Arkansas, in 1868, was baptized by Rev. W. R. Miller, he however, transferred his membership to Salt Pond church, in Saline county, Missouri, whose pastor was Rev. J. L. Tichnor, he soon after being licensed to preach by that church. Entering William Jewell college at Liberty, Missouri, September, 1872, he remained six years a student, paying his way by manual labor, during vacations and out of school hours. While thus engaged it is said he sawed with his own hands more than one hundred cords of wood. He was ordained to the ministry January 26, 1876, while still in William Jewell college and served during his college term two country churches as pastor two years. In 1878 he entered the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, Kentucky. While attending this famous theological school, recently removed from Greenville, South Carolina, he was pastor of the Portland Avenue Baptist church of Louisville, his labor being attended with happy results to the congregation which increased both in numbers and spiritual strength. During his theological course at Louisville, his zeal in laboring for the cause, coupled with a close application to study, overtaxed his physical strength and he was reluctantly forced to retire from both his school and pastorate. Returning to Missouri he accepted the charge of the Baptist church at Westport, in 1880. After two years he was made missionary in Kansas City, where he organized the Olive Street Baptist church in 1884, with thirty members and continued the spiritual advisor of this flock of earnest Christians seven years, during which time the number increased to 360, with a well appointed church home costing $10,000. In 1891 he went aboard traveling extensively in Egypt, Palestine, Servia and Europe, being in company with Dr. H. M. Wharton, who wrote the delightful book "A Picnic in Palestine," which has not only afforded very great pleasure to the lovers of the sacred traditions connected with that country, but has been a source from which to gather a more thorough knowledge of the country which compassed the scenes and incidents in the life of Christ. Returning from Europe Rev. Campbell spent several months in Baltimore and Chicago studying men and methods. In 1892, he was elected corresponding secretary of the Missouri Baptist General Association. His administration of this office, which he filled the following five years, reflects very great credit on his worth as an earnest Christian worker and tact as an organizer. This position he resigned to accept a call to the pastorate of South Park church of Kansas City, a new church of sixty members, which he left three years later on being called to his present pastorate with one hundred and eighty members. Rev. Campbell was united in marriage December 29, 1880, to Miss Jennie, daughter of J. R. Spurgeon of Pettis county, Missouri. Of the two children born to this union, one died in infancy while the other, Spurgeon Broadus, was an infant of one week, when his mother died, January 28, 1888, leaving him to the tender care of her sister. Rev. Campbell was married a second time May 25, 1892, to Miss Emma E. Spurgeon, a sister of his first wife, a lady of culture, a graduate of the Lexington (Mo.) Baptist Female college, and thoroughly in sympathy with the noble life work of her husband. Of the two children born to them, Mary Emma, is a bright child of three years. Rev. Campbell is blessed with a good mind and body and although he had to secure his education by the work of his hands, his zeal for the cause which he served supported by an indomitable will, has given him unusual advantages of both study and travel. His trip to foreign lands was made at a period when his ripened and receptive mind could profit much by a visit to the scenes around which cluster the sacred associations of the Master while on earth; observations of which he uses most effectively in presenting the story of the cross. His ministerial work has been attended with continued and uniform success, and every field which has been so fortunate as to secure his services was left greatly enriched in spiritual strength, numbers and material wealth. He is what may be termed an Evangelistic pastor, yet his wonderful tact as an organizer gives to him greater force and influence in the great religious organization, of which he is an able and worthy exponent, than is usual with men who possess the qualifications necessary to a successful Evangelist. The eminent Dr. W. Pope Yeaman, D. D., in his history of the Missouri Baptist Association, says of Rev. Campbell: "The results of his labors during his five years services as corresponding secretary of the association, is the best commentary which can be made on his adaptation to the office. During his term, Missouri, in common with the whole country, passed through a dark and most disastrous period of financial embarrassment following the crisis of 1873. Nevertheless the financial foundations of the great Missouri Baptist Association was kept solid and prosperous while many secular enterprises went down in disaster. His uniform urbanity as a Christian gentleman, his generous impulse looking out through a radiant face; his large heart palpitating under genuine fellowship with his brethren; his warm and earnest gospel sermons, and his pathetic appeals for the destitute fields and the missionaries, contributed to make this most satisfactory record. During these five years, 300 missionaries were employed, 6,780 converts reported and $56,939.59 was raised for State missions. It is worthy of note that more persons were baptized by the missionaries of the General Association during his administration than during any other five years in the history of that body." The First Baptist church of Jefferson City is fortunate in securing as their spiritual advisor so able a preacher and one who comes to them with such a varied and rich experience. The church, under his pastorate with all its auxiliaries, is in a most prosperous and happy condition. The Rev. Campbell makes his home with his genial, devoted wife and interesting children in the Baptist parsonage, a splendidly appointed home which the congregation has provided for their pastor on East High street.

ST. PETER'S CATHOLIC CHURCH.

In nothing is the spiritual, intellectual and material progress of Jefferson City so completely illustrated as in a review of St. Peter's church, and parish, the history of which is most fascinating, and properly presented would fill a volume larger than this. In 1831, occurred the first visit of a Catholic priest to Jefferson City. Of the number of families of that belief living in the county at that time there is no record, but from that year the visits of the itinerant missionary priests were regular, with an ever-increasing frequency. The records kept in the diocesan chancery of St. Louis reckon Jefferson City the 59th parish in the diocese and state that in 1831 the first holy mass was celebrated by Rev. Phoenix L. Verreydt, a native of Belgium and a member of the Society of Jesus, at that time resident at the Indian mission of Portage des Sioux, St. Charles, Mo. The same records state that Jefferson City was again visited by the Jesuits in 1836, and it is presumable that these zealous missionaries did not neglect the Catholics of Cole county in the intervening period. In 1838 Father Helias came to New Westphalia (now in Osage county, then a part of Gasconade) as resident missionary priest, and from there made regular monthly tours through the adjacent counties; his visits including twenty-five missions, among them Taos and Jefferson City. There being no church at that time in Jefferson City, the meeting was in a private house. He placed the mission under the patronage of St. Ignatius, who continued to be venerated by the mission as their patron saint until the year 1846, when the first church was built and dedicated under the title of St. Peters. In 1842 Father Helias transferred his residence, by order of his superior, to Taos, from which place he continued to attend the flock at Jefferson City until the appointment of a resident pastor in 1846. In 1845 the Catholics of Jefferson City were sufficiently numerous to undertake the erection of a building. There being no resident priest here, the following named laymen: J. W. Wolters, G. H. Dulle, Anton Maus, M. Wallendorf, F. Roer, B. Eveler, G. Pirmer, P. Meyers, C. and F. Kolkmeyer, J. H. Gels, G. H. Kroeger, J. H. Kroeger, J. H. Heitker, P. Reisdorff, B. Rephlo, H. B. Rackers, Herman Tellman and Patrick Buckley, undertook the then Herculean task. The result of the united efforts of these pious and earnest christians 'is shown by the cut of the first building found in this article. Soon after the erection of the church, Messrs. J. B. Wolters and B. Eveler were sent to St. Louis to request of the Right Rev. P. R. Kendrick to grant them a resident spiritual advisor. Rev. James S. Murphy was chosen and assumed the duties of resident pastor in July 1846. The pioneer Catholics and pastors of Jefferson City Catholic church were strangers to the many comforts now found in all well organized parishes. Father Murphy remained in charge until December, 1848. About this time the ravages of Know-Nothingism devastated many Catholic parishes throughout the United States, the fanatical agitation injuriously affecting the Missouri organizations. The next pastor was

Rev. Joseph Meister, who assumed the duties of pastor of St. Peters in 1849, continuing until 1853. The third pastor was Rev. Joseph Blaarer, who ministered to the spiritual wants until May, 1854, when he was succeeded by Rev. Wm. Walsh, who remained in charge until January, 1863. During his administration the second church was built (a cut of which accompanies this article), the old church being used as a school house. The next pastor was Rev. Jacob Mueller, from January, 1863, until March, 1875. Rev. Henry Muers succeeded Father Mueller, coming to Jefferson City in March, 1875. The devoted followers of Rev. Henry Muers were required to perform the sad duties attending the incidents of his death August 24, 1876. He was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. Otto Joseph was erected under his administration, is a most worthy monument to his earnest efforts, and that of his faithful and zealous congregation. The number of families has been increased to more than 500, while the pupils in attendance at St. Peter's parochial school number 403. It would be impossible for us to include in this article the names of all who greatly assisted in placing this church organization, with its attendant auxiliaries, in their present magnificent homes both of church and school. We cannot, however, refrain from mentioning that the late G. H. Dulle contributed all the brick for the walls of the entire massive buildings.

four years, he was transferred to St. Louis Diocesan Seminary at Cape Girardeau, conducted by the Fathers of the congregation of the mission. Father

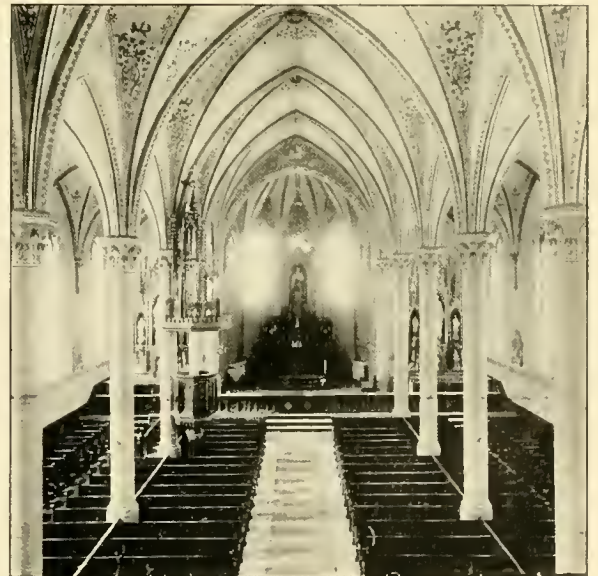

Hoog was ordained in St. Louis by the Right Rev. Bishop Junker of Alton, Ill., December 21, 1867. Soon after his ordination he was sent to Lexington, Mo., where he presided over the parish as pastor until transferred to the more important field of Jefferson City, St. Peter's having lost, by death, the beloved pastor, Rev. H. Meurs, August 24, 1876. From the day of his arrival, September 20, 1876, St. Peter's parish has made substantial progress, spiritually, intellectually and financially. During his pastorate the present elegant church building, with its cloud-piercing spire, has been erected. Its grand auditorium seats nearly 1,000; the double groined vaulted ceiling is supported by two majestic tiers of pillars, dividing the spacious room into three naves; the central ceiling being 56 feet high, while those of the sides are 42. The pews and the great organ are finished in highly polished white walnut, while the soft light steals through the stained-glass windows, the rainbow hues producing Present St. Peter's Catholic Church.

REV. O. J. S. HOOG.

Rev. Otto Joseph Stanislaus Hoog, pastor of St. Peter's church, was born in Ettenheim, Baden, April 18, 1845, from which place he accompanied his parents to America in 1854. On the year of their arrival in St. Louis, both parents were victims to the cholera epidemic, leaving their son an orphan at the age of nine. Father Uland, C. M., who attended his parents in their closing hours, took an interest in the bright orphan lad and placed him in St. Vincent's Orphanage, where he remained five years, during which time a desire to consecrate his life to the service of the Master grew dominant in his youthful breast. In 1859 he entered the St. Louis University, an educational institution in charge of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus. In September, 1861, he entered the Theological Seminary at St. Francis, Wis., from which place, after an effect most pleasing. The three Gothic alters and the Gothic pulpit (among the most pleasing and imposing ornaments of the church) are finished in the same polished wood, richly gilded; the main altar, with its carved gilt crosses, rises to a height of 50 feet. The statue of the Sacred Heart of Jesus looks down on the congregation from the central niche, with an expression so sweetly benign it seems to live. The side niches contain large statues of the apostles, Saints Peter and Paul. In fact, all the statuary and other ornaments of this magnificently appointed auditorium are grandly pleasing in effect, and when the spacious room is filled with the glorious harmony of the cultured voices of the choir, supported by rich volume of melody from the organ, the effect is intensely satisfying and inspiring. In addition to the auditorium, which is one of remarkable symmetry and beauty, in the western half of the church proper is a spacious chapel, with a seating capacity of 400. Father Hoog is a man rarely blessed in both mind and body, and has enjoyed excellent educational advantages, coming to St. Peter's after just experience enough to ripen his well-balanced mind and equip him for the great work of spiritual advisor of the parish, he has given to it the best years of his magnificent manhood, and being permanently stationed he has every promise of many years of increased usefulness, as his well-balanced mind has been enriched by the experiences attending associations with his consecrated and devoted congregation. Although his name will long be associated with the buildings erected during his administration, he will need no such monuments to preserve his memory in the hearts of his people, who have for nearly a quarter of a century had, in sorrow, the sympathy of his generous heart; in joy, his glad blessing, and in spiritual affairs, his wise counsel and prayer.

THE GERMAN EVANGELICAL CENTRAL CHURCH.

The German Evangelical Central congregation of Jefferson City is a member of the German Evangelical Synod of North America, a church association which advocates the union of the two branches of the Protestant church, the Lutheran and Reformed. The history of this church association is a remarkable exemplification of the parable of the mustard seed from which sprang and grew quite a large tree. In 1840, six ministers of the gospel having charge of German congregations in the vicinity of St. Louis, met in a little log church in Gravois

Settlement, St. Louis county, Missouri, and there formed an organization called "The Evangelical Church Association of the West." This was the insignificant beginning of the above mentioned Evangelical Synod, which is now represented in almost all states of the Union and in Canada, numbering 900 ministers, 1,130 congregations, 61,500 members, 25,500 associate members and 195,000 communicants. The congregation at Jefferson City was organized as early as 1858, but for more than two years was without a regular pastor, services being conducted at certain intervals by itinerant preachers. The meetings were held in private houses of members until 1859, when a plain brick church was built at a cost of about $1,500. In June, 1860, Rev. Joseph Rieger, one of the pioneer preachers and founders of the Evangelical Synod, became the first settled pastor of the congregation. Soon after his arrival a parsonage was built at a cost of $1,300. The efforts of this pious, sincere and kind-hearted the Lord were laid to rest in the church cemetery in the presence of the Governor, many state officers, all the preachers of the city, a large congregation, but especially the poor and common people whom he had befriended by his many benevolent acts. In November, 1869, Rev. E. Huber, a young, able and energetic divine who, for more than one year, had been the assistant of Rev. Rieger, was unanimously elected by the congregation as pastor, and as such he continued until January, 1874.

During his administration a two-story school building was erected and the parochial school established. Rev. Huber was succeeded by Rev. H. Klerner, who assumed charge of the congregation in May, 1874, and directed its affairs until June, 1876, when he resigned, removing to St. Louis. For the next five years, from 1876 to 1881, Rev. C. Haas was pastor in charge, and after his resignation in October, 1881, the congregation secured the services of Rev. C. A. Richter, a very eloquent preacher. In October, 1888, Rev. J. U. Schneider became his successor and proved a faithful and prudent worker. The old church building being inadequate for the needs of the growing congregation it was decided to erect a larger and more modern house of worship. In 1892 the contract for the new church was awarded to Mr. Fred Binder, the president of the congregation. With pardonable pride the congregation pastor were signally blessed and the congregation flourished under his leadership. Although of a frail constitution he was an indefatigable worker and not only administered to the wants of his own flock, but was ever willing to do good wherever he had an opportunity. During the civil war he voluntarily and gratuitously performed the duties as chaplain of the state penitentiary. It was no uncommon thing during that tragic period to find the parsonage turned into a hospital, where sick and wounded privates and officers were being nursed by him. He was well known to the state officers, being intimate with a number of them. The colored race never had a better friend than Mr. Rieger, and he was one of the first and principal promoters of Lincoln Institute, serving as a member of the Board of Regents of said institute until his death. On the 20th of August, 1869 "Father" Rieger, as he was commonly known, was called from his sphere of activity and the mortal remains of this faithful servant of may point to its substantial and beautiful church edifice, which has been erected and furnished at a cost of $10,000. After serving the congregation five years with marked success, Rev. Schneider in 1893, accepted a call as Principal of Washington High School, and Rev. Th. L. Mueller, the present pastor, was chosen as his successor. In 1898 the value of the church property was greatly enhanced by the erection of a modern and commodious parsonage. The congregation is in a prosperous condition. The present enrolled membership is 245, viz.: Men's Association, 101; Ladies' Society, 99, and Young Ladies' Society, 45 members. The number of communicants is greater than the enrolled membership. The church officers are: F. H. Binder, President; H. Jens, Secretary; W. Linkemeyer, Treasurer; R. Dallmeyer, A. Doerrer, H. Faust, Trustees; O. J. Krueger, Collector. Miss Pauline Dallmeyer, a young lady of ability who has just finished her education in Germany, has charge of the parochial school. The position of organist and director of the choir is filled by Prof. S. T. Schroetter, a musician of rare talent and culture. The congregation maintains a Sunday school, having an enrollment of 200 children, with an average attendance of 150, the superintendent of which is the pastor.

The President of the Ladies' Society is Mrs. Fred H. Binder; Vice-President, Mrs. Th. L. Mueller; Secretary, Mrs. A. Zuendt; Treasurer, Mrs. Jacob Tanner. This organization assists in procuring finances for benevolent purposes and missions. The officers of the Young Ladies' Society are: Miss Tillie Tanner, President; Miss Minnie Opel, Vice-President; Miss Tillie Faust, Secretary; Miss Lizzie Gruber, Treasurer. The auxiliaries of the German Evangelical Central church, all of which have comfortable quarters, including the Sunday school in their social home in the well furnished basement, are in healthy working condition. It is really a pleasure to note a congregation and pastor so happy in all their relations, and where all freely do their duty to this great uplifting factor in the capital city.

REV. T. L. MUELLER.

Rev. Theophil Louis Mueller pastor of the German Evangelical Central church of Jefferson City, was born in Okawville, Illinois, March 5, 1863. He is a son of the distinguished Rev. Andrew Mueller, now of St. Louis, a prominent minister of the same denomination (now retired). His mother was Minnie Franke both parents being natives of Germany. At thirteen years of age, the subject of this sketch entered Elmhurst College at Elmhurst, Ill., where he continued three years, graduating in 1880. He then entered Marthasville Theological College, (since removed to St. Louis and now known as the Eden College.) From this institution he graduated in 1883. Soon after he went to Europe attending the University at Berlin and Erlangen, Bavaria; returning to America in 1885, his first charge was at Fort Worth, Texas, where he remained two years. His next charge being Millstadt, Ill., where he did four years successful work, when he removed to Kansas City in 1891, from which place, in 1893, removed to Jefferson City, where he is stationed. Rev. Mueller was married in St. Louis, October 2, 1887, to Miss Selma Haerberle, daughter of President Haerberle, of Eden College, of that city. Rev. Mueller is an earnest and intelligent worker in the Master's vineyard. Coupled with his unusual educational advantages, in both America and Europe, he has a bright, generous mind and a social nature with practical ideas which add greatly to his usefulness as a minister. His work in his various churches has been attended with uniform success, all of his charges being left strengthened as a result of his presence. His congregation here is one of the wealthiest and most substantial in Jefferson City and includes a number of prominent business men. The modern church home combines the advantages of an excellent auditorium and auxiliary rooms, necessary to the comfort and convenience of his congregation. To his congregation some fifty additions have been made since he took charge and there has also been built a splendid parsonage. In this Rev. Mueller makes his home with his wife, which is brightened by the presence of his cultured and genial wife and two bright sons, Helmut, a ten years and Edmund, age five.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The Christian church of Jefferson City was organized in 1873, largely through the efforts of R. D. Shannon, the private secretary of Gov. Silas Woodson. He found eight or ten members in the city, among them W. C. Boone, wife and daughter, Mrs. A. M. Lay, John T. Sears and Miss Alice Sears, and arranged for a meeting on Sunday for social worship and communion in the home of the small but earnest band, the services being conducted by Messrs. Boone and Shannon. As their numbers increased the necessity for a permanent place of worship became imperative. While the subject of a church building was talked of they were not financially able to undertake the erection of one, and temporarily met in a small brick house south of the State Armory, and afterwards in the old M. E. stone church back of the Madison House, then in the old court-house. In the meantime Maj. J. M. Clarke and wife had become members of the organization, also John Walker, State Auditor, and Mr. Shannon, who had been elected State Supt. of Public Schools; with these and other valuable additions the little congregation, with new courage, took steps to secure a house of worship, and with the assistance secured throughout the State were successful in procuring the means, and in 1883 rejoiced in laying the corner stone of the present edifice. The congregation has steadily but slowly grown, and now numbers 125 members. It has enjoyed the ministrations of scholarly and able preachers, among them Rev. J. W. Montjoy, who preached the dedicatory sermon, and Rev. J. H. Garrison, now editor of the Christian Evangelist of St. Louis, an organ of wide circulation and great influence. Rev. J. P. Pinkerton is the present pastor, having been in charge two years, and under his spiritual guidance, the church is enjoying a substantial growth. The congregation is contemplating the enlargement and improvement of their house of worship, and will, in the near future, take active steps to this end. The auxiliaries of the church are the Society of the Christian Workers, of which Mrs. W. T. Carrington is President; Mrs. C. A. Ware, Vice-President, and Mrs. G. L. Williams, Secretary and Treasurer, which meets every Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Young Ladies' Guild, Miss Stella Murray, President, meets Thursday afternoons at the home of one of the members. The Sunday school is one of the most prosperous in the city

(having an enrollment of 100 members), of which Charlton Corwin is Superintendent, and George L. Williams Secretary and Treasurer; meets at 9:30 a. m. Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Mrs. Nanon Barret, President; George L. Elston, Secretary and Treasurer; regular meeting each Sunday, 6:45 p. m. The members of the business board are: F. M. Brown, President; George L. Elston, Secretary and Treasurer; G. C. Ramsey, W. T. Carrington, J. W. Heskett and W. J. Wright; meets first Sunday at 2 p. m. The deacons are: Wood Noland, Charlton Corwin, G. C. Ramsey, G. L. Williams, J. W. Heskett, G. L. Elston, clerk; trustees, Wood Noland, G. C. Ramsey. Regular services: Sunday, 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday school, 9:30 a. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday evening 7:30.

REV. J. P. PINKERTON.

Rev. James Parrish Pinkerton, pastor of the Christian church of Jefferson City, was born in Woodford county, Ky., March 6, 1845. His father, Dr. Louis L. Pinkerton, D. D., a native of Baltimore, Md., was a distinguished minister of the same denomination, and one of the most prominent educators of the blue grass state, being the founder of the Female Orphan School at Midway, Ky., now handsomely endowed. He was Professor of Belle Letters in Kentucky University. The subject of this sketch acquired his education in the private schools near his home, and Baconian Institute, of which his father was principal, until the age of fifteen, when he entered Kentucky University where he continued four years. In consequence of the blighting events of the Civil War, the school was greatly interrupted, Gen. Bragg, the famous raider in charge of the Southern forces, using the building as a hospital. Rev. Pinkerton, at the age of nineteen, engaged in teaching, in which exalted profession he continued the following two years in Clark and Fayette counties, during which time (following the legal bent of his mind) he read law, and later was a close student in the office of Judge Wm. Kincaide, of Lexington, Ky., where he was admitted to the bar. He later graduated from the Indianapolis law school, class '68, after which he returned to Lexington and engaged in teaching. After one year, in 1870, he removed to Emporia, Kansas, engaging in the practice of law and operating in real estate the following two years. From Emporia he went to Connersville, Ind., where he engaged in banking with his cousin, J. N. Hustin, who was subsequently U. S. Treasurer under President Benjamin Harrison. Moving from this place to Lexington, he assisted his brother-in-law in the furniture business, and at his death (which occurred soon after) assisted in winding up his estate. Rev. Pinkerton had for several years been impressed that it was his duty to preach the gospel, to which he responded, occasionally with short sermons. He was not, however, ordained to preach until 1879, by the Christian church, Greenup, Ky., where he continued as pastor the following four years. He was later two years at Grayson in Northeast Kentucky, removing from there to Terrell, Texas, where he was pastor of the Christian church two years, when he resigned, accepting a call to McKinney, Texas, from which place, after three years, he removed to Austin, the capital of that state, where he served as pastor two years. From Austin he removed to Springfield, Mo., where he remained as pastor of the Christian church the following six years, and although all the churches of which he had charge were greatly enriched in spiritual and material wealth during his pastorate (two of his congregations building a church during his administration) it was at Springfield his efforts were crowned with the most marked success. During his pastorate of this church there were 500 additions. When he resigned, the membership being over 700. At the request of the State Board, who felt the denomination should have a strong representative in the pulpit of the Capital City, he came to his present charge. Rev. Pinkerton was married October 7, 1869, to Miss Katherine S. Patterson, of Lexington, Ky., a lady of culture and refinement whose rare Christian graces are continuously and actively used in the interest of the noble cause which engages the life work of her husband. This union has been blessed with seven children; Margaret Bell is now the wife of E. N. Ferguson, cash of the Springfield Savings Bank. William Ward engaged in the cattle business and farming in N. Mexico. Louis L. is a plumber at Springfield, Mo. John S. is a book-keeper in the Springfield, Mo. Savings Bank. Miss Helen Gartfield is studying stenography, while Mabel Allen and Ella Lee are attending the public schools of this city. Rev. Pinkerton is endowed with a bright, broad mind, which has been added, in addition to the advantage of a good education, a large experience with the world, both as a professional man in the law and general business. As a result of his large and varied experience in secular affairs, he is broad and liberal, and puts to practical use in his ministerial work the topics and events which are engaging the attention of the people of today. He is a member of the Jefferson City Lodge No. 43, A. F. & A. M., of which he is chaplain. He is also president of the Single Tax League of Jefferson City and a most earnest and intelligent supporter of the theories advocated by Henry George, and not only a very intelligent and forceful talker on this and other issues of the day, but an able expounder of the ideas advanced by that great writer on social problems. His work at this place has been attended with even and substantial growth. The Christian church will doubtless continue to be greatly strengthened by his presence, and most likely at an early day have their church home greatly enlarged and improved, the building not now being adequate for the congregation nor in keeping with the aggressive and enterprising spirit of that great Christian organization, of which he is a most worthy and able expounder.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

In June, 1834, Rev. Robert L. McAfee organized an Old School Presbyterian church in Jefferson City with the following charter members: William Bolton, Samuel L. Hart, Thomas G. Hart and Mesdames Mary Rutherford, Ann T. Hart, Catharine L. Hart, Ann E. Hart and the following servants of Samuel L. Hart: William, Putnam, Dick, Polly and Maria. Mr. McAfee remained the spiritual advisor of this small band of earnest Christians until 1843, when he was succeeded by Rev. H. O. Goodrich, D. D., who remained one year, his successors being Rev. David Coulter, Richard H. Allen and John G. Fackler. Rev. L. D. Longhead was the next pastor and he was followed by Rev. John J. Cook, who continued in charge until 1860. During the tragic period of the war of the Rebellion, if any service, there was no record preserved. In June, 1865, the surviving trustees were authorized to sell the church property, which was purchased by the M. E. church North. This disposition of the church property seemed the passing of this church organization from the religious field of the Capital City, however, several unsuccessful attempts were made to revive the organization, but the remaining struggling sparks became extinct and now it exists only in history. February 4, 1866, Rev. A. T. Norton, D. D., organized a church with twelve members, all of whom were formerly with the old school organization. Rev. J. Addison Whittaker took charge of this earnest band (1866) and was, in 1873, succeeded by Rev. W. G. Keady, who remained in charge two years, after which the congregation was without a spiritual leader nearly ten years, no services being held except the Sabbath school and an occasional preaching by Rev. B. H. Charles during the years of 1878-9, after which this organization suffered the fate of its predecessor and passed from its declining existence to history. In September, 1883, Rev. Thomas Marshall, Synodical Missionary, brought together the present organization, special service being held in 1885 by Rev. Wm. H. Claggett, who was succeeded by Rev. O. W. Gauss, who remained five years. In 1890 the Rev. J. F. Watkins became the pastor, continuing until 1894, when he was succeeded by Rev. Geo. H. Williamson, under whose administration the present beautiful edifice on the corner of McCarty and Madison, was erected. The auditorium is substantially finished in polished oak with elegant stained glass windows, the ceiling and general arrangement, interior and exterior, being gothic. An elegant pipe organ assists the very excellent choir in filling the spacious room with triumphant harmony. In addition to the well appointed auditorium, there is a well furnished chapel, pastor's study, church parlors and other conveniences for the Sunday school, prayer meeting and the various auxiliaries of the church. The spiritual affairs are at present in charge of Rev. John F. Hendy, D. D., (see biographical sketch opposite page) and under whose able, earnest and well directed efforts the church has been growing in spiritual strength and numbers since his coming in 1896. In addition to the regular and usual services there is an excellent

First Presbyterian Church.

Sunday school, of which Mr. O. G. Burch is superintendent; prayer meetings are regular and well attended, the ladies societies are earnest and active, the united efforts of the members accomplishing every good work they undertake. This church is a great factor for good in Jefferson City, the congregation includes a number of its most prominent and wealthy citizens.

REV. J. F. HENDY, D. D.

Rev. John Fenton Hendy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Jefferson City, was born in North Ireland, August 23, 1837. His parents were Francis and Martha (Molyneux) Hendy, the father was in the linen industry, one for which that country is famous. In 1841, the family emigrated to America, and settled on a farm in Kenton county, Kentucky, where the father was a farmer. The early education of the subject of this sketch was in the neighboring schools, at the age of twenty he entered Centre, the famous college of Danville, Ky., from which institution he graduated class of '62. In the fall of the same year, he entered the Theological department of the University at Princeton, New Jersey, graduating class of '65. In 1864, he was licensed by the Presbytery at Augusta, Ky., and in 1865, he was ordained in the Second church of Covington, where he was one year pastor. He was transferred from Covington to the churches of Crittenden and Lebanon in Grant county, Ky., where he spent two years. From there in 1867, in response to a call, he removed to Vincennes, Indiana, where his services as pastor were attended with happy results the following five years. During his stay he was tendered the presidency of Vincennes University, which he declined. In 1872, he removed to Owensboro, Kentucky, where he was the spiritual advisor of the First church the nine years following, and which under his able and earnest efforts trebled in numbers, the church being remodeled, greatly improved and enlarged. During his ministry at this place he was five months in Europe during 1880. In 1881, he responded to a call to the pulpit of the First church of Emporia, Kan., where, in addition to the duties of pastor of the church, he was president of the New Presbyterian College, the exacting duties of which, one year later, required his resignation as pastor of the church. Here he remained ten years, and in addition to the duties of directing the educational affairs of the institution, he was its financial director, which included the raising of a large sum of money; $50,000 of which, by the exercise of his strong personal, backed by a good cause, he was able to gather from the wealthier people of the older settled eastern states. During his administration, magnificent buildings were erected at a cost of $90,000, the money being raised by his earnest and well directed efforts. In 1892, on account of failing health, a result of his over-taxing and continuous efforts in behalf of the college, he was determined to resign. He then made a second visit to Europe for the double purpose of recreation and adding to the treasures of his already richly stored mind. On returning, he was again called to active duties of the educational work, as president of the Presbyterian Female College of Oswego, Kansas. Here his three years' stay resulted in many improvements and clearing a debt of $10,000, after a rest and a third trip to Europe following his resignation from this college, he accepted a call to his present charge in 1896. On December 5, 1865, he was united in marriage to Nannie, daughter of John Allen McClure, a prominent farmer and planter of Grant county, Kentucky. To this union has been born three children; William Rankin, the eldest, a graduate of "Harvard," is a prominent and successful surgeon in Chicago; the second child (a lady of rare mental favors and highly cultured, having spent two years in Europe in the completion of her education being in addition to an accomplished German, French and English linguist, an exquisite performer on the violin) is the wife of G. F. Swezey, a prominent and rising young minister now at East Palestine, Ohio. Edwin M. is deputy state veterinary surgeon of Missouri, his home being in Jefferson City. Dr. Hendy is remarkably well preserved. His fine physique with his ruddy presence and refined face coupled with his rare mental favors (which have been so greatly enriched by study, work and travel) make of him a most distinguished and interesting character. In conversation, the evidence of the riches stored in his bright and receptive mind, are made vivid when he speaks of Rome and its wonders; his familiarity with the great Masters' productions in painting and sculpture; his interview with the Pope and his experiences when surrounded by the slabs which pay tribute to the immortal names sheltered by Westminster Abby. We can only suggest the happy experiences of one who is so fortunate as to be with him when in the theatre of his brain are called upon the stage by suggestion, these scenes which he places before his hearers in such vivid and well chosen words. The First Presbyterian church of this city is fortunate in securing such an eminent and intelligent character as their spiritual advisor. His home, with his interesting and cultured wife, is 306 Dunklin street.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN TRINITY CHURCH.

The Evangelical Lutheran Trinity church was organized August 21, 1870, by seven charter members. As early as 1847 Lutherans, especially from Bavaria, Germany, had settled in the city and vicinity, and were provided with the word of God and sacrament by ministers of the Missouri Synod. The first of these was Rev. Kolb, who, finding a new field of labor in Indiana, was succeeded by Rev. Wege. The next in charge was Rev. C. Thurow, now in Milwaukee, Wis. In the meantime there was a division in the church, resulting in two congregations. The first stationary minister, after its organization, was Rev. J. J. Walker (1874-1875), now serving a congregation in Cleveland, Ohio; he was succeeded by Rev. H. Wesche, now in St. Louis county, who continued for twelve years (1875-1887), doing excellent work. His successor was Rev. H. Koepfel, one of the most able ministers, serving one year, when he accepted the directorship of Concordia College, where he has continued since. He was succeeded by Rev. H. Rohlfing, who died a few months later, and was succeeded by Rev. C. Purzner. It was largely due to his efficient work that the magnificent new church building on the corner of Monroe and McCarty streets was erected. This church was dedicated in November, 1896, the dedicatory sermon being preached by Rev. H. Wesche of St. Louis county, who served the same congregation from 1875 to 1887. In 1897 Rev. Purzner accepted a call to Egypt Mills, Cape Girardeau county, Mo., where he is still stationed, his successor being the present pastor, Rev. Fred. Meyer.

The congregation has grown from six to 598 members, of which about 325 are communicants and 65 are voting members; that is, male adults who have signed the constitution. Their church building is 40 by 70 feet, with annexes in the rear, one being the altar niche and the other a sacristy. The interior is finished in highly polished oak. The main steeple has a height of 95 feet from the foundation exclusive of the ornament. In addition to this large church building, the congregation owns the northeast corner of McCarty and Monroe streets, which is used for school purposes. They are enabled to carry out their desire to have the children taught their mother tongue (the German) as well as their native language (the English). The school is now in charge of H. H. Beiderwieden; the average attendance is seventy-five pupils. They also own the comfortable parsonage on East McCarty street, where the pastor with his family resides.

The present officers of the church are: F. Meyer, President; H. H. Beiderwieden, Secretary and Organist; F. H. Niernan, Treasurer; John M. Sommerer, Collector; J. L. Beck, Hugo Busch and Martin Beck, Deacons; Chas. Loesch, Chas. Purzner and Henry Vogel, Trustees. Rev. Meyer is superintendent of the Sunday school.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

H. W. EWING.

Henry Watkins Ewing was born in Richmond, Ray county, Mo., July 4, 1849, was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, where he graduated from the high school with the highest honors of his class, later graduating at the Missouri State University at Columbia, 1872, being the valedictorian of the class, and receiving the orator's medal. He completed the law course at Columbia, and was admitted to practice, but on the death of his father, in 1873, was elected clerk of the Supreme Court (a circumstance which changed the course of his life and took from the bar one of its most intellectual and promising members). He was elected and served four terms in this important position, resigning after a continuous service of eighteen years. In 1884 he purchased a controlling interest in the Tribune Printing Company and became its president and the editor of the daily and weekly Tribune, which, under his skillful and able direction, assisted by his great personal influence, became one of the strongest elements in guiding the course of Democracy in the State. He continued the head and director of this powerful organ of Democracy until his death, at Battle Creek, Michigan (where he had gone two weeks previous to seek relief), September 1, 1898. Mr. Ewing was a distinguished representative of one of the most intellectual and cultured families of the State, and one of exceptional social and political influence. His father, Judge E. B. Ewing, was secretary of State, attorney-general, circuit judge and twice Supreme judge. His mother, Elizabeth Allen Ewing, whose home is on East Main street, this city, is a sister of Governor Henry Allen Watkins of Louisiana, for whom he was named. His accomplished and devoted wife (a lady of rare culture and personal beauty), who survives him, was Miss Mattie V. Chappell of Jefferson City. His brothers-in-law are prominent in social, political and financial circles. They are F. M. Cockrell, now nearly thirty years United States Senator from Missouri; Hon. Phil. E. Chappell of Kansas City, a prominent and wealthy financier; Judge J. L. Smith, presiding judge of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, one of the ablest jurists of the State; the recently deceased Hon. John R. Walker of Kansas City; Maj. T. O. Towles, deputy State superintendent of insurance, is the husband of his sister, Florence. Other members of the Ewing family in Jefferson City and in other parts of the State are prominent in financial, political and social circles. One of his most intimate friends and political class-mates was the versatile Eugene Field, the children's poet. Also his class-mates at the State University were Hon. James E. Cooney, at present a member of Congress; Judge Switzler of Omaha; Prof. T. A. Johnson of Boonville; Roswell M. Field of Chicago, and a number of others who have since become distinguished. The lamented Hon. Richard P. Bland was a most devoted friend, Mr. Ewing having in charge his campaign when a candidate for the nomination for president before the Chicago convention. He was for many years a member of the Missouri Press Association, and its president one term, 1896 and 1897. Mr. Ewing needs none of the cold conceits of sculptured marble to preserve his memory to the people of Jefferson City and the State. When you ask one in Jefferson City to tell you something of Henry Ewing, you can see an expression cover the face which tells plainly that in speaking of Henry Ewing, those who knew him intimately, feel keenly the inefficiency of words to express the love and high esteem in which they hold dear the memory of this manly man. With many unbidden tears will start when your questions recall recollections of his handsome form, pleasant face, genial and courtly manners, kind and gentlemanly deportment. He was loved and honored most by those who knew him best. The noble traits of his character and his generous and manly heart did not confine its benefactions to his immediate family, but all who came within range of the sunshine of his presence received a blessing, and those who needed material assistance were not denied. He was a scholar, journalist and political counselor, eminent among Missourians, eloquent in speech, elegant in presence, never an office-seeker, but a powerful influence in the support of his friends, to whom he gave his unswerving devotion. He had the courage of his convictions, but was always fair, chivalrous in battle, and those who opposed his views could not but love him and admire his noble qualities. His name will long live in memory, honored with kindly recollections of the incidents of his generous and noble life, which are too numerous to even mention in this short article. His surviving widow, unwilling to endure her sorrow in the stately and hospitable home, "Schoenburg," in the south suburbs of this city, after the departure of the loved and congenial companion, whose presence made it a place of joy, removed to Kansas City, where, near her brother and other dear relations, she makes her home, with her four interesting children, of whom the eldest, Miss Mary, is just ripening into the beauties of a cultured and refined woman; Dorothy, of the interesting age of six, and two sons, Clay and Jack, bright youths of 15 and 13.

A. P. GRIMSHAW.

Arthur P. Grimshaw, Mayor of Jefferson City, was born in Nottingham, England, Jan. 20, 1849. His parents, Jonathan and Eliza Maria (Topham) Grimshaw, came to this country when he was an infant, stopping in St. Louis, after six years removing to Jefferson City. Here the subject of this sketch received the educational advantages afforded by the city schools, after which he attended Wyman's University of St. Louis, where he graduated, in 1861. He then accepted a position with the United States Express Company as messenger on the Missouri Pacific, between St. Louis and Atchison, Kansas, in which capacity he served 18 years, and was then made cashier of the United States Express office at Atchison. Resigning this position, he was appointed assistant postmaster of Jefferson City under Capt. Steininger during President Harrison's administration, serving one year. He was elected County Clerk, in 1884, to fill an unexpired term of two years, and again elected, in 1886, for full term. He was appointed joint agent for the Pacific and United States Express Companies to succeed his father, Jonathan Grimshaw, in 1890, in connection with which he is ticket agent for the Chicago and Alton Railroad at Jefferson City. In 1891 he was elected mayor of the city, serving two terms of two years each, and after an interval of four years, the citizens feeling the need of his efficient services, he was again elected to this important office. He was the first president of the Commercial Club of Jefferson City, and was one of the leading spirits in its organization; was the first superintendent of the Jefferson City Bridge and Transit Company, serving two years.

He is a Mason, member of the Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery. Is an active member of the Grace Episcopal church, of which he is treasurer. Mr. Grimshaw was married September 20, 1870, in Huntsville, Ohio, to Miss Juliette, daughter of Kemp Goodlow Carter, a native of Richmond, Va. Their two sons, Kemp Goodlow and Arthur Perry, are owners and proprietors of the Grimshaw Brothers Grocery, of Jefferson City.

Mr. Grimshaw is a broad, practical business man, whose worth is appreciated and recognized by the Capital City, of which he is now the official head. His recent message to the council is one of the cleanest, most practical documents which has come under our observation. His home is 816 E. High st.

H. J. DULLE.

Henry J. Dulle, president of the G. H. Dulle Milling Co., and president of the First National bank, was born in Jefferson City, June 7, 1848. His parents were Girard H. and Anna Maria (Haake) Dulle, natives of Hanover, Germany. He was educated in the public schools and St. Peter's parochial school of this city, and in his early life engaged in farming with unusual success. He continued farming until 1868, when he and his half brother, J. W. Schulte, entered the mill of his father, G. H. Dulle, whose death occurred in 1885, when the G. H. Dulle Milling Company was organized, he being made president, in which position he has continued since.

Mr. Dulle has been honored by the county with a number of important official positions. He is a Republican in politics and served as deputy collector under his father (1884-1888), was elected as collector, serving four consecutive terms; after which he devoted his time and attention to the mill until 1894, when he was elected presiding judge of the County Court (1894-1898), during which time the new magnificent County Court House was built and many other improvements were made in the county. He now devotes most of his time looking after the interests of the mill and the First National bank, of which he has been a director for many years, and is now president.

Mr. Dulle is vice-president and stockholder of the J. B. Bruns Shoe Company, a stockholder and director of the Jefferson City Bridge & Transit Co., a stockholder in the Jefferson City Brick Co., also of the Jefferson City Building & Loan Association, a member of the Commercial Club. He is an active member of St. Peter's church, of which he has served as treasurer many years, a member of the Catholic Knights of America and of St. John's Orphan Society, of which he is one of the trustees.

He was married October 3, 1870 to Miss Tracy Peschel, daughter of Wenzel and Mary Peschel, natives of Austria. Of the children born to this union, the eldest, Edward H., is book-keeper for the J. B. Bruns Shoe Co., Theodore W., is book-keeper for the First National Bank. Mary Clara is the wife of J. Herman Bruns, secretary and treasurer of the J. B. Bruns Shoe Co., Victor died at the age of fifteen months, Emma and Edith are at home, Anna, Henry J., jr., Joseph B. and Rosa are students at St. Peter's Parochial school. His comfortable home is on his well improved farm in the west suburbs of the city.

O. G. BURCH.

One of the most substantial citizens of Jefferson City is Oscar G. Burch, cashier of the First National Bank. He was born December 30, 1841, in Cayuga county, N. Y., on a farm, where he remained until 12 years of age, attending the neighboring district schools. He then removed with his parents to Kentucky, and in a few months removed to northeast Missouri (Athens and Waterloo, Clark county), afterwards to Keokuk, Iowa (1858-1862). He enlisted (August 15, 1862) in the 19th Iowa Infantry Volunteers, Co. A., under Capt. John Bruce. Was actively engaged in the field at the battle of Prairie Grove, Ark. (Dec. 7, 1862), the siege and surrender of Vicksburg (July, 1863), and was a prisoner of war from September 29, 1863, till July 22, 1864. He was a member of an expedition against Mobile in East Pascagoula (Jan., 1865); in the siege and capture of the Spanish Fort and the adjacent works (April, 1865). In 1864 he was commissioned Lieutenant of Co. G., and was made Sergeant Major at Prairie Grove, Ark., when Col. McFarland (who was in command of the regiment) was killed. He was honorably discharged at Mobile, Ala. (July 10, 1865), and was mustered out of service at Davenport, Iowa (July 31, 1865). He came to Jefferson City in August where he was appointed assistant State Librarian. He was then made deputy under his brother, Nelson C. Burch, who was clerk of the Supreme Court under the administration of Gov. Thos. C. Fletcher. At the expiration of this term, he engaged in the real estate and insurance business, which he has continued since, his sons, N. C. and Edson Burch, having charge of the office. He was associate editor of the State Journal, a daily and weekly (Republican), being the first daily paper regularly published (by N. C. Burch, sr.) in Jefferson City. He was also reporter and correspondent for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat many years. He was appointed public administrator by the Democratic county court, the duties of which office he discharged with credit to himself and satisfaction to those who honored him. He was elected city assessor of Jefferson City one term, and was postmaster (1877-1881) under President Hayes; and continued until the death of President Garfield. At the expiration of this office, he engaged actively in the real estate and insurance business until August, 1882, when he was made book-keeper of the First National Bank, under H. C. Lambert, cashier, continuing two years (Aug. 1, 1884), when he was elected cashier, which important position he has held since. Mr. Burch was united in marriage to Miss Mary E. Hart, of Keokuk, Iowa, March 22, 1866, at Catlettsburg, Kentucky. This union has been blessed with five children, three sons and two daughters: O. E. Burch is secretary and treasurer of the Burch-Berendzen Grocer Co. of Jefferson City; Nelson C., abstractor and manager of the real estate and conveyance business of O. G. Burch agency; Edson L., secretary of the New Cole County Building and Loan Association and assistant manager of his father's real estate and insurance agency. His two charming daughters, Misses Edith and Asenath, are at home with their parents. Mr. Burch is a direct descendant of a brother and a co-patriot of Gen. Nathaniel Green of Revolutionary fame. Mrs. Burch's ancestors, on her father's side were closely related to Israel Putnam, also a prominent figure in the Revolutionary war. Mr. Burch is a member of the G. A. R., a Republican in politics, an active, earnest member of the Presbyterian church, and has been many years superintendent of the Sunday School, and has been and is one of the greatest factors in bringing that church through its financial trials and to its present high condition of usefulness. Mr. Burch was for 14 years a member of the Board of Regents of Lincoln Institute. He is treasurer of the Jefferson City Building and Loan Association, of which he was a charter director, and is also treasurer of the Home Building and Loan Association. His home is 904 Jefferson street.

GEN. H. CLAY EWING.

General Henry Clay Ewing, president of the Exchange Bank of Jefferson City, was born August 15, 1828, in this city, where he grew to manhood, and has continued, most prominently identified with its interests since. His early education was in the public schools of this county. Following the legal bent of his mind, he studied law under his father Judge Robert A. Ewing. His mother was Jane Ramsey, a daughter of General Jonathan Ramsey, one of the pioneers of Missouri, having immigrated to this State in 1817 from Kentucky. In 1852 he was admitted to the bar by Judge G. W. Miller. He was early associated in his legal practice with Judge E. L. Edwards, and later a number of years with J. L. Smith (now presiding judge of the Kansas City Court of Appeals and one of the most eminent jurists of the State), the firm being Ewing & Smith. Such was the popularity and reputation of this firm that they were employed on one side of every case before the Supreme Court of Jefferson City one term. He was one of the organizers of the Exchange Bank, of which he is now president. He was also a stockholder and president of the Osage Live Stock Company, which still owns 5,000 acres of land in Osage county, is president of the Osage Ice Company, which did business at Osage City. He was associated with P. E. Chappell, J. L. Smith and others in the Hesperian Cattle Company of Texas, was president of the Jefferson City Land Company which operated largely in Kansas City, and a number of other important financial interests have been guided largely by the councils of his well balanced mind. In addition to his prominence and activity as a lawyer, he was attorney-general of Missouri during the term of Governor Woodson, his administration of the office reflecting credit on himself and the judgment of those who honored him with the important trust. He represented Cole county in the State Legislature one term, and was a commissioner of the Supreme Court of the State. He served in this important capacity (which was really that of Supreme judge) two years, his associates being Judge John F. Phillips, at present United States district judge of Kansas City, and the distinguished Judge Alexander Martin, now dean of the law department of the State University at Columbia. In this position his legal ability and long experience as a practitioner were evidenced in the able councils and decisions made while on the bench. When attorney-general he instituted and conducted with marked skill and ability the great suit of the State of Missouri to set aside the questionable sale of the Missouri Pacific railroad, made by the Republican administration under Gov. Fletcher. His distinguished associates in the case being Hon. Britton A. Hill and Frank Bowman. Mr. Ewing was united in marriage Dec. 12, 1855, to Miss Georgia, daughter of Walter G. and Emily A. Chiles of Glasgow, Missouri, in which place the father was a prominent merchant. Mrs. Ewing is a niece of the late Gen. Sterling (Pap) Price. General Ewing, during his long residence in the city of his nativity, has been a prominent figure in its material and intellectual progress. His intelligent and earnest opposition to the removal of the capital was marked and effective. He killed the bill for a proposition to submit the question to the voters when a member of the Legislature, and it was from his well poised legal mind came the able documents which presented the legal phase in opposition to the measure. His active opposition to the removal continued until the important question was finally settled. General Ewing is a consistent member of the M. E. church (South) of this city, of which he is a steward. He is a man of broad mind and liberal culture, with a rich and varied experience and a reputation as a citizen, lawyer and scholar second to none in the State. We quote the words of a few eminent men who know him intimately. Former Adjutant General John B. Waddill said of him:

"Judge H. Clay Ewing is a lawyer of ability, a jurist of experience, a more capable and upright citizen is not in the State." Former Governor Proctor Knott of Kentucky: "H. Clay Ewing is not only a gentleman of the highest moral character, but one whose native ability and profound legal qualities have eminently fitted him for the exalted position of Supreme judge. I am able to say this from an intimate, personal acquaintance of more than twenty years." Hon. Phil. E. Chappell of Kansas City, former State treasurer, said of him: "After fifteen years intimate acquaintance I can say of him, he is an honest, noble and just man, professionally at the head of the bar of the State." Dr. S. S. Laws, former president of the Missouri State University: "I had the honor to know Judge H. Clay Ewing as a curator of the University, as attorney-general of our State, as a member of the General Assembly, and in his judicial capacity on the Supreme bench as commissioner, and from a close observation, I cannot be mistaken in stating that in him I find the Jeffersonian qualifications for official trust, honesty, competence and fidelity." Col. D. H. Armstrong, former United States Senator from Missouri: "I have known H. Clay Ewing quite intimately nearly twenty years. He has held many positions of honor and trust by the votes of his fellow citizens, and in all of them he has discharged the various duties imposed honestly, faithfully and satisfactorily to the people." Former Governor Charles H. Hardin: "H. Clay Ewing of Jefferson City is a gentleman of high social standing, unimpeachable character, and a lawyer of large and varied experience, and a popular and sound jurist. He has exceptional capacity and learning in the law, and is a man eminently distinguished for his ability and integrity." Judge John F. Phillips, once chief justice of the Court of Appeals of Kansas City, Missouri: "He is an able lawyer, a wise and conscientious judge, whose character is above reproach and whose integrity is immovable." Hon. John B. Hale, a member of Congress from the Second district: "He is a man of rare character and exceptional legal attainments." Judge Robert D. Ray, formerly on the Supreme bench of Missouri: "I have known General Ewing for many years as an able and experienced lawyer, a gentleman of high character, of unquestioned personal integrity and professional standing." Judge J. L. Smith, presiding judge of the Court of Appeals: "He is a thoroughly accomplished, learned, able and upright lawyer and jurist." Hon. John W. Henry, ex-judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri: "He is a lawyer of high standing, having served with distinction as attorney-general of the State, and more recently as a member of the Supreme Court Commission. The manner in which he discharged the duties of the latter office was entirely satisfactory to every member of the court and to the bar of the State, and through his term of service he not only sustained, but added to his reputation as a lawyer of ability, and demonstrated his possession of all the qualities requisite to fit one for a high judicial position." The home of General Ewing, with his cultured wife, is No. 117 West High street.

F. W. ROER.

Francis William Roer, county clerk of Cole county, was born in Jefferson City, August 31, 1859, his early education being in the schools of his native city, and later attended the celebrated school at Muenster, Germany. From the latter school in 1874 he returned to Jefferson City, and was engaged for 12 years with Mr. H. Bockrath, now president of the Bockrath Shoe Company, as a grocer's clerk, after which he engaged in the business of life and fire insurance in partnership with his father under the firm name of Francis Roer & Son, until the death of the former in 1888, since which time he has continued the business on his own account. He was city collector one term and served as a member of the city council. While city collector he was elected county clerk in 1889, to which office he has been re-elected a second time, his present term being the third. He was married June 3, 1891, to Miss Anna A., daughter of Herman Tihen of this city. There has been born to this union four children, Helen Mary, Marie Elizabeth, Sophia Hermine and Francis William Joseph, whose interesting presence adds much to the pleasure of his comfortable home, No. 222 Madison street; it being the home of his birth and continuously since. Mr. Roer is a fine specimen of physical manhood, a good business man and citizen. The appreciation of his sterling qualities by the citizens of Cole county is attested by his continued re-election to the important position he holds. His majority, when first elected, was 124, the second time 185, while at the last election it was 510.

MAJ. W. H. LUSK.

Maj. Wm. H. Lusk, for thirty years the Circuit Clerk and Ex-Officio Recorder of Deeds of Cole county, is one of the most interesting characters of Jefferson City. He was born in Cumberland county, Pa., on the 5th of September, 1827, the son of William and Mary (Fitzsimmons) Lusk, natives of Pennsylvania, his earlier ancestors coming from Ireland. Both the Lusk and Fitzsimmons family are prominent in the history and traditions of this country from its early settlement. The records of the War Department show that Wm. Lusk, the grandfather, was in active service in the Revolutionary struggle for the freedom of the Colonies, and his father in the war of 1812, was a participant in the memorable battle of Landy's Lane. Removing in 1839 to Missouri he settled on a farm in Moniteau, then a part of Cole county. In 1840 he removed with his family to Jefferson City and purchased of the late Judge E. L. Edwards, the "Inquirer," continuing the paper in the cause of Democracy until his death. During this time young William, the subject of this sketch, was an apprentice in his father's office in which place he acquired his education. His brother became the proprietor of the paper on the death of his father, he continuing with him until reaching his majority, he acquired a proprietary interest and assumed editorial charge. During the Mexican war he served as a private in Capt. Jno. Knapp's Company "C," 1st Missouri infantry, and was on duty in the famous battle of Matamoros, and several others of equal prominence. Immediately preceding the war of the Rebellion, when the excitement in regard to slavery and secession was at its height he was advised by the Hon. Thomas H. Benton to adopt as his policy "unqualified support of the Union under all circumstances and launch out boldly on that line," advice most congenial to his ideas of patriotism and which he followed through the crisis, a course resulting in the loss of his plant and property, but which now reflects gloriously to his credit. In this crisis the spirit and patriotism of the people required direction; he followed the advice of the illustrious statesman and his own ideas of duty, boldly and fearlessly, although his actions at that time were not approved by the dominant spirits, it now forms a noble part of the history of those days. In the tragic event of '61 the paper went down, but the spirit of the impetuous Lusk, undaunted, turned to the duties of the field. He became the confidential correspondent of Frank P. Blair; later of the lamented Gen. Lyon (who fell at Wilson Creek), June 17, '61, he was mustered into active service as Captain of Company B, Col. Richardson's regiment, and was engaged in the field until October, when appointed assistant provost marshal, in which capacity he served until June, '62, when he was commissioned as a recruiting officer with the rank of lieutenant; raising four companies of volunteers, he was promoted to the rank of captain and assigned to Company E of the 10th Missouri Cavalry. On December 4th he was promoted to the rank of major of the regiment, which position he held until honorably discharged at Nashville, Tenn., July 2, 1865, at the close of the war. Notwithstanding Maj. Lusk was a Union man, and active in his opposition to its dissolution, he was and has continued to be a Democrat in politics until Bryan was nominated on a free-silver platform by the democratic party, when he voted for McKinley, and will continue to do so as long as the so-called democratic party endorses the treasonable platform of 1896. He was chairman of the Cole County Democratic Committee from '66 to '72. In '70 he was elected to the office of circuit clerk and continuously re-elected, filling the position thirty consecutive years. He was united in marriage October 2, 1856, to Miss Abbie Maria Burgess, a native of Kentucky, at St. Joseph, Mo. Of the son and daughter, the result of this union, James Abbie died in 1860; Mary Bell is the wife of Daniel Boone a prominent citizen of Kansas City, where she now resides. On June 9, '59, Maj. Lusk had the misfortune to lose by death his devoted wife. Twelve years later he was united in marriage in Pittsburg, Pa., to Christine Hager, a native of France, a lady of unusual culture and a most charming personality. Two children, now deceased, was the result of this union. Maj. Lusk is a member of the Jefferson City Lodge No. 43, A. F. & A. M., of the Prince of Peace Commandry No. 29, Knights Templar and Past Post Commander of the James A. Garfield Post, G. A. R. Department of Missouri. Since retiring from his office in '99, he has become largely interested in lead and zinc mining, having recently purchased the old Osage iron works with four hundred acres of land in Camden county, fifteen miles west of Linn Creek, the county seat, and which promises to be very profitable. Maj. Lusk is one of the active, enterprising citizens of Jefferson City, not only assisting its progress with his influence and intelligent efforts, but contributing largely from his private means when the occasion required the sacrifice. He was unusually liberal with his time and money in the canvass opposing the removal of the capital, and also one of the most active and intelligent workers in securing the present magnificent Court House of the county. Maj. Lusk served his country faithfully in the war for the preservation of the Union, which his grandfather and father fought to establish, and in addition, has done his duty most credibly as a citizen in all the relations of life.

JUDGE H. M. SMITH.

Judge Henry Marion Smith, presiding judge of the Cole County Court, was born in Clark township, Cole county, on a farm near Hickory Hill, June 23, 1848, where he was raised and educated in the neighboring schools. His parents were Henry and Elizabeth Smith, who came to Missouri from Kentucky at an early date. Judge Smith had the misfortune to lose his father when he was 10 years of age. At the age of 22 he bought a farm three miles east of his mother's home, which he conducted with marked financial success seven years, at which time his brothers and sisters, having married and left home, he sold this farm and purchased the old home, around which clustered the memories of his early associations. Here he has continued since a most successful farmer, and in addition, dealing largely in live stock. He was married January 16, 1870, to Miss Mary J., daughter of William Reavis, a farmer of Cole county. Of the children born to this union, James Carney Smith is a prominent farmer and stock dealer, living near his father; Laura is the wife of Alonza Hendly, also a farmer in the same neighborhood; Miss Leona died at the age of nineteen. Arthur and Willie (ages nineteen and sixteen) are at home assisting on the farm when not attending school. Judge Smith has been for thirty years a member of the Baptist church at Hickory Hill and many years deacon of the organization. He was elected district judge in 1886, serving one term and was fourteen years a justice of the peace of Clark township. He served as road overseer several years and has been a school director virtually all of his life. In 1898 he was elected presiding judge of Cole county, in which position he is at present serving. He is an active and influential Democrat of Cole county and has been for many years. He is well preserved physically and mentally and one of the substantial and leading citizens of Cole county, who has acted his part well and credibly in all the relations of life.

JUDGE VICTOR ZUBER.

Judge Victor Zuber, at present county judge of Cole county from the First district, was born September 3, 1841, at Solothurn, in the Republic of Switzerland (a country made familiar to every school boy by the fascinating traditions of the patriot William Tell, from which place his parents immigrated to the United States, starting in fall of 1851, arriving in February 1852. His father, Jerome Zuber, died in St. Louis while en route to Jefferson City. The subject of this sketch served an apprenticeship as a marble cutter under Fleming & Thompson, where he continued three years. In 1861 he responded to a call for volunteers, and enlisted in Company "B," Home Guards, the captain being Maj. Wm. H. Lusk. In 1862 he enlisted in Company "E," Tenth Missouri Cavalry (of which company he was also captain), in which regiment he continued in active service until the close of hostilities.

He was in a number of the battles of the tragic period of the war of the Rebellion. When mustered out of service in 1865, he returned to Jefferson City, but soon after engaged at the work of his trade as marble cutter for E. J. Bedwell of Boonville. In 1866 he opened a marble shop on his own account at Tipton, from which place the following year he removed to Jefferson City, where he established his present marble yard and works on Jefferson street, south of the Merchants' Bank, where he has continued since. Mr. Zuber was married in 1861 to Miss Louise, daughter of Joseph and Theresa Brenneisen, of Jefferson City. To this union has been born six children; Bernetta is the wife of Anthony Gallagher; Zerleda is now Mrs. Chas. H. Holt-schneider, and Mamie Katherine, Mrs. Edward Dulle, all of Jefferson City. Frank and Cletus are with the Bruns Shoe Company. One son, the fourth child, Emanuel, died at the interesting age of 4 years. Judge Zuber is a member of the Catholic church and of St. Peter's Benevolent Society. He is a man whose sterling worth has been recognized by the citizens of Jefferson City. For three years he was a member of the School Board and served about the same length of time as a member of the City Council. He occupied the important and responsible position of treasurer of Cole county four years and is at present county judge from the First district. He is a substantial citizen of the Capital City, a member of the Democratic party and give that powerful political organization his loyal support. His home is No. 306 South Jefferson street. He will be re-elected to his present office in November, having received the nomination at the Democratic primary without opposition.

JUDGE J. T. MUSICK.

Judge John T. Musick was born in Cole county Mo., December 11, 1841, on a farm twenty mile southwest of the Capital City, where he was raised his education being in the neighboring district schools. In 1861, being twenty years of age, he was drawn by the patriotic feeling engendered by the incidents attending the outbreak of the Civil war into the ranks of the army of what is now called the "Lost Cause." Enlisting in McKinzie's Company Parson's Brigade, was in active service the following three years. In 1864 he returned home, where he remained until 1865, when he purchased a farm in Clark township, on which he has continued a prosperous farmer since. In 1866 he was united in marriage to Marinda, daughter of John Simpson, a farmer of Cole county. Of the five children born to this union, the eldest, Ida, is the wife of Mart Hale, a farmer in Clark township. Dora is now the wife of J. H. Sullens, the present School Commissioner of Cole county, whose home is on a farm near Bass. Anna is a young lady at home. Eliza is attending school. Thomas Delaware, a young man just reaching his majority, is assisting his father on the farm. Judge Musick is a member of the Christian church. He is one of the substantial and successful men of Cole county, whose worth is recognized by the citizens of the commonwealth, who have honored him with the important office of Judge of the county court, in which position he is now serving a second term. He is a Democrat and gives that political organization his full and loyal support.

J. J. SOMMER.

Judge John J. Sommer, who occupies the important position of Probate Judge of this county, was born January 25, 1847, in Covington, Ky., where he was reared and educated. On reaching his majority, taking the advice of Horace Greely to "Go West, young man," he removed to this State where he taught school one term in a country district west of this city. The following year he taught at Osage City, where he continued to teach twenty-six consecutive years. Being a delegate to the Republican county convention which met in Jefferson City in '94 for the purpose of nominating county officials, he was, without any solicitation on his part, urged to accept the nomination for the office of Probate Judge, and although a Republican, he was elected the following fall and in '98 re-elected for a second term, without any electioneering on his part, notwithstanding most of the Democratic ticket was elected by several hundred majority. Judge Sommer was a Justice of the Peace about sixteen years, during the administration of which office he acquired the necessary legal qualifications for his present official duties. He was also School Commissioner of the county three successive terms. He was united in marriage April 6, 1874, to Miss Katherine, the daughter of Jacob Miller, a farmer of this county. He has two children, George J., a young man of good mind and habits, just attaining his majority, and Miss Octavia, his charming sister, a few years his junior, both of whom are with their parents. Judge Sommer, as is evidenced by his election, over a large Democratic majority a second term to his present important and sacred official position, is a man of sterling qualities, who has credibly performed his duties in all the relations of life.

MAJ. J. M. CLARKE.

Maj. Joseph Marcus Clarke, now deceased, was born June 4, 1814, in Bethel, O., in the county of Clearmont, the birthplace of the illustrious Gen. U. S. Grant. His father, Houton Clarke, was a native of Yorkshire, England, from which place, with his widowed mother, he came to America, locating in Virginia, the year preceding the outbreak of the Revolutionary war; here he grew to manhood when he removed to Ohio, being one of the early pioneers of that state. Of his family of three sons and four daughters, the subject of this sketch was the third child. He grew to manhood in the village of his birth where he obtained a good education in the common schools, and later excelled in the advanced studies of Halls Academy at Batavia, and before the age of 20 was a most successful teacher. When 21 he joined his brother in conducting the Illinois State Journal at Shawneetown, the third paper established in that state. At this time he also edited and published a semi-monthly literary journal, called the "Ladies Amulet." His brother, with whom he had been associated, sold his interest to Maj. Clarke, who continued to manage and edit both journals for two years; owing to the malarial district in that flat country and the confining and exacting duties of his business, his health failed, when he disposed of his newspaper plant and engaged in purchasing horses, for which he found a market in the state of Alabama, and later in Virginia, where he met Mrs. A. E. S. Ligon, whose companionship engendered a mutual love and respect, which resulted in marriage in 1835, after which he settled on a plantation in Amelia county, that state. The fatal shadow, consumption, entered this happy and prosperous home in 1843, its victim being the devoted wife. Maj. Clarke, in 1845 was married to the wife who survives him, Miss Lavenia Nunnely, and in October of the same year, removed to New Liberty, Owen county, Kentucky, where he engaged most successfully in merchandising until 1854, when he disposed of his interest and removed to Missouri, settling on a farm on the Osage river, near Castle Rock, which, with the aid of his slaves, he conducted most profitably until the commencement of the civil war. Soon after the war, in which he was exposed to many perils at the hands of robbers and marauding parties, he disposed of his farm and returned to Kentucky, where, for three years he edited and published the "Owen News" with marked financial success. But thinking Missouri offered a more inviting field for his ambitions and energetic manhood, he sold the "News," and in the autumn of 1874 returned and established his home in Jefferson City, where he continued until his death, December 7, 1889. He was the father of twelve children, none of whom are living, and only three reached maturity. Victoria died at the age of 18; Marcus L., the eldest son, was a successful merchant at Castle Rock, Osage county, but removed at the commencement of the war, in 1861, to Owen county, Ky., where he continued the mercantile business most successfully, accumulating a large property which, at his death, he left to his father, having previously liberally endowed a school in that state. Junius S., a son of his second marriage, a young man of excellent qualities of head and heart, a graduate in law and a successful practitioner, died in Jefferson City in 1878. Maj. Clarke, while a resident of Osage, represented that county two terms in the State Legislature. He was a man of culture, with an observing and analytical mind, peculiarly successful in every field as a financier, with a large and varied experience, his well-advanced mind, in the exercise of good judgment, able to gather from every enterprise pecuniary profit. He accumulated large wealth, a liberal portion of which he used in a philanthropic but untentative way. He gave to this city their valuable city building on the corner of Monroe and H streets. He was also the influence which established the Merchants' Bank and erected the building which they now own and occupy, the most imposing structure in the city. He was its largest stockholder and first president. He was also a stockholder and for many years president of the First National Bank, and owned a number of buildings in the city, among them, Clarke's Row on East Main. He had valuable farms in this and other states and was also a large property owner in the city of Chicago. It may be said of him that he was the founder of the Christian church of this place and the most liberal contributor to the building, leaving it an endowment of $1,000.00, the interest to be used in paying the pastor's salary. By his will he disposed of half of his wealth to different members of his family and various public bequests, leaving one-half to his congenial and devoted companion who survives him, living in the home on East Main, where for so many years she welcomed the coming and enjoyed the companionship of her most worthy and loving husband, a companionship which still exists in a happy and hallowed memory.

S. H. SONE.

Samuel H. Sone, whose portrait accompanies this sketch, was born on a farm in this county, near the capital city, February 16, 1850, where he continued until at the age of twenty-one he secured the contract for carrying mail from Jefferson City to Tusculum, the county seat of Milam county, in which business he continued, running stage in connection, ten years. He was united in marriage on August 10, 1876, to Miss Lena Haukestein of Tusculum, after which he engaged in farming, but on the death of his wife, which occurred a year later, he engaged in the livery business in Tusculum, in which he continued three years, when he was tempted, by the activity in real estate to enter that business at Aurora Springs. Retiring from this he spent a year in Kansas precting for a location, but the memory of his many friends of the blue grass pastures of Cole drew him to the home of his early life. Here he was deputy sheriff four years under F. B. Mahan, the present collector, and also deputy citizens of Cole county, having just received the nomination at the Democratic primary for the office of collector, to which important position he will certainly be elected in November.

G. C. FOWLER.

Green C. Fowler, the assessor of Cole county, is a native; was born on a farm near Bass, sixteen miles southwest of the Capital City, March 7, 1854, and was educated in the neighboring school. On reaching his majority he went to the state of Nevada, where he continued three years engaging in various occupations, most of the time, however, farming. Returning to Cole county and the home of his childhood near Bass, he remained there a farmer until 1892, when he was elected county surveyor. At the expiration of the term of this office was elected to the position which he now holds. Mr. Fowler was married March 6, 1870, to Miss Arminia, daughter of Wm. Henley of this county, whom he had the misfortune to lose by death August 9, 1892. Six children are the result of this union, all of whom are at home. The eldest, Miss Elva, a bright and accomplished young lady, being his assistant in the office. Mr. Fowler married a second time in 1893 to Mrs. Eliza Karr (nee Miss Amos), daughter of Benjamin Amos of this county, who is the mother of his youngest son, now 6 years four years under F. J. Fromme. In 1894 he was elected to the office of sheriff of Cole county and re-elected in 1896. At the expiration of the second term, he removed to his farm west of the city. He has a son, a bright and worthy young man of twenty-two, the result of his first marriage, who is now studying dentistry at St. Louis Dental College. Mr. Sone was married a second time in 1885 to Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins (nee Miss Stone) a grand-daughter of the Rev. John West, a prominent minister of the Old School Baptist church. As a result of this union he has four bright daughters, ages four to thirteen, who, together with his devoted wife, make a most charming family circle, his domestic relations in every respect being most happy. Mr. Sone is a genial, energetic man, who deserves credit for his success in the battle of life, as he was denied altogether the advantages of school, acquiring the education necessary to conduct the various business interests with which he has been connected, by his own effort, without the assistance of a teacher. He is a Democrat in politics, still in the prime of life, with many friends, and is likely to again occupy positions of honor and trust at the hands of the of age, having lost one (Robert) at the age of 1 year. Mr. Fowler is a member of the M. E. church South, and also of the elevating and refining social order I. O. O. F., having occupied all of the official positions in the local lodge, of which he is at present

Vice Guard. He is a sterling citizen, whose good qualities have drawn to him the warm friendship and esteem of those with whom he has been associated. While in Nevada he was nominated for the office of treasurer of Churchill county, but refused to make the race, and after his return to Cole he received the nomination for the important office of probate judge at the hands of the Democratic convention, which he also declined. His nomination and election for county surveyor came to him unsolicited and unexpected. His many friends are urging him to make the race again for assessor and other positions, which will be made vacant by the expiration of the terms the coming fall, but he refuses to run under any circumstances, having determined for the present to retire from official life. His father, W. F. Fowler, was judge of the Cole County Court 27 years. Mr. Fowler removed from his farm to his present comfortable home on South Jackson in 1892, where he now makes his home, surrounded by his interesting family.

F. H. REPHLO.

Frank Henry Rephlo was born in Cole county near Taos, December 11, 1842. His father, Bernard Rephlo was a native of Westphalia, Prussia; his mother, Helen Nieters of Hanover, Germany, from which places they immigrated to America in 1837. The father, Bernard Rephlo, was a stone mason and contractor, he helped to build the first Catholic church at Taos, the material used being logs; the second church which he also assisted to build was of stone, and the third (which now stands on the same historic spot) is of brick. From Taos he removed to Westphalia, Osage county, and while there built the stone church at that place. He was employed on the capitol building erected in Jefferson City in 1838. From Westphalia he removed to Jefferson City in 1850, where he opened a general store in a log house on the same ground on which now stands the substantial brick store and residence which F. H. Rephlo occupies. On the death of Bernard Rephlo in 1858, his widow took charge of the business and continued with the assistance of the son, Frank, (the subject of this sketch) who was then sixteen years of age. On the death of his mother in 1879, F. H. Rephlo succeeded to the business, which he has conducted most successfully since. In 1884 he erected the substantial building he now occupies, corner Main and Walnut streets. November 28, 1876, he was united in marriage to Josephine, daughter of Herman Haar, a stone mason and contractor of Jefferson City. Two sons have been born to this union, both of whom bright young men; the eldest, Joseph H., of excellent habits and good business training, is a messenger at the First National Bank; Louis S. is assisting in his father's store. Mr. Rephlo, in addition to his large mercantile interests, is a stockholder and director in the Merchants' Bank of Jefferson City and also a stockholder and director in the Jefferson City Building and Loan Association and a stockholder in the Bridge and Transfer Company and the Jefferson City Brick Company. He is also owner of a large amount of valuable residence property in the Capital City. He is a well balanced, smooth business man, has been eminently successful as a financier and is a worthy citizen in all the relations of life. He is a member of St. Peter's Church.

W. R. RICE.

William R. Rice was born September 15, 1831, near Russellville, Logan county, Kentucky. When six years of age he removed with his parents to St. Charles county, Missouri, from which place after one year they removed to Franklin county. When a youth the subject of this sketch left his father's farm, going to St. Louis, where he learned the blacksmith trade with an uncle, John Owens.

and with him removed to Springfield, the capital of Illinois, where he continued a blacksmith several years. He came to Cole county, Missouri, in 1851, first engaging in blacksmithing at Russellville, sixteen miles southwest of the Capital City. From there he soon removed to Jefferson City, where he had a blacksmith shop on High street where H. H. Zen's shoe store now is, remaining only a short time when he entered a farm on the Moreau, four n

South, where he conducted a blacksmith shop in connection with his farm. In 1882, selling this farm, he removed to a farm near Jefferson City, where he continued until 1899, when he sold his place and removed to Jefferson City. He was united in marriage in 1838 to Sarah Jane Gordon, and to this union were born ten children. Susan E. is now Mrs. Menteer and Mary F. is Mrs. B. Hampton. Both of Jefferson City; Eliza M. (deceased), James A. is a hotel keeper in West Plains, Howell county; Robert B. is a carpenter, living in Jefferson City; Martha A., who was Mrs. G. M. Bagby, is deceased; John T. is a miner in Jasper county; George W., a carpenter in Warrensburg, Johnson county; Julia A. is now Mrs. T. M. Hampton and Jefferson D. a blacksmith, both living in Jefferson City. Mr. Rice had the misfortune to loose his wife and the mother of his large family of children, while on the old farm, December 23, 1865. He was a worthy citizen who acted his part, though modestly, well and credibly on the stage of life, and although the early companion of his joys and sorrows preceeded him to the grave more than a third of a century, his affections were never given to another. He was a member of the M. E. Church South of Jefferson City. His death occurred at his home on East McCarty, Feb. 21, 1900.

H. F. SARMAN.

Henry Franklin Sarman was born on a farm near California, in Moniteau county, June 27, 1857, from which place his parents moved to St. Louis in 1861, where they remained during the war of the Rebellion, after which they returned, in 1865, to California, where the subject of this sketch remained until 17 years of age, attending the public schools of that town. In 1874 he came to Jefferson City for the purpose of learning the business of manufacturing cigars; the following five years he was with William Rose, after which he was three years with Wendell Stranb. In 1882 he engaged in the manufacture of cigars on his own account, running a retail business in connection, in which he handled tobacco and other articles usually associated with the business. His first place of business was No. 218 East High street, from which place, after one year, he removed to No. 205 East High, where he continued to do a prosperous and successful business until 1896, when he purchased his present valuable store and factory, No. 221 Madison. Mr. Sarman was united in marriage March 17, 1880, to Miss Frances J. Read, of Jefferson City, a daughter of G. W. Read, whose death left her an orphan in early childhood, when she was adopted and reared by an uncle, Capt. J. T. Rogers, a prominent citizen of Jefferson City. To this union has been born three children; Misses Bessie and Mamie, both approaching womanhood; Henry F., jr., the youngest, a lad of 10, is attending the public schools. Mr. Sarman is a member of the first Christian Science church, of which he is clerk, and was one of its organizers. He is also a member of the Cigarmakers Union and secretary of the local organization. He is one of the original members of the Single Tax League of Jefferson City, of which he is also treasurer. Mr. Sarman is a bright business man, his efforts in life having been attended with uniform success; he has, in addition to his established business and valuable business property, a good home, No. 225 East Main, all the result of his well directed industry. He has been a close student of the ideas advocated by Henry George on the subject of taxation, is well posted on the subject and active in his efforts to spread the truths so ably presented by that great writer on social problems.

P. J. DIERCKX, SR.

Peter J. Dierckx, sr., was born at Eclo, Belgium, April 5, 1828, from which place he immigrated at the age of nineteen to America, locating at Taos, in Liberty township, where he engaged in business of a general merchant. Two years later he returned to Belgium, coming again to America in 1850. June 22, 1852, he was united in marriage to Anna Helen Bekel in St. Francis church, Taos. There were born to this union eleven children; Henry Joseph, Charles L., Peter J., jr., Clem A., Emil J., August V., Otilia M., Sophia C., Joseph F. and Frank G., nine of whom are still living. Henry J. died September 20, 1888. One child died an infant. His wife, Mrs. Anna Helen Dierckx, still lives at the old home at Taos (a picture of which appears above,) where she is postmistress, this office having been continuously in the family since 1851, excepting two years during the Civil war. Mr. Dierckx was an excellent citizen and a successful financier, leaving his family at his death (April 20, 1886) a good estate, accumulated by his well-directed efforts. In addition to his fine business qualifications, Mr. Dierckx was an exceptionally good citizen, in his family, social and business relations. He was one of the prominent and leading democrats of Cole county and active and loyal in the support of that organization. In this respect, his sons, who survive him, follow in his foot-steps, taking an active interest in the success of the democratic party. He was a faithful member of the Catholic church. Mr. Dierckx met with heavy financial losses during the Civil war, and suffered many hardships; all the corn in his fields was taken by the Union soldiers, amounting to about 500 bushels, worth $1.25 per bushel, also a fine mare, which was returned after the war. In July, 1867, his barn was destroyed by fire, burning all his wheat, four horses and a good mule; wheat was worth at the time, $3.00 per bushel and flour $9.25 per 100 pounds. During the war he retired from commercial business, and did not resume until the above mentioned fire occurred, when he engaged again merchandising, from which he retired and returned to farming, his favorite pursuit, in which he continued until his death, at the age of fifty-seven years and fifteen days.

J. A. ELLIS.

James Abraham Ellis, the senior of the firm Ellis & Son, grocer merchants on East High, was born on a farm in the southern part of the two m prairie in Boone county, sixteen miles south of Columbia, April 26, 1851; his father, Elisha P. Ellis, being the only survivor of the five Ellis brothers who were leading and influential citizens of Boone county, to which his grandfather, Peter Ellis, emigrated from Virginia at an early age. His mother, Mary Jane Sheely, was the daughter of a prominent farmer of Callaway county. His education was in the neighboring district school, later attending the High school at Ashland, Mo. Soon after reaching his majority he engaged in farming on his own account, renting a place near the home of his birth. In this business he continued until 1873, when improved a fine piece of land one mile south of Ashland, which had been given to his wife by her father. This farm he conducted successfully until 1892, when he disposed of it and came to Jefferson City, where he was in the employ of the State at the prison until 1897, when he engaged in his present business. Mr. Ellis was married September 11, 1871, to Miss Margaret Z., daughter of Peter J. and Zeralda (Wiseman) Ruffner. To this union has been born two children, Clarence, a young man of good habits and excellent business qualities, is a partner with his father, as above stated, in the grocery business. Miss Nellie, an exceptionally sweet young lady, is a student at the High School. Mr. Ellis has been for many years a member of the A. O. U. W.; he and his wife are also members of the first Baptist church of this city, of which he is a trustee. Soon after coming to Jefferson City, Mr. Ellis purchased his comfortable home at No. 121 West McCarty, where he and his interesting family form a most charming and happy family circle. Of the charms of this home one of the most pleasant features is the mellow music furnished by the son and daughter, both of whom have excellent voices, Miss Nellie being also an accomplished performer on the piano.

H. A. SWIFT.

Horace Augustus Swift was born in Zanesville, Ohio, July 1, 1833, where he attended school until the age of 15. His father, Richard S. Swift, a native of New Jersey, owned a large flouring mill and a line of canal boats on the Ohio canal, used for shipping flour to New York, before the days of railroads. His mother was Sarah Senter, a native of New Hampshire. After leaving school, Mr. Swift worked in a wholesale notion store two years and later went to southern Ohio, working for an uncle on a farm. He then went to Portsmouth, Ohio, where he spent three years learning brick-masonry, teaching school in winter; from there he went to Jackson, Ohio, and engaged in contracting, being the contractor for the M. E. church, a large mill, a block of store buildings and a number of private dwellings. In 1855 he built a court house at McArthur's Town, Vinton county, and later at Point Pleasant, Va., (which was burned by United States soldiers during the war, but the vaults were so substantial not a paper was destroyed, and in rebuilding, the old walls were used). From Zanesville he went to Keokuk, Ia., in the fall of 1856, and after working at his business (contracting) two years, he came to Jefferson City (May 26, 1858), continuing in this business. In 1859 he built, under contract, two additions to the Lunatic Asylum at Fulton, Mo. He served a short time in the Home Militia. Mr. Swift was appointed warden of the Missouri penitentiary (January 4, 1865), by Gov. Fletcher, which position he held four years. He also served eight years as

Judge of the County Court, his majority at the election one term being 512. He was married December 1857, at Oconomowoc, Wis., to Miss Ada F. Jordan, of North Adams, Mass. To this union has been born six children; Emma is at home, Grace is the wife of W. S. Ferguson, foreman at Buxton & Skinner's, of St. Louis; Maude is the wife of E. E. Turner, roadmaster for the M., K. & T. at Mokane, Mo.; Albert D. is assistant postmaster of Jefferson City; Clysses S. died at the age of 26; Edson B. died in infancy. Mr. Swift is engaged in the ice business and farming. His elegant home is on his farm in the west suburbs of the city. He is a member of the M. E. church, the A., F. & A. M. and the A. O. U. W. He is a man of sound judgment, a patron of education and is deeply interested in all that concerns the welfare of his city and county. In filling his duties as County Judge he bent his energies to the improvement of the county roads and many miles of this much-needed work has been completed as a result. His influence contributed greatly to the successful completion of the substantial steel bridge across the Moreau creek, and he is ambitious for Cole county to rank first in Missouri in regard to modern improvements. Few men in Jefferson City have had so wide an experience as Mr. Swift or are blessed with a more liberal or progressive spirit; under his direction a number of the best buildings which adorn the Capital City were erected. He has often been called upon on account of his wide and broad experience, to inventory the State property at the penitentiary, in which capacity he has served four administrations. He has always been a generous and liberal supporter of every measure to advance the Capital City.

Lafayette D. Gordon, treasurer of Cole county, was born on a farm four miles south of Jefferson City, Mo., November 15, 1847. His education being in the district school near by. He worked on the farm until 1868. During 10 months of that year he carried mail on horse back from Jefferson City to Rolla. It required four days to make the round trip, and it is said during the entire time he did not miss a trip and was always on time. Soon after this he worked on a farm in Callaway county for wages, a few months he engaged in work at a saw mill. In 1872 he purchased a portion of the farm where he was born and reared to manhood, and there continued successfully until 1886, when he rented his farm (which he soon after disposed of) and removed to Jefferson City. Here he has continued to make his home. About a year previous to his removal to Jefferson City he engaged in burning lime, his kiln being three miles east of the city. The very excellent quality of the product of his kiln as it became known, resulted in a greatly increased trade. He continued to run his kiln, as stated above, three miles east of the city, the business management of which he conducts here in person. In 1888 he was elected a member of the City Council serving two years. In 1892 he was elected one of the School Board, in which office he continued three years. He was made one of the board of regents of the Lincoln Institute in 1897, of which he is still a member. In 1898 he received the nomination of the Democratic party for the responsible and important office of County Treasurer, to which he was elected the following fall, his majority being 417. August 20, 1871, he was united in marriage to Sallie W. daughter of Robert Hord, a prominent farmer of Callaway county. Of the children born to this union, the eldest, Cora Alice, is the wife of Gerhard Guenther of Jefferson City; Charles died at the interesting age of 3; Minnie V. is now Mrs. Walter Bolton, jr. The death of Stella May, when 19 years of age, cast a shadow over his home. Norman A. is with The L. S. Parker Shoe Co., learning the manufacture of shoes. Mr. Gordon is a member of the M. E. church (South), of Jefferson City, of which he is steward; is an A. O. U. W. and a member of the Macabees. He has always taken an active interest in the advancement of Jefferson City and did as much work and contributed as liberally to the building of the bridge as in defeating the removal of the Capital as any man in Jefferson City. He is and has been since reaching manhood, an earnest, active worker in the Democratic party. Mr. Gordon is an excellent citizen and business man, highly esteemed by his neighbors and people of Cole county, having recently received the nomination for re-election to the office he now holds and will without doubt be again elected to the responsible position he is now filling with credit to himself and satisfaction to the people. He enjoys the fruits of a well-directed life of untiring industry in his comfortable home on East McCarty street. His office is in the First National Bank.

J. J. HENDERSON.

J. J. Henderson, the present Sheriff, is a native of Cole county, born near Russellville, July 28, 1854. He was reared on a farm, removing to Jefferson City in 1879 he accepted a position as foreman in the prison brick yard, where he continued until 1892, when he was elected City Marshal of Jefferson City, which position he held until elected to his present office in 1898. His wife was Miss Nettie

Donnell, a native of Tennessee, whose parents removed to Cole county in 1861. He has four boys and three girls, all of whom are still with their parents. Mr. Henderson is, in politics, a Democrat; a member of the Knights of Pythias, Maccabees and Elks. He is a fine specimen of physical manhood, whose genial disposition has secured for him the warm friendship of many of the good people of this city and county who are likely to continue to avail themselves of his valuable services as an efficient official. He was nominated at the Democratic primary for re-election to the office of Sheriff, and will no doubt be elected by a large majority in November.

T. B. MAHAN.

Thomas B. Mahan, Collector of Cole county, was born February 27, 1845, on a farm in Cooper county, this State, where he was reared. His opportunities for early education covering a period of only a few winter months at a neighboring school. He removed to Cole county in 1864 and engaged in farming on his own account, until twelve years later he removed to Jefferson City, securing a position as guard at the prison, where he continued about 18 months, when he engaged as teamster with the City Transfer Company; his intelligent and faithful work soon after securing for him the position of superintendent. A few years later he engaged in the wood and coal business, continuing until 1886, when he was elected Sheriff of the county and re-elected in 1888. In 1890 he was elected to the important and responsible position he now holds and re-elected in 1892, 1894, 1896 and 1898. He was married April 6, 1865, to Miss Priscilla, daughter of Alexander Gordon, a prominent farmer of this county. Six children are the result of this union, four girls and two boys, all of whom have reached the years of maturity and assumed the responsibilities of life on their own account. He, with his devoted wife, makes his home on his farm, one mile east of the city. Mr. Mahan is a Democrat in politics, and his continued re-election to the important offices which he has held is the highest compliment which could be paid him, the statement of the fact carrying with it the evidence of a good citizen and honorable man. He is a Master Mason, is treasurer of the local lodge and has been for the past fifteen years; is also a member of the Knights of Pythias and A. O. U. W., and a most worthy member of these educational and elevating social orders.

J. E. GARMAN.

John E. Garman, who is now filling the important office of Public Administrator of Cole county a second term, was born the 28th of August,

1846, in Wayne county, Ohio, on a farm near Worcester, where he was reared and educated. In 1868 he removed to Cole county, purchasing a farm near Elston, where he has continued since to make his home. In connection with his farm, Mr. Garman has engaged in teaching, having taught fifteen terms in his home district, and many of the youths attending school at that place will doubtless long carry the impress of his sterling character. While attending the Democratic county convention in Jefferson

City in 1892 for the purpose of nominating county officials, he was urged by the delegates, who were familiar with his ability and unquestioned integrity, to accept the nomination at the hands of his party for the important and sacred office of public administrator. The very satisfactory manner in which he performed the duties of the office brought to him, unsolicited, a second nomination and election. He was married in 1871 to Miss Mary Douglas, whose parents had recently moved to this county from Ohio. This companion he had the misfortune to lose by death one year later. In 1873 he was married to Miss Eliza Plummer, the daughter of a farmer near Elston. Death again visited his home five years later, when he was called upon to perform the sad duties incident to the death of his second wife. A few years later he was united in marriage to Miss Rachael Plummer, sister of his former wife, who is at present his affectionate companion. As a result of the union with his second wife he has a daughter, now the wife of Mr. George Crump, a farmer near Olean, Miller county. He has a son, a bright lad of 12, now attending the schools of this city, the result of the last marriage. Mr. Garman, with his wife and son, is now making his home with a brother-in-law on East Water street, but continues to own and operate his farm. He is a Master Mason and has been, for the last quarter of a century, an active, earnest member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, of which he is an elder. Mr. Garman is a man of sterling character, performing all the duties required of a good citizen in the most credible manner, and has proven himself most worthy of the high esteem in which he is held by the citizens of the commonwealth of Cole county, having recently been nominated at the Democratic primary to the office of County Assessor.

R. P. STONE.

Robert Price Stone, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney of Cole county, was born on a farm near Mary's Home, in Miller county, this State, March 25, 1863. At the age of 7 his parents removed to Moniteau county, settling on a farm near Russellville. His early education being in the neighboring school. He later attended the Hooper Institute at Clarksburg. At the age of 20 Mr. Stone removed to La Monte, in Pettis county, where he engaged as book-keeper in a general store, in which he continued nine months, when he began the work of a carpenter, continuing about a year, when he removed to Moniteau county, where he engaged in farming until the 31st of October, 1888, when he came to Jefferson City and resumed the work of a carpenter. In 1893 he was made Deputy City Marshal, which he resigned about 15 months later. He was elected Justice of the Peace in November, 1894, and Police Judge in 1895, filling both offices for two years. He was admitted to the bar in 1895, when he began the practice of law, for which he had been preparing, in fact, his object in removing to Jefferson City was for the purpose of securing the advantages of the State library. In January, 1899, he associated with Mr. Waldecker in the practice of law, the firm being Stone & Waldecker. James Stone, the father of Robert Price Stone, was killed in a battle for the lost cause the year of his son's birth, July 4, 1863, at Helena, Ark., leaving the subject of this sketch an orphan at the early age of four months. Mr. Stone is a Democrat in politics and a strong advocate of bi-metallism. He is in the prime of life, with good health, and as a result of his preparation has a prospect for a successful and useful career. Mr. Stone was united in marriage March 21, 1893, to Miss Mary Workover, of Moniteau county. He has three daughters, ages 1, 4, and 6 years, whose cheerful presence brightens his home at No. 609 East McCarty street. He received the nomination for County Attorney at the primary April 7, and will certainly be elected November 5.

J. W. REID.

James W. Reid, whose ancestors came with Lord Baltimore's colony the first settlers of Maryland, was born at Edina, county seat of Knox, this State, May 23, 1846. His early education being in the schools of that town. At the age of fifteen he enlisted in the Federal army in response to the call for volunteers, and served in the Missouri Division. After two years of active service, he was engaged in the Commissary Department. During his active service in the field he was wounded at Monticello, Mo. He was in the battle of Cape Girardeau, where the late Gen. Marmaduke, former Governor of the State, commanded the Southern forces; in fact, in the field throughout the raid of General Price. At the close of the war he engaged in the general mercantile business at Cape Girardeau, the firm being DeCoster & Reid. After two years he sold out this business and attended four terms the St. Francis Seminary at Milwaukee, Wis. Returning to Missouri, he engaged the following three years in teaching in Saline and Knox counties; he was four years a clerk in the hardware store of W. J. Fulkerson of Marshall, when he engaged in that business on his own account, the firm being Reid Brothers. After continuing some years in the hardware business at Marshall, he entered that of real estate and insurance, associating with Thomas Boatright, the firm being Reid & Boatright. In this business he continued until 1890, when he removed to Jefferson City and engaged in general merchandising on High street. While in this business he purchased the Model

Steam Laundry, running the same in connection with his store, finding it necessary to dispose of one, as he could not give his personal attention to both. A customer first appeared for his store, when he disposed of that business, in 1893; since which time he has devoted his energies to the management of his present business, which has greatly enlarged, he now having over three hundred customers each week, and giving support to thirty people. Mr. Reid was united in marriage May 8, 1873, to Miss Bettie, daughter of Michael Schreckler, at that time a prominent and wealthy farmer of Saline county. Five boys and two girls are the result of this union, all of whom are at home except the eldest daughter, Vincentia M., who is the wife of George J. Stampfli, an attorney of Jefferson City. Mr. Reid is a good citizen whose large and varied experience not only makes his presence interesting, but assists in the intelligent direction of his profitable and growing business. He is a member of the A. O. U. W. and the G. A. R., and an active worker in the Democratic party, which has been the political home of his family since its organization. Since his location in the Capital City he has given every measure in the interest of the city his active and material support. He aided greatly in establishing a free ferry, the advance agent of the magnificent steel bridge which now spans the river at this point, for the construction of which he contributed liberally. Mr. Reid, during his residence at Marshall, was one of the most prominent and active spirits in securing the extension of the great Chicago & Alton R. R. from Louisiana to Kansas City. He also made an active canvass in opposition to the Capital removal. With his devoted wife and bright, interesting children, his comfortable home is at 113 West McCarty.

J. B. BRUNS.

J. B. Bruns, President of the J. B. Bruns Shoe Company, and a man who has been prominently identified with the public interests of Jefferson City over 25 years, was born on a farm near Taylinsen Mappin Bay, Province of Hanover, Germany, December 13, 1834, where he was reared, educated and learned to make wooden shoes. Coming to this country, he settled in St. Louis (October 26, 1866), where, during the busy months of summer he worked in the brick yards and in winter, when there was little doing, he made wooden shoes, which was at that time a profitable trade. He came to Jefferson City in April, 1868, when Nature was all in bud, and began working at the brick yard, but remained only a year when he returned to St. Louis and resumed his original business. On August 30, 1869, he was married to Mrs. Mary Yunek, widow of Bernard Yunek, near Taos, Cole county. Assuming charge of his wife's farm, remained a short while, when he sold it and moved to Jefferson City again making wooden shoes, for which he found ready sale. He helped build the Dulle Milling Co.'s large building, and during the summer worked at various odd jobs. He was appointed street commissioner of Jefferson City in 1873. He and his wife purchased their first property in Jefferson City, a three-room dwelling (south of their present stand) and started a dry goods and grocery store on a small scale. She attended to the details of this business while her husband performed the duties of his office, looking after the streets. In 1880 they were able to add to these rooms and increase their business, and later purchased the corner lot, erecting their handsome store building and residence which they have occupied since. In the fall of 1880 Mr. Bruns was elected County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket, to which office he was re-elected and served a second term. In May, 1894, associating with others, he organized a company for the purpose of manufacturing shoes, under the name of the J. B. Bruns Shoe Co. Later, J. B. Bruns and son, J. Herman Bruns, Judge Henry J. Dulle and son, Edward Dulle, and Joe Cullen purchased the interests of the other members of the company, Mr. J. B. Bruns still being President.

Of Mr. Bruns' three children Lena is now Mrs. George Knollmeyer; Anna (who is at home with her parents) is equally interested with Mr. Knollmeyer in the general store, conducted under the firm name of J. B. Bruns & Co. J. Herman Bruns, Secretary and Treasurer of the J. B. Bruns Mfg. Co., was married to Miss Mary Dulle, daughter of Judge Henry J. Dulle, of this city, who enjoys with him the comforts of a beautiful home in the western suburbs.

J. H. DIERCKS.

John H. Diercks, Cashier of the Merchants Bank of this city, was born in Wedel, a village near Hamburg, Germany, July 2, 1831, his education being in his native town, which he left at the age of twenty, coming to America. He first settled at Mineral Point, Wis., where for two years he was engaged as clerk in a hotel. Coming to St. Louis two years later he attended Jones' Commercial College, from which he graduated and also taught one year, after which he came to Castle Rock, in Osage county. Here he engaged in merchandising, farming and milling until 1885, when he removed to Jefferson City, dealing in wood and coal. While engaged in this business he was appointed to the office of Probate Judge. After filling an unexpired term, was elected, holding the office four years. On the opening of the Merchants' Bank he accepted a position as book-keeper, a few months after which he was made cashier, in which responsible position he has continued since. While a resident of Osage county he was a number of years judge of the county court and also represented the county in the State Legislature one term. In October, 1858, he led to the altar, Miss Lillie Thornton, who ten years later departed this life. Three children was the result of this union, one, the wife of Mr. Wood, now deceased, another is Mrs. Lockett, the wife of a cattleman in the Panhandle, Texas. The third daughter is Mrs. Laura Wells of this city. He was married a second time in 1869 to Miss Adelia Thornton, sister of his former wife. Two children are the result of this union, Misses Jessie and Florence, bright and accomplished young ladies, who are still at home with their parents. Mr. Diercks is a quiet, unassuming business man, whose sterling qualities have placed him in his present responsible position. He is an active member of the Presbyterian church, in which he is an elder. Is a member of the I. O. O. F., and a good business man, under whose able management the Merchants' Bank is increasing in business and financial strength.

DR. G. ETTMUELLER.

Dr. Gustave Etmueller was born in Freiberg, Saxony, March 7, 1843. His father (who bore the same name) was an eminent physician and surgeon and private medical council to His Royal Highness, the King of Saxony. The early education of the subject of this sketch was in the public schools of his native town, and at the College St. Afra in Meissen, Saxony, where he graduated, class '62. Later, following his inherited taste for the profession of medicine and surgery, he attended the University at Leipzig, Germany, from which celebrated institution he graduated in 1867. In 1868 he immigrated to America. After six months in New York City, in the practice of his profession, he removed to Marysville, Kansas, where he remained one year, from there removing to Hermann, Mo., 1870, where he continued a successful practitioner until 1894, when he located in Jefferson City. He is a member of the K. of P. and the I. O. O. F., was one of the board of managers of the insane asylum at Fulton, during the administrations of Governors Marmaduke and Francis. He was for many years a Democratic congressional committeeman for this (Bland's) district, and an intimate friend of that late distinguished statesman. At present, in addition to his private practice, he is city physician of Jefferson City and a member of the board of U. S. examining surgeons for pensions. Dr. Ettmueller is a man who has been rarely favored physically and mentally, and has enjoyed unusual educational advantages both in his collegiate course and in the study of his profession. In his character and worth as a man he is recognized and highly esteemed by the citizens of Jefferson City.

DR. W. A. CLARK.

Dr. William Alfred Clark was born in Clarksburg, Moniteau county, September 11, 1865, where he was raised; his early education was in the schools of the village, later attending Waynesville College, Pa., where he graduated in the class of 1889, and received the degree of A. M. The following five years he was engaged in the exalted work of teaching, during the whole time at Tipton, performing also the duties of Superintendent of Schools. During his teaching at Tipton, following the bent of his mind, he was a reader of medical works in the office of Dr. S. H. Redmon of that town. In 1894 he entered the Medical Department of Washington University, St. Louis, from which place he graduated in 1897, coming immediately to Jefferson City and engaging in the practice of his profession and has continued a successful practitioner since. Dr. Clark is a member of the Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter and Commandry and a most worthy representative of those exalted social organizations. He is also a director of the Jefferson City Library Association, of which he was one of the original promoters and in which he has continued to take an active interest. In addition to his regular practice, he is the county physician. He is a young man of fine physique with an excellent mind, well stored, not only with facts connected with the science of his profession, but to this is added a broad culture obtained from general reading. His father was George T., son of Hiram Clark, who immigrated from Kentucky in 1836, and settled in Moniteau county, and for whom the village of Clarksburg was named. Although Dr. Clark has been in Jefferson City only three years, he has fully identified himself with her material and social interests and is highly esteemed both as a physician and citizen. He was married September 23, 1899, to Miss Clara, daughter of Herman Neef (deceased) of Jefferson City, a lady of culture and a most charming personal. His home is in the "Neef Terrace" on West High.

E. HOLTSCHNEIDER.

Edward Holtschneider was born November 1, 1855, in Kaiserwerth (on the river Rhine) Prussia, immigrating to America, with his parents when eight years old, settling at Westphalia, in Osage county, Mo. His father was a cigar manufacturer in Westphalia and later in Tipton, where the subject of this sketch received his education in the public schools, afterward attending Bryant & Stratton college, St. Louis, where he graduated in 1876. In addition to his college education he had several years practical experience while working for his uncle C. W. Holtschneider, at Westphalia, and for his father at Tipton. He taught the district school at St. Thomas one year, then engaged in the general merchandise business at the same place, in partnership with T. B. L. Walther, continuing for two and one-half years, when he sold his interest to his father-in-law, Judge George Walther, and moved to Decatur, buying out a general store, which he conducted for a year and a half. In 1887, he removed to Tipton, where he embarked in the lumber business, opening branch yards at Versailles, Otterville and Runceton. In 1895, he disposed of his lumber business at Tipton and Otterville, and came to Jefferson years, when he removed to his present location. He has since disposed of his business at Versailles, but still conducts a yard at Bunce-ton under the firm name of Bunce-ton Lumber Co. In the fall of 1898, he opened a branch yard at the north end of the bridge approach, but disposed of his Jefferson City Lumber yard the following January. He again opened a yard at the same place in February, 1900, and is doing a most successful business.

He became a member of the H. Bockrath Shoe Co., in May, 1898, and on May 1, 1900, became the treasurer and business manager of this large and prosperous company. He was for many years a director and stockholder of the Merchants' Bank, but recently disposed of his stock. He is a member of St. Peter's church, and president of the Capital Social Club of that denomination, also an active member of the Commercial Club, of which he has been a director for several years.

He is the inventor of a system of double entry book-keeping, by which method only one book is used, which, for reasons of the great saving of labor and the number of books used in the old system, will, when it becomes known, doubtless be used largely by the general merchant.

He was married May 29, 1877, to Miss Sara, daughter of Judge George Walther, of St. Thomas. This union has been blessed with nine children, Flora and Henry died in infancy. Otto has a position as clerk for the Vaughan-Monnig Shoe Co., of this city; Leo, Edwin, Paul, George, Clara A. and Paula, are at home.

His beautiful home is 111 E. Main street.

W. S. POPE.

Hon. W. S. Pope, the present representative of Cole county, was born in Davidson county, North Carolina, on a farm near Thomasville, July 20, 1847. He was educated at the Davidson Academy and the North Carolina Military Academy at Hillsborough, in Orange county, a place made famous by historical events and many fascinating traditions of the Revolutionary war. He removed, at the age of nineteen, to Webster county, in this State, where in 1866 he taught school two terms, locating in February, 1867, at Hartsville, where he engaged in the practice of law, a profession for which he had been diligently preparing. Five years later he was elected to represent Wright county. At the expiration of his term, this being a larger and more desirable field for the practice of his profession, he adopted the Capital City as his home, where he has since continued a prominent member of the bar. He was elected to represent Cole county in the House in 1896, and again in 1898. He was chairman of the House Revision Committee, a position requiring exacting, intelligent and pains-taking work, the duties of which he has recently performed. He is also a member of several important committees of the House. He was united in marriage in 1873 to Miss Lucy, daughter of Judge George Miller, of this city. Of the three daughters born to Mr. and Mrs. Pope, one is the wife of Mr. H. B. Church, jr., the other two bright, accomplished young ladies, Misses Winnie and Miller, are still with their parents in their comfortable home on East McCarty. Mr. Pope is a Democrat in politics, and for many years has been one of the prominent figures of the State in that powerful political organization. His reputation as an able advocate is not confined to the limits of this city or county. He has recently declared his intention of retiring from politics on account of the demands of his large legal business, the practice of his profession being more congenial to his taste than the work of a politician.

M. P. BELCH.

Monroe P. Belch, attorney at law, of the firm of Pope & Belch, was born October 6, 1868, in Jefferson City, his early education being in the public schools. Later he took an academic course of two years at the Missouri State University at Columbia. From 1890 to 1895, he was assistant State Librarian, and while in this position he followed his inherited taste for the legal profession, studying law while in the library. He was admitted to practice by Judge

Dorsey W. Shackelford, now a member of Congress from this district, in 1894. In November, 1895, he associated with the Hon. W. S. Pope in the practice of law. The firm enjoy a large and lucrative practice, their office being in the County Court House. He has been honored by his ward with the office of alderman one term. Mr. Belch is a son of the late distinguished J. Ed. Belch, who was a prominent attorney of Jefferson City, a member of the State Senate in 1874 and Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1879. In 1882 he was a strong candidate for Congress in this district, against the late lamented silver advocate, R. P. Bland. Mr. Belch is a close student, and gives to the business of his profession his entire attention. He is a young man of excellent habits. His home is with his mother and sisters at the old Belch homestead, the place of his birth.

H. W. SIELING.

Harry William Sieling, President and Treasurer of the Sieling Dry Goods company of Jefferson City, was born in St. Louis April 1, 1872, where he attended the public schools until fourteen years of age, when he entered the great wholesale dry goods house of Hagardine-McKittrick & Co., where he remained most of the time in the whitegoods department until eighteen, when he went on the road in the interest of the house selling dry goods to the merchants of Central Missouri. In this he continued with marked success until 1896, when he became a stockholder of the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Co. and secretary of the corporation. In this business he continued, giving it his close personal attention, until 1898, when Mr. Dallmeyer removed to his present store on High street, and disposed of his interest in the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Co. and organized, in connection with his brother and Mr. John Brenneisen, the Sieling-Brenneisen Dry Goods company, of which he was President and Treasurer. This firm did a large and prosperous business until January, 1900, when, after a disastrous fire, Mr. Brenneisen disposed of his interest to Miss Ida Grieshammer, who became Secretary, this office being vacant on the retiring of Mr. Brenneisen. After adjusting their losses with the insurance companies the firm of Sieling-Brenneisen Dry Goods Co. was changed to the Sieling Dry Goods Co., with increase of capital stock to fifteen thousand dollars. Mr. Sieling continued as President and Treasurer, his brother, Arthur Sieling of St. Louis Vice-President. The subject of this sketch was united in marriage June 5, 1895, to Miss

Lulu, daughter of Clark Guffy, a prominent farmer of Cole county, a grand-daughter of the late Cap. Wm. H. Bradbury, for many years Warden of the penitentiary, and a niece of Thos. Bradbury, now Deputy Warden of that institution. He has two interesting children, Mary Frances, three years of age, and Arthur Price, a bright baby boy of one year. Mr. Sieling is highly favored by nature, both physically and mentally. His bright mind has not only fully utilized the valuable experience of his continued work in the dry goods business, but he possesses a genial, open and broad nature which draws to him many friends and has greatly assisted in the building up of his large and prosperous cash business. He is a member of the lodge of Elks of this city, of which he is Treasurer. Responsive to his buoyant nature and fine physique he is very partial to the manly sport, base ball, and was manager of the Jefferson City team last year, it being the champion nine of the State. He is a member of the Commercial club and takes an active interest in everything of a general nature conducive to the prosperity of the city and freely and generously responds to every call which demands the support and assistance of an enterprising and loyal citizen. He enjoys the comforts of a home at 816 East High street, with his two children and his charming and congenial wife.

B. H. McCARTY.

Burr Harrison McCarty, whose death occurred at his home in Jefferson City January 6, 1890, was born near Leesburg, Loudon county, Virginia, June 10, 1810. His ancestors came from Ireland to America in 1618, settling in Virginia. His father was William McCarty, a large land owner in Virginia, and his mother an English lady who was visiting in the family of George Washington, then President of the United States, when he met and married her. Mr. McCarty was raised on a farm and educated at Virginia University, at Charlotte, Va. When of age he went South to make his fortune, and in 1835 came to Missouri, first settling in Fayette, Howard county, and in July, 1836, came to Jefferson City, where he remained till his death. He was, for many years, with Gen. Thomas L. Price, with whom he owned and operated stage lines before the days of railroads. He was married in this city May 4, 1838, to Miss Algira Hughes, who was born and reared in Virginia, and who came with her family to Jefferson City in November, 1837, arriving the day the old State Capitol was burned. Eight children were born to this union—four still surviving. In June, 1838, he purchased the ground and erected a commodious home which is now a part of the McCarty House. From taking to his home traveler friends who came on the stage the hotel grew, and as necessity demanded, from time to time, additions were built to accommodate the ever increasing number of guests. The late Maj. John N. Edwards, who was a warm personal friend of Mr. McCarty, once wrote of the hotel: "This house is located in Jefferson City, but it belongs to Missouri; it is a memory, a tradition and superstition, and yet as royal a reality as ever had a real old Virginia cook in its kitchen, who yet retains, in all of its glory, the lost art of making a genuine pot of coffee and baking a skillet of genuine corn bread. If that old house could think and write, what a wonderful book it could publish of two generations of Missourians, the first generation having to do with pioneers, the State knows it, and to the politicians of the State it has been as a hill, a ravine or a skirt of timber from behind which to perfect their ambushments. Its atmosphere is the atmosphere of a home circle. It has no barroom, and therein lies the benediction which follows the prayer.

"What crowds it has seen, and combinations, caucusses and conventions, Secesh, Union Claybank, Federal, Confederate, Radical, Democrat, Liberal Republican, Prohibition, Tadpole, Granger, Greenback and Female Suffrage have all had their delegates there who wrought, labored, planned, perfected and went away declaring a new dispensation in the shape of a hotel, and that Burr McCarty was its annointed prophet.

"And the Hotel? Let's get into that. Great big wood fires in winter, open fire places. Did you ever think that the blessings of the Lord linger longest about those that have open wood fire places and that, when Santa Claus comes down a chimney, with an open wood fire place, there is a bigger bulge about his bag of good things, and a merrier twinkle in his honest old eyes? Cleanliness everywhere. You can sleep an hour or a week, but whenever you get up a hot meal is ready for serving and such meals; honest coffee, honest butter, eggs over the laying of which the hens made music like the music of the mocking bird; honest everything; honest, sweet palatable, old fashioned—why can't a landlord like Burr McCarty renew his youth every twenty-five years and make that old house of his endure forever."

McCarty House.

Mr. McCarty lived to celebrate his golden wedding anniversary, and had occupied his home continuously, except for a few weeks during the civil war when he was ordered to vacate it for a hospital, it then being the largest hotel in the city. In its time the McCarty house has entertained nearly all the distinguished Missourians. Senators Benton and Linn were patrons of the house during their lifetime, and indeed it is doubtful if the name of a single distinguished Missourian can be pointed to who, at some time or other, did not partake of the hospitalities of the McCarty.

Speaking of his hotel in the ante-bellum days, Mr. McCarty once said that it was a common occurrence for Sheriffs and Collectors to come here on horseback with so much silver and gold strapped on their horses as to make the animal's back sore.

Then Sheriffs and Collectors received taxes in specie and were required to deliver the money to the State Treasurer in person.

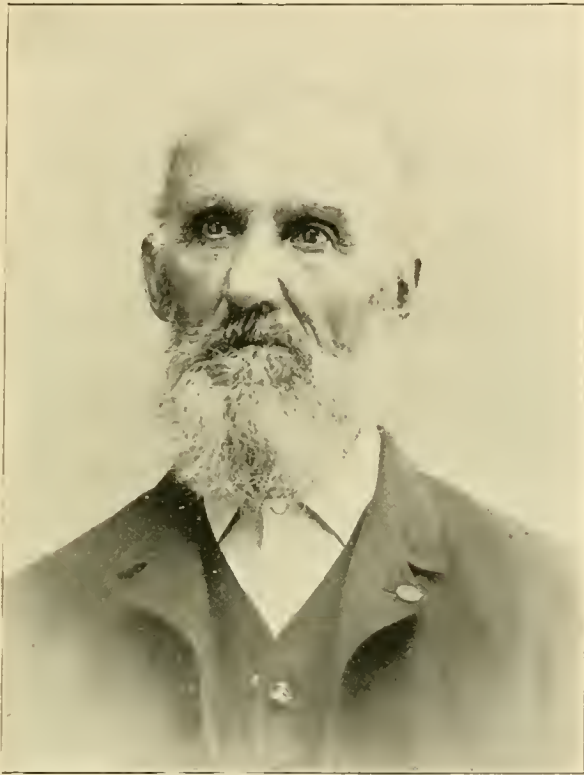

Mr. McCarty was one of those fine old Southwestern gentlemen who are fast passing away. The hotel was conducted upon the old Virginia plan of hospitality and the landlord was no less famous than the manner in which guests were entertained. There was always a glow of cheerfulness about Mr. McCarty, and he had a kind word and a smile for all. No one ever mentioned his name except to speak well of him.

The history of the subject of this sketch is a part of the history of Jefferson City, and there are not over two or three men now living who reside here as long as Mr. McCarty. And if a man can live over a half a century in a city and die respected by all, it is substantial evidence that his life was not wasted. As a public-spirited citizen, Mr. McCarty was always foremost and ready to use all means at his command. At any age in life when men usually sink under adversities, it seemed evident that he would lose all the accumulations of his industrious life through his kindness to others, he went to work like a young man and rescued himself from financial disaster and once more established himself firmly in business. Mr. McCarty, nearly 80 years old and had arrived at an age when death is to be expected. He died full of years and honored by all. Few men can expect as much and none dare to hope for more. The hotel is still in operation, managed by his daughter, Miss Ella McCarty, and is as famous as of old. It is headquarters for the leading attorneys, politicians and business men of this and other states in the Union.

C. B. MAUS.

Charles B. Maus was born in Germany, December 3, 1823, his parents immigrating to America in 1830, stopping in Lancaster county, Pa., where his father was employed at an iron furnace. After the death of his father, 1833, his mother with his family removed to Tuscarawa county, Ohio, where for a time, the subject of this sketch was a driver on the Ohio Canal. Here he lost his mother. In 1840 with his only sister and several brother he moved to Jefferson City where, in young manhood he commenced to learn the work of a carpenter. His brothers, thinking the trade of a stone mason a better field for good wages, sent him to St. Louis where he served an apprenticeship of four years as a stone cutter. Returning to Jefferson City in 1848 he went immediately to Springfield, where he assisted in erecting a building for the Branch Missourians.

State Bank, at that place. The year following, 1846, he enlisted for the war with Mexico. On the cessation of hostilities he returned to Jefferson City and engaged in merchandising, his first venture being in a small way in what was called a boat store, selling chickens, produce, etc., to the many steamers which then plied the Missouri River. Soon thereafter, he associated with Charles F. Lohman in general merchandising, the partnership continuing seven years, when the firm was dissolved, Mr. Maus continuing the business alone, first on the corner of Water and Jefferson Streets, later removing to his present location. In 1861 he enlisted as a private in response to a call for volunteers, later being pro-noted to sergeant, lieutenant and captain, his services as captain of Company E covered a period of nearly three years, which included the active movements occasioned by Price's raid, but most of the time with his company he was guarding the wagon trains carrying Government supplies from Rolla, the end of the railroad, to Sand Springs, some thirty miles distant. During his service in the war he was in a number of skirmishes and experienced many thrilling incidents, but was not wounded nor engaged in any of the important battles which occurred during that tragic period. Mr. Maus was married August 3, 1848, to Amelia Linsenbarth, sister of Mrs. Charles F. Lohman. To his union were born four children. Mr. Maus lost this companion by death January 29, 1858. He was married a second time, to Margaret Blochberger of Cole county, who was the mother of six children, two of whom are deceased, three are at home and one, Joseph G., is a druggist at present employed with Mr. Moore of Fulton, Mo. Mr. Maus is one of the oldest citizens of Jefferson City, it having been his home now sixty years. His history shows that he has responded to every duty required of a good citizen; he served his country as a soldier in two wars, the one with Mexico and that of the Rebellion, and was Treasurer of Cole county one term. He has been for more than half a century a member of Capital Lodge No. 37 of I. O. O. F., having occupied all the official chairs in the exalted social order from the lowest to the highest. He is a Republican in politics. His religious affiliations are with the Christian Scientists, of which he is a most devoted member. He makes his home above the store, corner High and Jefferson streets, a valuable property. In addition to his mercantile interests, he has a farm of 240 acres across the river in Callaway county, three miles north of Jefferson City. He has passed the allotted time assigned to man, now being 77 years of age; but is yet vigorous, with an unclouded mind and gives promise of adding yet many years to his well-spent life.

T. B. PRICE.

Thomas Benton Price was born at the old Price mansion in Jefferson City, May 19, 1849. He was a son of Gen. Thomas Lawson Price, a wealthy and leading member of one of the most prominent and influential families of the State. His mother, Lydia Bolton Price, survived his birth only a few days, which sad circumstance drew to the promising boy the generous hearts of many mothers. His early childhood was spent in the elegant and spacious home of his birth, his play ground being the enchanting hills and valleys surrounding the Capital City, where he acquired his early education. "His robust physique intensified his love of useful sports and made him a bold leader, ever ready to espouse the cause of the weaker side and heroically contest the claim for mastery with the bravest champion." At the age of 13 he was placed at Litz, the famous Moravian School near Lancaster, Pa., where he remained three years during his father's sojourn as a member of Congress in Washington. In 1867 he was one of the trans-Continental Surveying Corps, under the direction of Gen. Palmer. In this expedition through what was then the Wild West, he participated in skirmishes with Indians and revelled in the chase of the buffalo, being often thrilled by the rumbling sound accompanying the majestic tread of the immense herds which then roamed the plains between the Missouri River and the lofty peaks of the Rockies. In 1868 he returned from San Francisco via Panama to New York, with a bright and receptive mind well stored with the rich experiences of travel and observation, which he often put into well chosen words to the delight and instruction of his many friends. In the fall of 1868 he entered the St. Louis University, taking a commercial course, to better qualify him to assume the exacting responsibilities of the management of his father's large estate. In 1869 he returned home and became the faithful nurse and constant attendant at the bedside of his distinguished father, whose death occurred July 16, 1870. In 1872 he was married to Miss Ada C. Bear of Rockingham county, Va., soon after which, having a taste and fondness for rural life and an admiration for agricultural pursuits, which the large fortune inherited from his father enabled him to fully gratify, he purchased a large body of land in Pettis county, near Sweet Springs, giving it the name of "Avondale," which, with well directed taste and prudent, but unstinted expenditure of money, he transformed into an ideal country home, surrounded by broad acres of rich land, divided into green pastures, tilled fields and downy meadows, upon which fed herds of registered cattle, and many horses through whose veins coursed the best blood of the Arabian steed. At the time of his tragic death, November 8, 1871 (the result of a pistol shot by the hand of an unfortunate neighbor) "Avondale" was an ideal home which, in all its relations, could meet the most exacting fancy of the poet's dream. In the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Price, each of whom were highly favored by nature, were united two cultured and exceptionally congenial spirits, whose mutual devotion was intensified by the presence of a generous and noble son, then 16, and a lovely daughter, then the interesting age of 12. From this felicitous home, the head of the family, a perfect specimen of physical and intellectual manhood, was to have had a future full of hope and promise, "in temperament sanguine, warm-hearted, a disposition generous and genial," with the sweet and sacred family relations existing only in the life of a true man, a blessing for his family which found a most hearty response in every member, with every tie which could possibly create a desire for continued earthly existence. He was suddenly called away. His devoted wife followed the keen and endearing sympathy of re-tives and friends, and their silent and delicate, profuse tribute of flowers to soften the horrors of the tomb and bridge over from the rude shock of sudden death to the sweet recollections that h-since afforded her a refined sorrow that is really a fountain of joy from which she refuses to be banished. Although Col. Price was never an aspirant for public office, he took a deep interest in the municipal affairs of his county and State, and did not shrink from any duty required of a good citizen. He was a man of large wealth, which he used in various interests aside from that of his farming. He was President of the Gazette Printing Company, Sedalia, and a stockholder and director in a number of financial institutions in the State. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Elks, and a model man in all relations of life. His widow at present makes her home in this city, at the historical Price mansion on High street, her charming daughter, Miss Celeste, just merging into the beauties of refined and lovely womanhood, being with her. Her son, Thomas Lawson Price, having recently married Miss Mary Johnson of Boonville, is at present making his home at Sweet Springs, from which place he directs the affairs at "Avondale."

A. ROUTSZONG.

Adam Routszong, deceased, was born near Frederick City, Md., February 11, 1836, from which place he came to Cole County with his parents in 1840, settling on a farm near Lohman. His education was in the public schools. At the age of 20 Mr. Routszong began working in the store of C. F. Lohman, but in 1860 entered into partnership with A. W. Morrison, then Treasurer of the State of Missouri, and opened a store at Morrison in Gasconade County, continuing one year, when he sold out and came back to Cole County, and during the Civil War served a considerable portion of the time with the State Militia. He was unable to join the regular service, owing to being crippled from boyhood by a white swelling, but did some hard service with the State troops in fighting the Bushwhackers and Raiders. He served as first sergeant in Company F, 9th Provincial Regiment, enrolled Missouri Militia from July 1, 1863 to November 30, 1863. After securing his discharge, he again went to work for Mr. Lohman, and in the winter of 1865 was elected by the House of Representatives to the office of folder. In May, 1865, he began merchandising in Cedar City, and in 1866 was appointed postmaster of that place. In 1867 he sold his store and bought a farm near Elston, where he remained until the spring of 1892, when he came to Jefferson City. Shortly after coming to Jefferson City Mr. Routszong was commissioned Notary Public by Governor Francis, and in the fall of 1894 was elected Justice of the Peace of Jefferson Township. To this position he was elected a second time in 1898. He was also elected Police Judge in 1897, and continued in this office until his death, which occurred October 5, 1899. His remains were laid to rest in the National Cemetery.

Mr. Routszong was married in 1867 to Miss Harriet C. Penninger, daughter of William and Elizabeth Penninger, of near Wardsville, formerly of Virginia, who survives him. To this union have been born six children: William Levi, is one of the mail clerks at the post office; Sarah Elizabeth, has a position as clerk for the Sieling Dry Goods Co.; John H. is in the laundry business in this city; Harriet Leona, Susan Ellen and James P., are all at home. Mr. Routszong was an active and devoted member of the Presbyterian church, of which he was a member since 1869; he was also a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

H. C. HANSZEN.

Herman C. Hanszen was born in Dusseldorf, Germany, in 1847, his father removing to America when he was three years of age, stopping first in St. Louis, from which place, after two years, he removed to Westphalia, Osage county. A few years later he removed to the Osage River, where he established Hanszen's Ferry, which is still operated and known by the name of its founder. It was here the subject of this sketch grew to manhood and was educated, assisting his father in the work of the ferry, during which time occurred the exciting events of the war of the Rebellion. At the close of the war, Herman, then 19 years of age, came to Jefferson City, where he was first engaged as clerk with Dr. Nicholas DeWyl, the druggist, where he remained four years, when he entered, as clerk, the dry goods store of H. E. Schultz, now the Schnltz Dry Goods & Carpet Co. He remained with Mr. Schultz several years, when, with the accumulations of his thrift and practical experience as a business man, he entered well equipped on his own account, the business of a shoe merchant, which he continued most successfully until the time of his death, August 11, 1896. Mr. Hanszen was united in marriage May 4, 1870, to Miss Clara, daughter of Frederick and Julia Weiss, of Jefferson City. To this union were born six children: the eldest, Alma, is the wife of Conrad Hirsch, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Miss Lydia is a stenographer in the law department of the National Shoe and Leather Exchange, Chicago; Oscar is superintendent of the Manual Training School at Las Vegas, N. M.; Eugene, a young man of exceptionally good habits and excellent business qualifications, has charge of the shoe store, which is still being conducted at the place in which his father first established the business, although the building has since been greatly enlarged and improved. Edna and Harry are students at present attending the High school at Jefferson City. The latter three live with their mother, No. 117 E. McCarty street, in the comfortable and well appointed home provided for her by their devoted and worthy father. Mr. Hanszen was a man who quietly and credibly performed all his duties in every relation of life as a husband, father and citizen, and whose worth was recognized by what he was more than by conspicuous actions. Although a comparatively young man when overtaken by death, he had provided amply for his family, whom he had given all the advantages necessary to make them worthy sons and daughters of a most worthy father.

DR. C. A. THOMPSON.

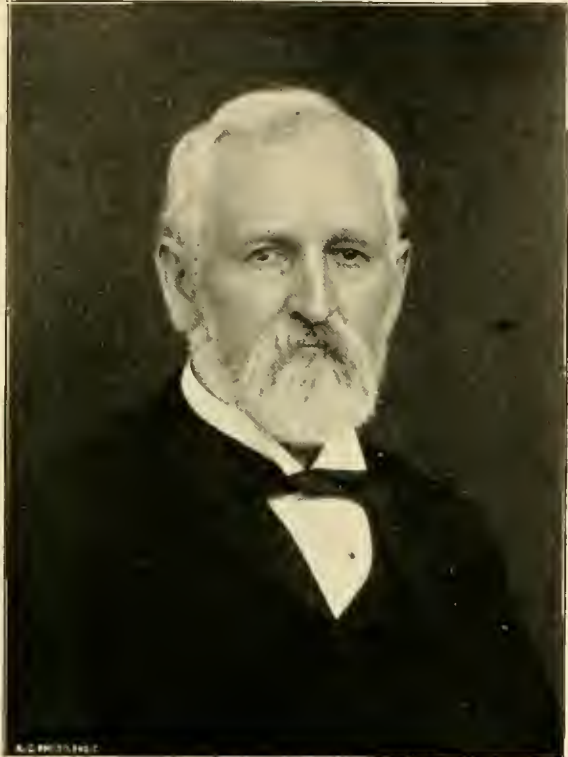

Dr. C. A. Thompson, whose death on the 12th of December, 1898, produced a keen but refined feeling of sorrow not only to his immediate family but a large circle of friends, was born at Sandusky, Ohio, March 27, 1824, being a son of Giles and Mary French Thompson, natives of the White Mountain State, the father being English and the mother Irish descent. Dr. Thompson's direct ancestor came to the New World one year after the landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth Rock, the family then being composed of three brothers, one of which

John, was the lineal antecedent of the subject of this sketch. They originally settled on the spot where now stands New Haven, Conn., but later removed to New Hampshire. His grandfather was a soldier in the Revolutionary War and his father in the war of 1812. In 1818 his father removed to Sandusky, Ohio, being one of the first settlers of that now populous and wealthy district, where he engaged in farming. Dr. Thompson was reared largely in cise of his sterling qualities which reflected credit on the judgment of those who were instrumental in honoring him with the important trusts. He was a consistent Republican in politics, an eminent physician and surgeon and a citizen, the memory of whose noble qualities cannot be recalled without exciting feelings of an exalting character, which makes the impress of such men valuable long after they have passed from the stage of life. His widow survives him, making her home in this city, together with his adopted daughter, Miss Adelaide J. Thompson, the present Librarian of the Jefferson City Library Association. He was buried in the National Cemetery.

JOHN GRANT.

John Grant, of the firm of J. Grant & Co., general merchants at Russellville, was born in Scotland, March 3, 1849, where he was raised and educated. At the age of nineteen he crossed the waters, coming direct to Cole county, where his first work was as a laborer on the railroad. Soon after which engaged in lead mining, which was then carried on considerably in Cole county; in 1875 he engaged as clerk for J. L. Chambers, then a general merchant at Belleville, after which he was a short time with Mr. F. Steffens at Decatur and again with Mr. Chambers.

Michigan and educated at the White Pigeon University at Branch. He began the study of medicine at the age of 21 with a view of making that exalted and humane profession his life work, graduating from the Indiana Medical College in 1849, at which time he began practice at Lima, Ind. In 1856 he moved to Urbana, the University town of Illinois, where he remained until the close of the Civil War, except when performing his duties as surgeon of the Thirteenth and Nineteenth Illinois Volunteers. This service continued until 1865, when he moved to Jefferson City, where he continued practice the remainder of his life. He was physician for the penitentiary during the administrations of Governors Fletcher and Brown, twenty years President of the Board of Pensions, and also twenty years Secretary of the Missouri Medical Association, and during Gov. Francis' administration a member of the Board of Managers of the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Fulton. All of these official duties called for the exer-

In 1885, he purchased a stock of general merchandise, associating with him his present partners, W. C. Hatler and John F. Kelly, the firm being J. Grant & Co., who have since continued to do a large and prosperous business in Russellville. On July 3, 1873, Mr. Grant was married to Miss Alice, daughter of Jacob and Jane Morris, who had recently removed to Moniteau county from Pennsylvania. To this union was born one daughter, now the wife of Robert Short, a prominent farmer near Russellville. Mr. Grant is a member of the A. F. & A. M., and for several years past has been Secretary of the lodge at Russellville. He is a social member of the M. W. A. He is one of the substantial and leading citizens of the thrifty and growing town of Russellville, where he has a comfortable home.

W. R. MENTEER.

William R. Menteer, contractor and builder of Jefferson City, is a native of the county, and was born December 11, 1860. His birth place was four miles south of the Capital, where he remained until six years of age, when his parents removed to Polk county. Nine years later, in 1875, they returned to Cole county, settling on a farm. In 1879 his father died, leaving him to his own resources. In 1885 the subject of this sketch removed to Jefferson City and worked at the trade of a carpenter, for which he long had an inclination, and at which he had worked considerably while on the farm. In 1888 he associated with Mr. John T. Short in the business of contracting and building, the firm being Menteer & Short, which did a successful business the following three years, since which time Mr. Menteer has been engaged in the business alone. He was married October 21, 1885, to Miss Amanda Anderson of Jefferson City, who was the mother of his two daughters, Naomi and Margarette, both of whom are attending the public school. This companion he had the misfortune to lose by death November 13, 1891. In 1896 Mr. Menteer was united in marriage to Miss Emma, daughter of George J. Engelbrecht, a farmer near the city. Mr. Menteer is member of the A. O. U. W., Select Knights and D. of H. He is also a member of the M. E. church South. His comfortable home, with his interesting family, is at No. 313 Jackson street. Mr. Menteer is a well preserved man, enjoying fine health and has been uniformly prosperous in his business as carpenter and builder. He was the contractor and builder of a number of the best residences in the city and county. His shop and office are near the Court House on Monroe street.

A. A. HUNTER.

A. A. Hunter, of the firm of Hunter & Stevens, lumber merchants of Russellville and Centretown, was born on a farm in Cole county, near Russellville, October 21, 1860. When of age he turned his attention to agricultural pursuits, renting a farm in Moniteau county two years, when he bought a farm near Decatur in Cole county, which, after three years' successful cultivation, he sold and bought another near Russellville, which he sold in 1893, and removed to Russellville, engaging in the lumber business with his brother-in-law, B. R. Stevens. In 1898, finding themselves with sufficient capital to enlarge their business, they opened a branch office at Centretown, which is in charge of Mr. Stevens, Mr. Hunter continuing the management of the business at Russellville.

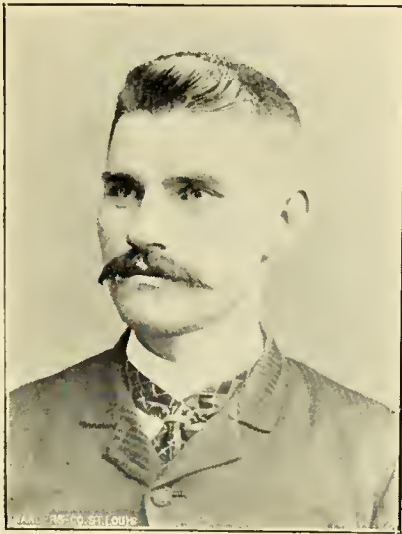

By close attention and careful methods, coupled with a location in the thriving and growing town of Russellville, they have built up a large and profitable business, carrying at both Russellville and the Centretown branch, in addition to their large and complete stock of lumber, sash, doors, etc., lime, cement and roofing of various kinds. Mr. Hunter was married October 2, 1884, to Miss Callie, daughter of J. R. Stevens, then of Cole county, but now a retired capitalist, making his home in Warrensburg, Mo. Both Mr. Hunter and his wife are members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. In them are united two congenial spirits, who mutually enjoy the comforts of their own home in Russellville.

DR. J. F. SON.

Dr. James Franklin Son, son of James Monroe and Eliza Son, was born on a farm in Morgan county, near Versailles, January 12, 1863, where he was raised, being educated in the neighboring schools. He attended the American Medical College at St. Louis, graduating in class of 1891, after which he located at Russellville, where he has continued since and built up a large and lucrative practice. He was united in marriage June 7, 1893, to Miss Emma, daughter of B. F. Bradford, a prominent farmer near High Point, in Moniteau county, Mo. To this union has been born four children, two boys, Edgar E., age six, and Landon F., age four. His sweet baby girls, Madge and Marie, are twins. Dr. Son is one of the most enterprising citizens of the thrifty town in which he has located permanently. He is a physician of the eclectic school, and his success in practice has secured for him the patronage of many people in other parts of the county, aside from those immediately surrounding Russellville. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. and also the M. W. A., of Russellville, and of the latter he has been camp physician since the organization of the lodge. Mrs. Son is a most devoted and earnest working member of the M. E. church, South.

A. M. HOUGH.

Arthur M. Hough was born in Jefferson City. His parents, George W. and Mary C. Hough, came from Loudon county, Virginia, and located here in 1838. He was educated in the public and private schools of Jefferson City, under the additional careful supervision and instruction of his father, who was a man of unusual literary attainments. Upon leaving school he began his business career, when but a youth, as salesman in one of the then largest general stores in Jefferson City, and a few years later sought to enlarge his experience by clerking on a lower Mississippi River steamboat, also making a trip or two to the head waters of the Missouri in the days when steamboating on both these rivers was exceptionally interesting and remunerative. In 1870 he decided to study law, and located in Kansas City, Missouri, reading in the office of his brother, Judge Warwick Hough, and meantime acting as assistant to the clerk of the Jackson County Circuit Court. He was admitted to the bar in 1872 at Kansas City. During the 26th and 27th General Assemblies he was in Jefferson City as a clerk in the Legislature. He was clerk in the Adjutant General's office under George C. Bingham, and later Chief Clerk under Gen. Jno. B. Waddill, during the administration of Gov. T. T. Crittenden. At the close of the administration he located permanently in this city and began the practice of his profession, in which he has since continued with gratifying success. Mr. Hough has taken a deep interest in every enterprise for the advancement of Jefferson City. He was one of the most intelligent and active workers in opposition to the removal of the Capital to Sedalia, and also took an active part in securing the erection of the new and well appointed courthouse of Cole county. He is a prominent member of the various branches of the Masonic order, including the Royal Arch Chapter and Commandery, in all of which he has held important official positions. He was elected three times as Master of Jefferson Lodge No. 43, A., F. & A. M.; five times as High Priest of Jefferson City Royal Arch Chapter, No. 34, and seven times as Eminent Commander of Prince of Peace Commandery, No. 29, Knights Templar. In 1895 he was elected Grand Master of the Grand Lodge A., F. & A. M., State of Missouri, and on the 25th of April, 1900, was elected Grand High Priest of the Royal Grand Chapter of Arch Masons of the State. He was Lieutenant-Colonel on Gov. Stone's Military Staff. One of his most important and enduring works for the city was his active assistance in the establishment of the Jefferson City Public Library, to which he was the first subscriber and also the first President of the Board of Trustees, which position he now holds. Encouraged by the success of this institution Mr. Hough has lately been especially active in securing a $25,000 donation from Mr. Andrew Carnegie with which to erect a public library building in Jefferson City. He was recently one of a committee of two appointed to wait upon Mr. Carnegie in New York City to arrange terms and conditions, and the proposition resulting from this conference will be submitted to a vote of the citizens at an early date. He is at present a member of the committee engaged in the effort of procuring the necessary funds to secure the extension of the Bagnell Branch of the Missouri Pacific Railway to Springfield, Missouri. He is a most valuable citizen, whose well directed efforts and influence have aided greatly in making the Capital City a desirable home for those whose aspirations are for the highest and best things of life. Mr. Hough has been a number of times appointed Special Judge of the Circuit Court. He has always been a staunch Democrat, and, while not a seeker of official position or political honors, he has taken an active interest in every political measure for the advancement of his City, County and State, and is an influential factor in the affairs of the Democratic party.

E. SIMONSEN.

Ernest Simonsen, one of the most enterprising citizens of Jefferson City, was born near Halmstad, Sweden, November 30, 1858, where he attended the elementary school until 1875, when he was admitted to the Technical School at Orebro, Sweden, from which he graduated as mechanical engineer, class of 1878. He then engaged as mechanical draftsman at Halmstad's Mekaniska Verkstad, until 1881, when he left Sweden, and came to America, where he worked short periods for some of the leading machine manufacturing firms of the East in the capacity of machinist, with a view of gaining more knowledge of the ways of his adopted country. He engaged (1882), as mechanical draftsman with the Bridgeport Machine Tool Works, at Bridgeport, Conn., which position he held two years, when he was made general superintendent of the works, filling this important position with marked ability. He resigned this position in 1888 to accept one as general superintendent of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Rock Drill Co., of New York, remaining only a short time (till May 1, 1889), when he made a trip to Europe, where he visited his native home and attended the Paris Exposition, returning to America the following October.

He came to Jefferson City, in 1889, and purchased what was known as the Jefferson City Foundry, and continued the business under the name of the Simonsen-Walther Mfg. Co. In January, 1894, he engaged with Mr. P. H. Loethen in scientific heating, under the firm name of Jefferson Heating Co., doing a general hot water and steam heating business, managing both companies until 1895, when he disposed of the foundry business in order to give more attention to heating contracting. The company has been in existence six years and has successfully executed several large and important heating contracts, the universal success of which is largely due to Mr. Simonsen's ability as a heating engineer. Among the many important contracts are the Cole County Court House, Gasconade County Court House, four buildings of the Lincoln Institute, Missouri Pacific Passenger Station, State Armory, Exchange Bank, Dallmeyer building, Rea building and a number of private residences, all in Eitzen's building, California, Mo.

Mr. Simonsen is a Republican, but not active in politics. He is a member of the Commercial Club of which organization he served as President from 1897-1898, is director and Vice-President of the Capital City Building and Loan Association, director of the Jefferson City Bridge and Transit Company

He was made a Mason in Sweden, in 1880, where he still holds membership in St. John Lodge "Oscar" in Halmstad, and is a member of the Jefferson City Royal Arch Chapter, No. 34, Jerusalem Council, No. 16, Royal and Select Masters of Bridgeport, Conn., Prince of Peace Commandery, No. 29, Knights Templar; also a 32-degree Scottish Rite Mason, belonging to the Lafayette Consistory of Bridgeport, Conn., and has traveled over the hot sands in company with the Pyramid Temple Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Bridgeport, Conn. He is a most worthy, progressive and enterprising citizen of Jefferson City, whose worth is highly appreciated by all who know him.

W. H. MORLOCK.

William Herman Morlock was born in Hermann, Mo., the county seat of Gasconade, March 27, 1841; his parents were Jacob and Fredericka Morlock, natives of Baden, Germany, from which place they immigrated to America in 1839; after stopping a short time in Philadelphia removed to Hermann, where they located. Mr. Morlock, in his youth, enjoyed the educational advantages afforded by the town of his birth, where he was engaged as a clerk in the general store of R. Schlender; from here he went to St. Louis, where he secured a position in the old Seventh street depot, under Charles McKissock, telegraph operator, having learned the business previously at Hermann.

He resigned in 1861, at the age of 20, and entered the service of the government as U. S. Military telegraph operator, in which position he continued throughout the war, his duties carrying him to all parts of the State. When the struggle was ended which settled the permanency of the Union of States he secured a position as operator for the U. S. Telegraph Company, which then had an office in this city and was building a line in opposition to the Western Union. In this work he continued until 1866, when he bought a stock of general merchandise from Jacob Tanner and leased his building, which he continued to occupy three years, when he purchased the ground on the corner of Jefferson and Dunklin and erected the substantial brick building in which he has continued to do a prosperous business in general merchandising and farm machinery since. He was united in marriage in 1866 to Miss Lena, daughter of Frederick and Phillopena Kerner, of Hermann, Mo. To this union have been born four boys and seven girls. The eldest, William, an excellent young man of sterling worth, died at the age of 27. The second child, Miss Toney, was also a victim of the grim reaper at the interesting age of 20. Fredrick is in the U. S. army, serving his country on the Island of Luzon. Miss Phillopena is at home. Otto J., just reaching his majority, is assisting in his father's store. Miss Agnes died when just merging into womanhood. Miss Emma is a stenographer. Miss Fredericka, a graduate of the Jefferson City High School, is at home, and Misses Cary and Lena are at school, as is also the youngest, Grover Cleveland, a lad of 11 years. Mr. Morlock, in addition to his large mercantile interests, is a stockholder in and Vice-President of the Merchants' Bank of Jefferson City. He is a member of the German Evangelical church. He has during his residence of thirty-four years in Jefferson City, in addition to raising a large family and giving them the advantages of an education and the comforts and luxuries of a well-regulated home, performed credibly the duties of a good citizen, and by the prudent exercise of his judgment and close attention to business, made himself comfortably well-off, and now is properly recognized as one of the leading and substantial men of the Capital City.

G. W. TREMAIN.

George Washington Tremain, of Russellville, was born on a farm in Miller county near Tusculum, September 3, 1873, where he remained until the age of thirteen, attending the neighboring school. He was later a student at the Aurora Springs Academy, and took a course at the State Normal at Warrensburg. When seventeen years of age he engaged in teaching. In 1889 he took charge as foreman of the office of the Aurora Springs "Crescent," a weekly publication, where he continued one year. In 1895 he came to Russellville, purchasing the "Rustler," which he continued to manage most successfully four years, when he disposed of the plant to his brother, the present owner and publisher. Mr. Tremain was married in 1893 to Miss Jennie Weaver, of Indiana, whose parents had recently removed to Eldon in Miller county. Three children have been born to this union, two boys and one girl. To Mr. Tremain's four years' residence and enterprising and well directed efforts, greatly aided by his publication, Russellville is largely indebted for her present importance and unusual advantages for a village of its size and environments. He built the well appointed office which the "Rustler" now occupies, and also was the means of adding the Band Park, a most delightful resort, in which there has been a successful celebration each year since its opening. In this work he was greatly aided by his talent as a musician, being an exceptionally good performer on almost every musical instrument, and in addition a fine vocalist, with a voice rich in volume and tone. In the conduct of his paper, he has continuously and ably supported the Democratic party. Fortunately for Russellville, this sterling and active young man continues to make his home in that thriving village, being engaged principally in dealing in railroad timbers. Mr. Tremain is a young man with a bright and well balanced mind, which, coupled with his enterprise and industry, makes for him a promising future.

DR. G. B. WINSTON.

Dr. George Bickerton Winston was born in Green county, Kentucky, June 9, 1822, and came to Missouri with his father who settled in Cole county in 1833. Here his life was mainly spent and his character formed. He graduated from McDowell Medical College in St. Louis with the class of 1844. The same year he volunteered for the war with Mexico, and was elected Second Lieutenant of Company F. On his return from California, after a few years, his earnest, active life as physician commenced. He married Miss Sarah F. Hough, of Jefferson City, in 1853, and at this time has three sons living: Dr. Warwick Winston is in Shanghai, China, practicing his profession, (dentistry); George Bickerton Winston is in Anaconda, Montana, engaged in the practice of law, and Chas. A. Winston, Esq., of this city, residing with his mother, Mrs. Sarah F. Winston. Dr. Winston, in many respects was a remarkable man. Without being conscious of it he was a born leader of men, and the end and aim of his ambition was to become useful and eminent in the profession of his choice, and his reputation was much more than local. The St. Louis Courier of Medicine says of him just after his death, June 22, 1882: "So far as we have been able to ascertain Dr. Winston (of Jefferson City, Mo.) was the first to call attention to the value of gallinaceous pepsin in the treatment of atonic dyspepsia. Though this idea has been extensively used of late, and with excellent results under the name of "ingluvin," I think due credit has not been given Dr. Winston for calling the attention of the profession to it, which he did in a paper read before the State Medical Association a number of years ago."

A more thoroughly conscientious physician never lived. To the end of his long professional life he was a hard student. The writer, who knew him intimately, once ventured to remark to him: "Doctor, what necessity is there for this ceaseless labor and study at your time of life?" with a look of astonishment never to be forgotten, he replied: "My dear sir, I am under bonds to do it. When I offered my professional services to this community there was an implied covenant on my part, so far as God gave me strength and ability, I would use them in gathering up and digesting all that has been said or written in regard to the diseases to which human flesh is heir, and if I should lose a patient because of my ignorance of the latest and best experience of others in the treatment of a given case a just God would hold me responsible for the loss, through inexcusable ignorance, of a precious human life, and punish me accordingly; and whenever I get my consent to be content with present professional attainments and trust to my own experience for success, I will withdraw from the practice and step from under a weight of honorable obligation which, with my best endeavors to meet honestly and conscientiously, still sometimes is almost heavier than I can bear." With him a principle was right or wrong, a policy good or bad. There was no half way resting place for him. He had little respect for compromises, and only pity for that feebleness of character which yielded up to its convictions rather than contend for them.

While sometimes to strangers he may have appeared a little austere, his friends knew him to be as gentle and sympathetic as a woman, and left to his own choice, he was more at home in a company of little children than on the march as soldier and pioneer from the Missouri to the Rio Grande, or from the borders of the State to the gold fields of California.

He remembered his services in the field and his experience in mining camps as periods in his life bringing ample opportunities for the study of men away from the restraints of civilization and the influences of home and family, and regarded these divergencies as time profitably spent. Face to face with danger and trying emergency he was as cool and deliberate a man as lived. To illustrate: He was one of the unfortunate excursionists from St. Louis, in November, 1855, on the railway train that went down with the Gasconade bridge. It was a fearful hour. A terrible storm was raging; black clouds had so obscured the sun that familiar faces could scarcely be recognized except by the flashes of lightning, which were blinding in their brightness; the thunder pealed as though the artillery of giants was in deadly conflict in the clouds. The pale faces of the dead and groans of the wounded and dying, were seen and heard on every side. Dr. Winston, was himself severely wounded and suffering intensely from pain, faintness and loss of blood. He was at last discovered, sewing up and dressing his own wound, and when Dr. McDowell, his old surgical instructor and friend, said: "Winston, let me attend to you," he replied: "No, Doctor; go where you may save a life, I do not think my wound is fatal." Unfortunately there are few such characters. He was a man among men.

O. E. BURCH.

Oscar E. Burch, Secretary and Treasurer of the Burch-Berendzen Grocer Co., was born in Jefferson City, July 30, 1868, where he graduated from the High School class of 1885. On account of ill health he went to Southern California, engaging first in the grocery business. Later was assistant postmaster at Glendale, and soon after he engaged successfully in contracting and building. Recovering his health he returned to Jefferson City, November, 1894, when he organized the Burch-Berendzen Grocer Co., and has given this business his close personal attention since. He was united in marriage June 17, 1897, to Miss Bessie, daughter of George Hope, sr., of Jefferson City. Mr. Burch is a young man of exceptional habits, an active member of the Presbyterian church, of which he is a deacon, is a stockholder in the First National Bank, Los Angeles, Cal., and an enterprising, sagacious business man, who gives promise of a continued successful and useful life. His home is 141 East Miller street.

SPEED MOSBY.

Speed Mosby, Deputy Clerk of the Missouri Supreme Court, was born in Osage county, Missouri, at the village of Linn, May 1, 1874. He is the youngest son of the late Samuel Mosby, lawyer and ex-Confederate soldier, who died shortly after election to the Missouri Senate, in 1892; on his father's side, is the fourth lineal descendent of Capt. Hal Speed, who fell at the battle of Guilford Court House in the Revolutionary War, and on the side of his mother is the third lineal descendent of Sylvester Pattie, a Kentucky pioneer who came to Missouri in 1812 and who, during the war of 1812, served in the American army as lieutenant of the Rangers.

Mr. Mosby attended a country district school until thirteen years of age, when he began working at the printer's trade. At the age of seventeen he went to the State of California to follow that trade, but had worked there but a few months when family affairs called him home. In 1892 he was associated with his brother Bayard as editor and publisher of the Unterrified Democrat, at Linn, Mo., and during that great "free trade" campaign the tariff question was discussed in his editorials with a degree of clearness that showed the writer to be perfect master of his subject. He wields a facile pen, and many of his essays are well known, a few of which may be briefly mentioned here.

In 1896 his first essay on "Church Taxation" was published in the North American Review. The bold stand taken in defense of the churches, and the great scholarship and invincible logic which the author arrayed in defense of his position, caused the article to be discussed, especially in religious circles, throughout the United States. It was publicly assailed in New York by the Rev. Madison C. Peters, while the New York Catholic News defended the article in a two-column editorial. It was translated into German and published in the American and other German papers in the West, while in Boston the article was catalogued by one of the public libraries and given a place among the archives of the institution on the subject of taxation.

In the same year his essay on "The Fellow-Servant Doctrine" appeared in the American Law Review. This article, in which the laws on the subject, both of the several States and of the leading European nations were reviewed, attacked the fellow-servant doctrine as being unjust and unreasonable. Among the journals making favorable editorial comment upon this article may be mentioned the National Corporation Reporter of Chicago, 1. Conceiving the article to be a strong argument in the interest of railway labor, the Missouri Labor Bureau issued a special report containing it, and printed fifty thousand copies of the same, many of which were circulated in Missouri, contributing greatly, no doubt, to the popular movement which culminated in the enactment of the Fellow-Servant act of 1897.

In 1898 he was a frequent contributor to the Mississippi Valley Democrat and Journal of Agriculture of St. Louis, while that paper was in charge of that distinguished poet, rhetorician and philosopher, William Vincent Bryan, and in that paper some of Mr. Mosby's best political essays were published, one of them entitled "Plutocracy and Poverty," being extensively copied by the country press in Illinois and Missouri. In this year also appeared his "Dangers of Political Apathy," in the North American Review.

His articles on "Some Defects in the Missouri Constitution," "The Monroe Doctrine," "The Growth of the Lobby System," all published in the St. Louis Republic, and his essay entitled "Politics and Populism," published in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, may be possibly known to the readers of this sketch.

Although deprived of the opportunity of securing an education in the schools, he has always evinced the greatest interest in educational matters, and some of his writings in the American Journal of Education and in the Missouri School Journal, are well known to members of the teaching profession. He is now serving his second term as Secretary of the Missouri State School Board Association, and is a member of the Jefferson City Board of Education.

October 25, 1896, he was examined by the Judges of Division No. 1 of the Supreme Court, and licensed to practice law, of which science he has now bea student for eight years, although his favorite study is history.

He was married September 4, 1895, to Bertha, daughter of the late Herman Neef of Jefferson City. Of this union two children have been born, a daughter, Frances Elaine, now nearly four years of age, and a son, Donald Speed, now 10 months of age.

While Mr. Mosby has always been a Democrat, he writes his political creed with but a single word—"Justice;" and in the service of this principle from which all good doctrines flow, his voice and pen have ever been enlisted. He made a number of speeches for the Democratic nominee during the special Congressional campaign in Bland's old district in 1899, and has always done good work for the principles in which he so sincerely believes.

MICHAEL SCHUBERT.

In the commercial world there is now developing in all the principal cities large department stores, the result of the enterprise and the executive ability of some one individual. We find these giant commercial establishments now in all of the large cities. In Philadelphia, for instance, John Wanamaker is the head of the list. In Chicago, Marshall Field; in St. Louis, Barr, Crawford and others; but one would hardly expect to find an establishment entitled to class proportionately with these great concerns in a village in Cole county, yet such is the case. The well appointed and managed general store of the Schubert-Weiler Mercantile Company at Russellville is the largest and best appointed department store in the county. Their ground floor space (every foot of which is utilized to accommodate their large and varied stock of merchandise, which includes everything needed by a human being, from the cradle to the grave) is 54 by 128 feet; in addition, the upper rooms are used for duplicate stock, furniture, hardware, etc. The head and President of this company is Michael Schubert, who was born on a farm in Cole county, near Taos, September 25, 1869, where he was reared, attending the public and a private German school in the nearby village. At the age of 24 he associated in the mercantile business with F. Steffens, at Decatur, continuing four years, when they dissolved partnership and he removed to Barnett, in Morgan county, where he purchased a stock of goods and continued a most successful business the following six years. From there he removed to Russellville in 1895, where he was one of the organizers of the Russellville Exchange Bank, of which he was cashier for two years, during which time, however, he was also engaged in the furniture and hardware business, which assumed such proportions that he resigned his position in the bank in order to give this his whole attention. In 1897, in order to accommodate the stock for his largely increasing business, he extended his store building back 128 feet. In the fall of 1898, Mr. Weiler (who is at present associated with him in business) rented one of his store rooms and engaged in the general dry goods business. The association and observation resulting from their close business relations developed a mutual respect and confidence, which resulted in their uniting their mercantile interests and incorporating under the present firm name of the Schubert-Weiler Mercantile Company. As a result of their united interests their trade is greatly extended, many buyers coming a distance of fifteen or twenty miles, being drawn by their low prices, large and varied stock from which to make selections. Mr. Schubert was married September 29, 1889, to Miss Mary, daughter of Martin and Katherine Schneider, of Taos. This companion, who is the mother of his daughter, Frieda, now 8 years of age, he had the misfortune to lose by death in December, 1893. His present wife was Miss Emma Kantsch, of Lohman, to whom he was married May 11, 1897, and is the mother of his boy, Almer, now 2 years of age. Mr. Schubert is a member of the M. W. A. and of the Lutheran church. He occupies his own comfortable home in the village of Russellville and also owns the building occupied by the mercantile company, of which he is President. Although he has had large and varied experience and been eminently successful he still is in the prime of life, with every prospect of being able to fully gratify his ambition as a successful merchant and business man.

J. L. RITCHIE.

Jacob Lee Ritchie, of the firm of Ritchie & Stark, proprietors of the Russellville Roller Mills, was born on a farm near Prairie Home in Cooper county, June 21, 1864, where he continued until twenty-one years of age. His education being in the neighboring district schools. He engaged in farming on his own account, renting a farm near his birthplace, where he continued for four years, running also a threshing machine and saw mill. Removing to Moniteau county he purchased a farm, which he continued in connection with his saw mill and threshing machine four years, when he sold his interests and removed to Boone county, associating with C. A. Edwards in building a mill at Huntsdale, which was conducted with marked financial success four years, when he disposed of his interests to his partner. About this time the enterprising village of Russellville, in its efforts to secure the advantages of a mill (one of the most important elements in aiding the material progress of any town), offered him a bonus of about $1,000 and the ground if he would establish there a good roller mill; a proposition which he accepted, at once building a complete fifty-barrel roller mill. The wheat grown in that district being of an exceptionally good quality, Mr. Ritchie, with his excellent mill, converted it into flour of such excellence, its popularity resulted in a demand requiring an increased capacity for production; as a result, he formed a partnership with Mr. W. A. Stark, and doubled the capacity of the mill. The Russellville Roller Mills now being one of the most complete in the county, with a demand for its product, which keeps it running to its full capacity. Mr. Ritchie was married July 26, 1885, to Miss Addie Belle Rains of Indiana, whose parents had recently removed to Cooper county. Seven children are the result of this union, five girls and two boys, who, together with his congenial wife, make a most interesting and happy family circle in his elegant home, the most modern and complete in the town of his adoption. He is a member of the M. W. A., and is now banker of the Russellville Camp, a member of the Christian church, in which he fills the important office of elder. Mr. Ritchie is a self-made man, who is a natural born mechanic. His knowledge of machinery and mechanism and his practical ability to construct is rarely found in a man with practical business sense and untiring industry. In Mr. Ritchie's case, these qualities are combined, and although yet a young man who left home with only $150, he has made himself comfortable, and has promise of a continued useful life, in which he will do his whole duty as a citizen and give to his family the comforts and advantages afforded by the well directed efforts of a well balanced man.

B. W. LANSDOWN.

Bailey W. Lansdown was born on a farm in Miller county, near Iberia, the 9th day of June, 1859, where he continued until twenty-one years of age, when he started out in the world to fight the battle of life on his own account; when he left his parental roof his wealth consisted of $11.65. His first work on his own account was in Jackson county, where he engaged in husking corn. He soon after went to Butler, the county seat of Bates, where his first position was clerk of a hotel. He remained in Butler five years, when he engaged as a traveling salesman, selling tobacco, in which he continued on year, when he embarked in the mercantile business at Enon; from this place, after two years, he removed to Olean, engaging in the same business successfully, eighteen months, when he disposed of his interests and removed to Decatur where he was again a general merchant, doing a prosperous business for three years. In 1892 he removed to Russellville, where he continued merchandising something over eight years, aiding materially during his stay to advance the village to its present proportions, it now being the second town in importance in Cole county. In May, 1899, he disposed of his interests at Russellville and removed to Centretown, where he is at present a successful merchant and doing a large business. Mr. Lansdown was united in marriage March 21, 1889, to Miss Tracy, daughter of F. Steffens, a wealthy and prominent merchant of Russellville, Mo. This union has been blessed with three children, bright, interesting girls, Anna, Clara and Ha. Mr. Lansdown, who is familiarly known as "Bailey," is a hustling, enterprising, genial man, who has left many friends at every point where he has engaged in business. He has been eminently successful, financially, and in addition to his mercantile interests at Centretown, is the owner of valuable real estate in Russellville and Olean and a large stockholder in the Russellville Exchange Bank.

S. J. HAWKEN.

Samuel J. Hawken, editor and proprietor of the Cedar City Reporter, was born at the foot of the Rockies, in Denver, September 10, 1861, to which place his father had removed for his health the year previous. When four years of age, his father returned to St. Louis, where he soon after died. At the age of fifteen the subject of this sketch went to Franklin county, near Union, where he secured work on a farm, continuing until the age of twenty-one, when he began farming on his own account, tilling the soil until 1892, when he engaged in the work of a carpenter. In 1897 he bought the New Haven "News Notes," a weekly paper, which he sold one year later. Removing to Chamois he established the "Head Light," which plant he also sold in December, 1898, and January 1, 1899, assumed the management of the Cedar City "Chronicle." In November of the last year he leased the "Reporter" of that place, of which paper he has been editor and publisher since. Mr. Hawken was married March 6, 1889 to Miss Dena Schorer, at Dundee, Franklin county. There came to his home and heart two boys and a girl to brighten his life. Mr. Hawken is a member of the M. E. church (South), Cedar City; a Democrat in politics and an able, spicy writer, whose pen is making his organ a bright and valuable support of the spirit of Democracy.

JOSEPH GOLDMAN.

Joseph Goldman, assistant editor of the Daily and Weekly State Tribune, is a native of Jefferson City, where he was born October 27, 1875. His education was in the schools of the city, graduating from the High School in 1896. He was local editor of the Jefferson City Courier, of which Mr. J. C. Fisher was proprietor, in which position he continued until the plant was purchased by E. S. Link. During this time he also represented the Jefferson City Tribune nine months. In response to the call for volunteers for the late Spanish War, he enlisted in

Co. L. 2nd Missouri Volunteers. The company was located for some time at Albany, Ga., where they were mustered out March 8, 1899, his discharge being March 6. While stationed at Lexington, Ky., he was camp correspondent for the Lexington (Ky) Leader, and also for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Mr. Goldman's education was acquired with a view to the study of law, in which he was engaged with the Hon. W. S. Pope, but later he gave up the legal profession, yielding to his taste for newspaper work. On returning from the war he was correspondent for the St. Louis Chronicle and the Kansas City Star until July of the past year, since which time he has been the assistant editor of the State Tribune, whose pages are brightened by the tracings of his versatile pen. Mr. Goldman is a bright young man with a promising future. He is a member of the Modern Woodmen of America, and an active worker for the Democratic party, to which he always gives his loyal and active support.

J. R. BALDWIN.

J. Robert Baldwin, State Deputy Beer Inspector, was born August 31, 1859, on a farm near California, Moniteau county, Mo., where he grew to manhood, receiving his education in the public schools. When 23 years of age he went to Kansas City, where he served five years on the Metropolitan Police force. From Kansas City he removed to Sedalia, engaging in the real estate business, making many friends, who knew him more familiarly as "Bob." Leaving Sedalia he removed to Jefferson City, and held a position at the Missouri Penitentiary, which he resigned to accept the appointment of State Deputy Beer Inspector. He is an enthusiastic worker in the Democratic ranks, and his appointment by Gov. Stephens to his present position was "a just recognition of his ability and service" to his party. He was chosen from among 200 applicants, and by a singular coincidence received the appointment on his 40th birthday. He was married to Miss Eliza, daughter of Jackson Bruce, a wealthy stockdealer near Jamestown, Moniteau county, Mo. His son, Arthur, 21 years of age, now fills the position made vacant by his father's resignation at the penitentiary; his daughter, Miss Zora Ethel, is at home.

W. A. STARK.

William Allen Stark, of the firm of Ritchie & Stark, proprietors of the Russellville Roller Mills, was born on a farm in Cole county near Russellville, October 18, 1863, attending school in the neighboring district and assisting his parents on the farm until eighteen, when he rented a farm near his home which he cultivated one year, then bought the farm, which he has continuously cultivated and greatly improved, and on which he now resides. During this time, however, he followed the work of a carpenter and builder, much of the time employing assistance to work his farm. He has built a number of houses in Cole county, among them the mill of which he is now one of the proprietors, and also the elegant home of Mr. Ritchie, his partner. The association with Mr. Ritchie while building the mill and residence, engendered a feeling of mutual respect and confidence which resulted in their co-partnership in this prosperous milling plant in 1899. Mr. Stark was married at the early age of eighteen, to Miss Rosa, daughter of B. S. Enloe, a farmer near Decatur. This union has been blessed with eight children, four boys and four girls; the eldest, Ezera, a bright lad of seventeen, the youngest, twins of three months, are Ernest and Inez. Mr. Stark is one of the citizens of Cole county, who has, by his own well directed efforts, industry and thrift, made himself comfortable in this world's goods. He still owns, in addition to his interest in the Russellville Roller mill, his farm, which is highly improved, and where he still makes his home. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M. and the M. W. A., of Russellville, and also of Mt. Olive Baptist church, of which he has been a deacon a number of years. He is a citizen which Russellville may congratulate itself on securing for a permanent resident.

C. W. LOHMAN.

Charles W. Lohman, dealer in general merchandise at Lohman, a village (of which he is the founder), on the Lebanon Branch of the Missouri Pacific, was born in St. Louis, December 1, 1848, from which place his parents removed to Jefferson City when he was an infant, being educated in the public schools of Jefferson City. He later attended the Bryant & Stratton Commercial College in St. Louis, from which he graduated in 1870. In 1871 he took a position as clerk on the steamer "Viola Bell" of which his father was the owner and which operated between St. Louis and the head-waters of the Missouri. In 1872 he engaged in the general mercantile business in Jefferson City, removing in 1874 to Stringtown, from which place in 1884 he removed to his present location, where, in addition to doing a large business in general merchandising, he is a dealer in railway timber. He is the owner of some valuable timber lands in the country adjacent to Lohman. Mr. Lohman was married in 1873 to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. J. J. Steininger, now deceased, who was a prominent Republican of the Capital City, and under the administration of Garfield and Arthur, its postmaster. Mr. Lohman has one son, whose position as book-keeper of the Merchants' Bank of Jefferson City bears evidence of his sterling character and qualities as a business man. Mr. Lohman is a worthy son of a worthy sire, his father having been one of the most enterprising and successful business men of the Capital City, although misfortune overtook him in his later life, as an honorable citizen none stood higher. Mr. Lohman is a Republican in politics, but takes no active part in political matters, and most worthily performs the duties devolving on a good citizen in all the relations of life.

L. CONRATH.

Louis Conrath was born in the Province of the Rhine, Prussia, November 20, 1828. Attending school at the Kirn until 16 years of age, when he immigrated to London (November 10, 1845), where he was engaged as a baker over three years, when he sailed for America, coming to St. Clair county, Ill., here he was engaged in farming a short time. Later (1850) he went to Hannibal and worked for various bakers four years. Going to Maries county, he entered a claim, cultivating the land a year and a half and disposed of the farm, investing in Moniteau county, near Tipton, where he remained but one year. Giving up his agricultural pursuits, he moved to Jefferson City, and opened a bakery on Madison street, in the building now occupied by the City Hotel office. Two years later he removed to his own building, 405 Madison street, but in 1882, he purchased the ground and erected his present handsome building, 224 E. High, and continued the leading confectionery and bakery until 1893, when he retired from business, disposing of his stock to his son, Julius. In Jefferson City, 1860, he was married to Miss Julia Andrae, which union has been blessed with five children, two sons and three daughters. Julius conducts the business established by his father at the same stand; Fred, who was formerly of the dry goods firm of Conrath & Beck, is in business in St. Louis, Mo. Misses Emma and Alma are at home with their parents. His beautiful daughter, Laura, just reaching the years of womanhood, died in Germany in 1888, where he had taken her in the vain hope that the sea voyage and the climate of his native heath would restore her to her former health. Mr. Conrath is a prominent Republican, who has spent his most useful years as a citizen of Jefferson City, and is now enjoying the fruits of his well spent life at his comfortable home, 224a E. High street.

J. A. DAMPF, D. D. S.

John A. Dampf, D. D. S., the popular dentist of Russellville, whose office is over the Russellville Exchange Bank, was born on a farm one-half mile west of that village, April 5, 1873. Here he was raised and educated, later graduating from the Kansas City Dental School, class of 1898, he having previously assisted Dr. Hammond in his office at Jefferson City. After graduating in 1898, he located at Russellville where he has built up a large practice; in addition to his local practice he visits the various towns of Maries and Miller counties, regularly, having already formed a large acquaintance who are his patrons; his practice increasing as his skill in the profession (of which he has taken an interest since boyhood) becomes known. He is a young man, who keeps abreast with the progress of the age by reading regularly the journals devoted to that profession. Dr. Dampf is a bright, enterprising young man, whose life is full of promise.

LOUIS SCHNEIDER.

Louis Schneider, of Schneider Bros., proprietors of the popular Russellville Hotel, was born on a farm in Cole county, near Taos, May 15, 1869. His education was in the neighboring schools. On reaching his majority he engaged in farming on his own account, in which he continued most successfully until 1897, when he disposed of his agricultural interests and removed to Russellville, building the large and splendid brick hotel, which he now occupies and is conducting most successfully. This magnificent brick building, 56 by 86 feet, two stories, is modern in all of its appointments, the front being of St. Louis pressed brick. This excellent hotel was opened to the public April 2, 1898, on which date the receipts were nearly $200.00. In the experience of the writer he has not found a more comfortable home nor one where the table service was better or the rooms and beds more comfortable and inviting. In fact, it is an unusual building for a town the size of Russellville and is unusually well conducted. In connection with the hotel is a well appointed bar, supplied with everything that can be demanded by the most exacting taste, in the way of wines, brandies, beer, etc. George Schneider the brother of Louis, entered into partnership with him in the management of the hotel and bar in the spring of 1899. His genial presence and business qualifications assisting much in the management of this popular hotel. Mr. Schneider was married July 4, 1899, celebrating the 123rd anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, by joining his fortunes to Miss Katie Schneider, who is now his most congenial, charming and devoted companion.

A. J. BAUER.

August J. Bauer, City Collector of Jefferson City, where he was born, August 8, 1866, is a son of John N. Bauer, deceased, who was for many years a prominent business man of the Capital City. He was educated in the public schools of his native town, graduating from the High School at the age of 16, immediately after which he was engaged with the First National Bank as messenger, in which position he continued two years, when he was promoted to the position of book-keeper, and later paying teller, from which important position, after seven years faithful service, he was forced to retire on account tinnously re-elected since. He is Chairman of the Republican City Central Committee. He was united in marriage to Laura E., daughter of Wendell Straub, cigar manufacturer of this city, October 10, 1893, to this union has been born one son, Harold,

Residence of A. J. Bauer.

now a bright boy of three years. Mr. Bauer is a member of the Evangelical Central Lutheran church. He is Secretary and Treasurer of the Wyaconda Lead and Zinc Mining Co., and also of the Histor Zinc Mining Co., both of this city, and also holds the important position of Secretary of the Home Building and Loan Association. Mr. Bauer is a most worthy citizen in all the relations of life and his sterling worth is recognized by the people who have kept him in important positions of trust; the corporations with which he is associated also avail themselves of his sterling character and business ability by placing him in their most important official positions.

His home is 621 East High street.

CONRAD WALDECKER.

On November 22, 1857, on a farm in Gasconade county, Mo., Conrad Waldecker, the present Prosecuting Attorney of Cole county, made his first appearance on the stage of life, where he continued to act his part until the age of 21, when he entered Central Wesleyan College at Warrenton, Mo., for the purpose of securing a higher education than was afforded by the country schools. Not being blessed with a sufficiency of this world's goods to carry him through college, he engaged in teaching alternately with his attendance at college to secure the necessary funds. After studying law one year in the office of Peers & Morsey at Warrenton, he attended of ill health, when he engaged in the business of fire insurance, establishing an agency, which he has continued since. He was elected City Collector on the Republican ticket, April, 1891, and has been con-

the Missouri State University at Columbia, graduating from the Law Department class in 1889, after which, spending a few months at his old home, he came to Jefferson City and became a law partner of Hon. W. S. Pope, which partnership continued three years. In April, 1893, he was elected City Attorney of Jefferson City, and was re-elected in 1895 and 1897. In 1898 he was elected to his present position, continuing both offices until the expiration of his term as City Attorney in April, 1899. In January, 1899, Mr. Robert P. Stone became associated with him in his legal business, the firm now being Stone & Waldecker. Mr. Waldecker has been a student all of his life and as a result has a richly stored, well-balanced mind.

HON. E. L. KING.

Hon. Edward L. King, the present City Attorney, of Jefferson City, was born in Columbia, Mo., from which place, carrying with him his infant son, his father, ex-Governor King, then a prominent lawyer of Boone county, being appointed Judge of the First Judicial District, removed to Ray county, where he continued during the remainder of his life to make his home on a farm near Richmond. It was on this farm Mr. King grew to manhood, his early education being in the neighboring schools. He graduated from the Missouri University, class '58, and was licensed as a lawyer and admitted to the bar at Richmond, entering the active practice at Chillicothe, soon after which, prompted by the spirit of patriotism and drawn by the fascinations of war he assisted in enlisting the Third M. S. M. cavalry but very soon thereafter was stricken with typhoid fever, which forced his retirement from the ranks he being then at Jefferson City, where, after his recovery, he engaged in the practice of law. Mr. King served one term as attorney of this circuit. He later served two terms as attorney for Cole county, and two terms as City Attorney of Jefferson City; he also represented Cole county one term in the House of Representatives and one term in the Senate, after which he removed to St. Louis and engaged in the practice of law until the spring of 1898, when he returned to the city of his first love resuming the practice of his profession, and was soon after elected City Attorney, which office he now holds. His wife was Miss Jennie Lisle, whom he survives. Although Mr. King was reared in a Democratic, slave-holding family, he was, from his early youth, opposed to slavery, and has been and continues to be a consistent Republican in politics. He is a genial companion, an industrious worker in his profession, a most worthy citizen, and has honorably and conscientiously discharged the duties connected with the many important official positions to which he has been elected. He is an active member of the First Presbyterian church of Jefferson City.

FERDINAND SCHLEER.

Ferdinand Schleer, who died at his home in this city April 22, 1900, was born July 18, 1833, in Baden, Germany. His parents were Joseph and Mary A. (Weiss) Schleer, who were natives of Baden. His education was in the schools of his native town. After his father's death his mother married George F. Weiser. Mr. Schleer immigrated to America in 1857, coming directly to Jefferson City, his stepfather being a rebel and fugitive on account of the insurrection in Baden in 1852, preceded him, and later died in 1859. In June, after his arrival, he learned the tinner's trade, working as an apprentice for three years with Andraes Gandel finger and in different shops. After working a few months with F. W. Mayer he went to St. Louis working at his trade from 1863 until 1868, when he returned to Jefferson City again, working with F. W. Mayer two years. He then (in 1871) engaged in the hardware business in partnership with Geo. Watts, under the firm name of Watts & Schleer, continuing until 1879, when Mr. Schleer purchased his partner's interest, and has since conducted the business alone with success. He served in the Home Guards under Major W. H. Lusk, of this city, three months. He was a member of St. Peter's church.

Mr. Schleer was married July 2, 1865, to Miss Katherine Boumgard, whom he had the misfortune to lose July 24, 1873, leaving a daughter, Bettie, who also died December 28, 1899. He again married in 1876 to Miss Emma Weager, who is the mother of his six children: Joseph, Ferdinand, jr., and Julius continue to conduct their father's store. Sophia and Clara are at home. Morris, a bright lad, is attending St. Peter's parochial school. The home of his surviving widow and children is 213 Dunklin street.

WILLIAM FOWLER.

William Fowler, writer of the Sketch Book prize essay on "Cole County," was born on a farm near Hickory Hill, Cole county, November 8, 1883. His parents were Green C. and Artimifia L. (Henley) Fowler, also natives of Cole county. He lost his mother when eight years of age. His father was again married to Mrs. Eliza E. Karr (nee Amos). In order to give his children a better education his father (who is Assessor of Cole county) removed with his family to Jefferson City, where William is now attending the public schools.

William is a sturdy, practical, well balanced lad, whose well ordered life will doubtless develop into a man of sterling character and a useful citizen.

J. W. SCHULTE.

John W. Schulte was born in Cole county on a farm near Taos, January 19, 1845. At the death of his father, J. G. Schulte, a few months after his birth, his widowed mother, Anna Marie, sold the farm and removed to Jefferson City. She was later united in marriage to Mr. G. H. Dulle, then living on a farm in the western suburbs of the city. On this farm the subject of this sketch was reared, his education being in the Catholic schools in Jefferson City. He continued on the farm, where he was treated as an own son by his step-father, until twenty-four years old, when he entered the mill where he has continued since. By his close and intelligent attention to business he soon acquired the knowledge necessary to assume largely the management of the business, which, under his skillful direction, has grown to its present large proportions. Up to the time of the death of Mr. Dulle, in 1885, the relations existing between he and Mr. Dulle were such that he was known by those not intimate with the circumstances, as his own son, and, in fact, was known only by the name of Dulle. At this time, however, the milling interests were incorporated, he becoming one of the principal stockholders, Secretary, Treasurer and General Manager, in which position he has continued since. Mr. Schulte was united in marriage to Miss Agnes, daughter of Peter and Marie Theresa Reisdorff, whose home was near Lohman, this county. Of the living children born to this union, the eldest, Gerhard Herman, is the book-keeper of the Dulle Milling Co. Theresa Agnes is the wife of Thos. F.

Roach, who is at present book-keeper for the Bockrath Shoe Co., Misses' Clara Louise, and Marie Pauline, the younger sisters, are at home. The three other children born to Mr. and Mrs. Schulte, two girls and one boy, died in infancy. Mr. Schulte is a member of St. Peter's Catholic church, and has been one of the church committee the past twenty years. He is also a member of the C. K. of A. 214, and was for many years Treasurer of that branch. In addition to Mr. Schulte's large milling interests he is a stockholder in the Bockrath Shoe Co., of which he is also a director and Vice-President. He is a most worthy citizen, having acted his part well and credibly in all the relations of life, and is now one of the most substantial and influential citizens of the Capital City. His comfortable home is No. 221 West High street.

R. DALLMEYER.

Rudolph Dallmeyer, President and Treasurer of the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Company of Jefferson City, is the youngest son of the family of nine children of R. H. and Pauline Dallmeyer of Dissen, Province of Hanover, Germany, where the subject of this sketch was born January 27, 1857. He enjoyed the educational advantages of the place of his birth until at the age of less than fifteen he left his parental roof to seek his fortune in the New World. His first stop was in St. Louis, where for three years he occupied a position in a prominent dry goods house. In 1874 he came to Jefferson City and was made manager of the dry goods store of J. T. Craven & Co., W. Q. Dallmeyer being one of the firm, the name of which was afterwards changed to Dallmeyer & Co. In 1881 he embarked in the business of his choice, that of dry goods, on his own account in store on Madison street, now occupied by Geo. Pop. His business, under his successful and active direction soon out-grew the capacity of this store, where Mr. Hugo Monnig built for him a building two doors south of his old stand, to which he removed and occupied both floors. In 1889 he adopted the cash system, which carried with it the attendant advantages and enabled him to give so much better values to his customer, that his business has since continued to enlarge. With his greatly increasing trade, Mr. Dallmeyer found it necessary to secure larger and more commodious quarters for his rapidly growing business, which fact decided him to enlarge and improve his property on East High street, to which he moved in October, 1898, and which the firm at present occupies, it being the largest and most complete dry goods house in Central Missouri, the dimensions of which are 40 by 150 feet, the business occupying the basement and first floor, which is finished throughout in polished oak, heated with hot water, lighted by electricity and gas, supplied with the cash carrier system, in fact, every modern appliance and convenience which can be found in the largest houses of the great cities are here utilized. In 1896 he incorporated his business under the name of R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Company. Mr. Dallmeyer was united in marriage on St. Valentine's Day, 1878, to Louise, daughter of the late Franz Schmidt (who was a prominent and one of the most enterprising citizens of Jefferson City. He built a number of its best buildings, among them the Madison House, the largest hotel in the city.) To this union have been born five children; Frank W., a young man of excellent habits and business training, is Secretary of the R. Dallmeyer Dry Goods Company; Miss Pauline, a highly cultured young lady of a most charming personality, has just returned from Europe, after three and one-half years in perfecting an education in select private schools of Germany and Switzerland; Mathilde K., is attending the High School of Jefferson City; Charles Herman, his fourth child, he had the misfortune to lose at the interesting age of one year; Alvin Rudolph, seven years of age, is attending the private school of Miss Epps of this city. Mr. Dallmeyer is a member of the Evangelical Central church, to which he has been a trustee a number of years.

addition to his large mercantile interests, he is associated with others in valuable mining properties near Joplin, and is also interested in mines of the more precious metals at Cripple Creek and other parts of Colorado. It may be truly said of Mr. Dallmeyer that he is one of the brightest and most thorough dry goods merchants in the State of Missouri, the business of which he is head being the largest and best managed within the State, outside of the large cities. His untiring and well directed efforts, since his youth, when he first launched his bark in Missouri, have been attended with uniform recently moved from Fauquier county, Va., coming by land in the old Virginia wagons, with a large colony. His ancestors on his father's side were English and Scotch and on his mother's, Welsh and German. His first schooling was in a log school house in Troy, Prof. G. C. Broadhead, now of Columbia, being his first teacher. Mr. Green came of old Revolutionary stock, his grandfather, George Green, who was born in 1756 and died in 1853, was with Gen. Benedict Arnold in his memorable winter campaign north toward the Canadian border. He afterward held the rank of Major under General Morgan and received a severe saber cut in the head, at the battle of "The Cowpens." He was a great friend and admirer of Gen. Washington, whom he followed to the grave—their plantations being about twenty-five miles apart. He was distantly related to Gen. Nathaniel Green, both coming from the same Shire in England. His mother was Miss Jane Martin of Culpepper county, Va. His grandfather, Hezekiah Martin, was also a Revolutionary soldier, serving in "Light Horse Harry" Lee's Legion of Virginia Cavalry. At the breaking out of the Civil War, the subject of this sketch was teaching school in West Prairie, Lincoln county, one of his pupils being Elisha Robinson, who was later Circuit Judge in Northeast Missouri and continued success, not as a result of accident, but by thorough training of his well balanced mind, coupled with unceasing industry, impelled by an ambitious spirit, supported by an almost perfect physical manhood. He has been wise in selecting thorough business men as associates, and in employing only the most competent assistants, yet his careful and observing eye still watches closely every feature of his immense business. He is a man blessed with excellent health and a bright mind, and although he has been a continuous and persistent worker since a lad of fifteen, is as active and vigorous as when first he embarked on the sea of commerce. His most interesting and highly cultured family enjoy with him the comforts of a well regulated home at "Maple Terrace," on East High street.

J. H. GREEN.

Joseph Henry Green was born at Troy, Lincoln county, Mo., April 2, 1842. His parents had and is now a prominent railroad attorney in Kansas City. On a Friday afternoon (1861), he dismissed his school expecting to open the following Monday as usual. Borrowing a horse he rode to Troy; on his arrival found Gov. Jackson's proclamation calling for troops. He was already enrolled as a member of Capt. Eppie Sydnor's Co. He sent his horse back to its owner, and with about 700 others, under Capt. Broda Hull, Capt. George Carter and Capt. John Q. Burbridge, of Pike Co., started for Jefferson City. After two days' march they reached the home of Gen. Jeff Jones in Callaway county, where, hearing of their approach, the whole neighborhood had gathered and prepared a feast of boiled ham, chicken, old fashioned Missouri corn light bread and good coffee. After reaching the Missouri River they were unable to cross, as Gen. Lyon had just fought the battle of Boonville and had the Missouri River guarded. The command, then under Gen. Tom Harris and Col. Burbridge, broke up into squads. Young Green with his stepbrother, James Carter, worked their way south, and on Sept. 3, 1861, joined

Capt. Martin Burke's Co., "D., 1st Mo. Infantry at New Madrid, Mo. The intrepid John S. Bowen was Colonel, and was afterward Major-General. During the long and tragic conflict following, Mr. Green was in a number of the great battles between the North and South. He was wounded at the battle of Champion Hill and his step brother, James Carter, was killed at the same time. He was discharged on account of disability, coming across the river where he was commissioned Colonel by Gen. Price and sent to Missouri to recruit. He was captured, and with Col. Burbridge, Gen. Jeff. Thomson and others, taken to Gratiot Street Prison, then to Johnson Island and exchanged. After the surrender at the close of the war he went to Old Mexico. Returning, he stopped at Rolla for a time with his brother, James A. Green, now of Cuba. Coming to Jefferson City in 1867, he engaged in the fire insurance business, as general agent for the Farmers' and Merchants' Insurance Co. After two years he became one of the promoters of the Life Association of America, in which he did a large business, organizing special boards in different parts of the State, and engaged in the general real estate business at Sedalia, in which he continued some 20 years, 10 years of the time he was general land agent of the M., K. & T. Railroad, a connection which resulted in his handling large bodies of land in the states of Kansas and Texas.

He removed from Sedalia to Jefferson City in 1899, from which point he still looks after the sale of lands in all parts of the country. He was united in marriage, May 6, 1868, to Miss Eliza, daughter of James B. McHenry, of Jefferson City, who was the mother of his interesting children, the eldest of whom, Bessie, is the wife of Sidney J. Twyman, of St. Joseph, Mo.; Mabel is a young lady at home; Percy is a civil engineer in the employ of the United States Government, at present located at Louisville, Ky. He had the misfortune to lose by death his congenial and devoted wife. He was united in marriage to Miss Emma McHenry (a lady of culture and charming personality), a sister of his former wife, January 14, 1896. Mr. Green is a member of the Presbyterian church, also of the Maccabees, and was Door-Keeper of the House—28th General Assembly (1875). He has been one of the most active real estate men in the State, his operations in lands having been very extensive. He has removed to Jefferson City and located permanently, making his home at No. 215 Stewart street, the old home of his father-in-law, the late J. B. McHenry.

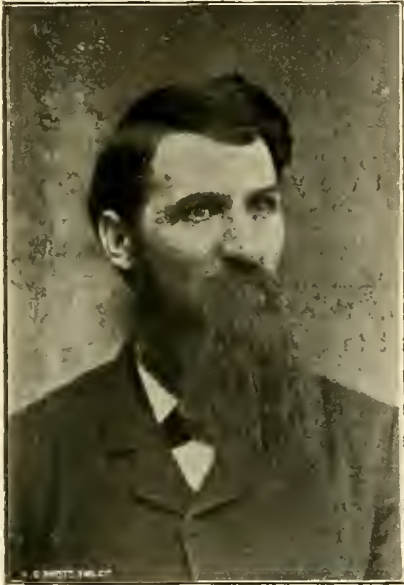

B. F. OLIVER.

Benjamin Franklin Oliver, the popular landscape artist and photographer of Jefferson City, was born on a farm in Callaway county, six miles northeast of Jefferson City, April 14, 1858. Here he was raised and educated in the nearby schools. At sixteen he apprenticed himself to a photographer at Shelbyville, Ill. Soon after he came to Jefferson City, and, after a few months with Mr. Suden, he traveled with a portable gallery. He spent one year at Sweet Springs, and later made his headquarters at Butler, Bates county. From here he removed to Sedalia, where he remained with the famous artist, Latour, three years, when he removed to Kansas City and engaged in the work of enlarging portraits and selling the material incident to that business. In this work he traveled over a large portion of Kansas and Nebraska, later locating at Fulton, Mo., where he remained seven years, engaging in the work of his art. While at Fulton he made the many fine views for the State, which they used in their exhibit at the World's Fair at Chicago. In 1894 he removed his headquarters to Jefferson City, where he has continued and makes frequent extended tours through the country, taking views of landscapes, etc. He was married in Kansas City, 1884, to Miss Carrie Hardin, who is the mother of his six children, all of whom are at home. His widowed mother also makes her home with him, and, in addition to his other duties, he looks after her farm, which is across the river, in Callaway county. Mr. Oliver has had large experiences in his work, and has some very fine negatives taken from views and scenes in different parts of the country. He doubtless has covered with his camera more people than any other artist in the State. He is a member of the Maccabees at Fulton. In addition to his business as a photographer, Mr. Oliver is a chicken fancier, the finest Barred Plymouth Rocks and Brown Leghorns in the State being represented in his poultry yard.

I. M. GEORGE.

I. M. George, Assistant Cashier of the Russellville Exchange Bank, is the son of Rufus and Prudence McGirk George (the mother being a niece of Judge Mathias McGirk, one of the first Chief Justices of the Supreme Court of Missouri), early pioneers of Moniteau County, from Tennessee. He was born August 29, 1844, on a farm in Moniteau County, where he continued with his father until twenty-one years of age, being educated in the neighboring schools. He engaged in farming on his own account near his birth-place, until 1884, when he was elected to the pains-taking office of Assessor of Moniteau County, on the ticket which elected Cleveland, the first Democratic President after the war. At this time he removed to Clarksburg, three years later returning to his farm, which he sold in 1892, and purchased his present home, known as the Judge Short farm, one-half mile west of Russellville, at which place he has continued a successful farmer since. He was one of the organizers of the Russellville Exchange Bank, and the first Assistant Cashier, which place he, however, soon after resigned, but was re-elected in December, 1899. His wife was Miss Sarah C., daughter of John A. Short of Russellville; he has a family of five boys and three girls, all of whom are at home with their parents. He is a member of the Presbyterian church and was a member of the I. O. O. F. until their lodge room was destroyed by fire, when they lost their charter, which has not since been renewed. He is an active Democrat in politics, and a most worthy man, credibly discharging all the duties devolving upon a good citizen.

W. F. McMILLIN.

Walter Frazier McMillin, son of Samuel H. McMillin, was born in Dunlap, Kansas, December 23, 1879. At the age of two years he removed with his parents to Jefferson City, Mo., where he has spent most of his life, and is a Missourian by education and inclination, if not by birth. He received his preparatory education in the public schools of Jefferson City, being graduated from the High School at the age of seventeen. He entered Westminster College in September of the year 1897, taking the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He is a member of the Philolethian Literary Society of Westminster College, where he has enjoyed and improved the opportunities for developing in debate and oratory, which prepared him for the successful contest with other oratorical aspirants, held in that college on February 6, 1900, entitling him to take part in the inter-collegiate contest, held in Columbia, Mo., March 2, 1900, but having taken a severe cold (rendering him unable to raise his voice above a whisper), he was compelled to give up the contest to his great discomfort. He made his first public appearance as an orator, this year, in the local contest, but won second honor in the declamatory contest of 1899. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity.

R. C. McMAHAN.

Russell C. McMahan, the subject of this sketch (a typical Missouri boy), was born in Saline county at the historical old town of Arrow Rock, of parents both native Missourians. His biography is necessarily brief as he has just seen fourteen years. When nine years old he came to Jefferson City to live, entering the public school, where he has been a pupil since. He was appointed a Page for the 39th General Assembly, and served in that capacity with much honor to himself, being highly complimented by many of the most prominent members of that body. In 1899 the Speaker of the 40th General Assembly, W. J. Ward, honored him with a place at his side as private Page. The duties not being in the least irksome, he had ample time and opportunity to observe and listen to the representatives of the different counties of Missouri, and learned much about his native State. He boasts of being descended from many of Missouri's most prominent men of the past, and is a nephew of the present Governor, Lon V. Stephens. He is an inveterate reader with a fine memory, few of his age being as well informed.

He is a member of the M. E. Church (South) of Jefferson City, having received more than one prize for regular attendance and good lessons at Sunday School.

He wrote the Sketch Book Prize Essay on Mis-

sonri, which appears on another page of this volume, a production of which he may be justly proud. His home is with his parents, Jackson Place, Jefferson City.

G. W. HOUGH.

George W. Hough, was born in Loudon County, Virginia, April 17, 1808, and was married to Miss Mary C. Shawen, at Waterford, Virginia, March 24, 1833. His earlier ancestor was John Hough, who removed from Bucks County, Pennsylvania, to Loudon County, Va., about the year 1750, and there married Sarah Janney, whose family had also moved from Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and who was great aunt to John Janney, President of the Virginia Secession Convention of 1861. John Hough was a grandson of Richard Hough who came from Cheshire, England, to Pennsylvania under the auspices of William Penn. in the ship "Endeavor," landing in Philadelphia in 1638.

In 1837 Mr. Hough moved to St. Louis County, Missouri, bringing with him a stock of goods, which he disposed of in St. Louis. In 1838 he moved to Jefferson City, where he was engaged in merchandising until the year 1854, when he retired from business pursuits.

For forty years, Mr. Hough was a man of marked prominence and influence not only in this locality, but throughout the State. It is no idle compliment to say that during the decade preceding the war his was considered the leading mind in his party, and that he did more to shape the policy and defend the principles of the Democratic side than any other member of the organization.

He was fond of political excitement and discussions, but in no sense a seeker of office. His acknowledged abilities, rather than a desire for notoriety, forced him prominently before the public on occasions when he would, if his own wishes had been consulted, have remained in the background.

In 1842-3 he represented Cole County in the General Assembly with marked ability. In 1844 he took an active part in the organization of "The Missouri Historical and Philosophical Society," which was afterwards incorporated by an act of the General Assembly of Missouri, approved February 27, 1845.

He was one of the charter members of the society and its Treasurer for a number of years. This society included in its list of members many of the most prominent men of the State. In 1854 he was the candidate of the Democratic party for Congress and engaged actively in the political controversies of the day, which were then of a very fervid character and plainly foreshadowed the great contest of 1861 to 1865.

In conjunction with Judge William B. Napton and Judge William Scott, then on the Supreme bench of Missouri, and Judge Carby Wells of Marion county, Mr. Hough participated in framing the famous "Jackson Resolutions" introduced by Claibourne F. Jackson, afterwards Governor, in the Missouri Legislature in 1849, which resolutions occasioned the celebrated appeal of Col. Thomas H. Benton from the instructions of the Legislature to the people of Missouri. Those resolutions looked forward to a conflict between the Northern and Southern States, and pledged Missouri to a co-operation with her sister States of the South. The leading Democrats of Missouri were then known as Calhoun Democrats, chief among them being David R. Atchison, William B. Napton, James S. Green, Carby Wells, Claibourne F. Jackson and George W. Hough, and the bitter personal hostility existing between Calhoun and Benton was much intensified by these resolutions, the authorship of which Col. Benton attributed to Calhoun. The result of the canvass was Col. Benton's retirement from the United States Senate.

Soon after making his unsuccessful canvass for Congress in 1854 Mr. Hough was appointed by Gov. Sterling Price a member of the Board of Public Works of Missouri, of which board he was President, which was then charged with the supervision of all the railroads in the State to which State aid had been granted. At the general election in 1860 he was elected to the same office; while a member of this Board he devoted his entire time to the public interests in this connection and rendered valuable service in conserving the interests of the State in these various railroad enterprises. It was admitted, at the time, that he would have succeeded Gov. Jackson as Governor of Missouri, but for the breaking out of the Civil War. Mr. Hough was stronger in the convention of 1860 than was Gov. Jackson and could have had the nomination if he had contended for it, but he yielded to the friends of the nominee, upon the assurances that he should have no opposition for the next term. During the campaign of 1860 he made a thorough canvass of the State with Governor Jackson, and his discussions of State and National affairs, in that canvass, were considered, by all who heard them, the ablest ever delivered on that side by any man in the State. His reports on railroad matters attracted general attention and elicited the highest compliments for the fairness and ability with which he presented the facts.

He was frequently tendered positions in the Government service, among them Second Auditor of the Treasury, which would have necessitated his removal to the National Capital, but declined to accept such appointment. He was for a time Curator of the Missouri University, and in conjunction with Dr. Elliot of St. Louis, he did much to benefit that institution. He contributed largely to the formation of the legislation essential to the development of the resources of the State. He had a knowledge of the political history of the country unsurpassed by that of any one in the State, and a superior knowledge also of general history, constitutional law, literature and the science of government. Mr. Hough died February 13, 1878.

He has six children living: Mrs. Dr. George B. Winston, Judge Warwick Hough, Mrs. John P. Keiser, Dr. Charles P. Hough, Arthur M. Hough and Miss Georgia B. Hough.

J. A. LINHARDT.

John A. Linhardt, City Treasurer of Jefferson City, was born in Stringtown, twelve miles west of the city, April 14, 1863, from which place he came to Jefferson City with his parents, at the age of one year. His father, J. C. Linhardt, engaged in the grocery business, in which he continued until his death. The subject of this sketch was educated in the public schools. His father died in 1884, when he took charge of the store for his mother, Margaret Linhardt, after one year purchasing the business, which he has conducted since with success. He was elected City Councilman from the Second Ward in the Spring of 1888, serving one term, declining a re-election. During his term he took an active part in changing the city from a fourth to a third-class city. Was elected on the Republican ticket City Treasurer April, 1899, which office he now holds. Is a director of the Home Building and Loan Association, a member of the Elks and the Knights of Maccabees, of which he is Financial Keeper or Treasurer; a member of the Evangelical Central church. Mr. Linhardt has not yet assumed the responsibilities of a benedict.

F. H. BINDER.

Frederick H. Binder is a native of Hanover, Germany, where he was educated and grew to manhood. He fitted himself for the profession of architecture many after five years sojourn. It was in 1867 that he came to Jefferson City, and since that time has resided here. He commenced life here as a journeyman carpenter, but it was not long before he was foreman for his employer and soon thereafter entered upon a career as architect and builder. The new State University building, Columbia; State Reform School, Boonville; School, Chapel and additions to the State Deaf and Dumb and Lunatic Asylums, Fulton, Mo.; State Industrial School for Girls, Chillicothe, Mo.; St. Peter's and Evangelical Central churches and with few exceptions, all the prominent business and residence buildings erected from 1873-1892, in Jefferson City, are results of his labor. The United States Court House and Post Office building, costing $150,000, was erected under his supervision as Superintendent of Construction of the U. S. Treasury Department. Mr. Binder has many architectural monuments to his credit. He is President of the Jefferson City Water Works Co., and the system, one of the best of its kind, was constructed under his supervision. He was the largest subscriber to the bridge enterprise, and one of the first to recognize the importance of building the bridge and was nurturing in his efforts to bring about the consummation of that great enterprise. He was its first, and is now President and Manager of the Bridge & Transit Company. For the past 25 years he has been one of our leading men, for there is no movement looking to the advancement and up-building of Jefferson City in which he cannot be found at the front.

Time and again Mr. Binder has been honored by his fellow citizens. He was elected Mayor in 1884 without opposition, served in the City Council, and from 1878-83, was Secretary and member of the City Board of Education. He was one of the original founders of the first Jefferson City Building and Loan Association, organized in Jefferson City. He was its first President, and is still holding that position. He is broad and liberal in his views and a man of the strictest integrity.

Mr. Binder resides in a modest, comfortable home on Dunklin street, where, in his moments of leisure he can gratify his taste for literature. He was married in 1868, to Katherine Blochberger, of Jefferson City, who is still his devoted and congenial companion. He has one child, Fred C. Binder, who is associated with his father in his various enterprises and is Superintendent and Treasurer of the Water Works Co.

Fred Binder, jr., is married and with his charming wife (formerly Miss Alma, daughter of W. W. Wagner, of Jefferson City), resides at 109 West High street.

and building. When 20 years old he came to the United States, with the intention to learn the ways and methods of the new world, and returned to Ger-

W. A. DALLMEYER.

William Augustus Dallmeyer, Assistant Cashier of the Exchange Bank of Jefferson City, son of W. Q. and Louise (Lange) Dallmeyer, was born December 17, 1865, on a farm in Gasconade county, Mo. His parents removed to Jefferson City three years later, where he acquired his early education in the public schools of the city, later attending the celebrated Kemper School at Boonville (which was at that time conducted by the famous educator Frederick T. Kemper), graduating in the class of 1882, in the Academic and Latin courses. Following the completion of his education he entered (August 2, 1882), as collector of the bank in which he is now Assistant Cashier, from which position he was soon advanced to book-keeper, then paying and receiving teller, and later to his present position of Assistant Cashier, he now performing virtually all the duties of Cashier of this, one of the largest and most prosperous banking concerns in Central Missouri. Mr. Dallmeyer, in addition to being a stockholder in the bank, of which he is director, is a stockholder and director of the Jefferson City Building and Loan Association, is Secretary and director of the Jefferson City Water Works Co., stockholder and Treasurer of the Park Land and Mining Co., and stockholder in the Jefferson City Bridge and Transit Co., he being the first mover in this enterprise, having brought an engineer here to make the survey and estimate the cost before the building of the bridge was discussed by the citizens. He was ten years Treasurer of Jefferson City. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter, and Knights Templar, and of the latter, Treasurer. He is also a member of the Brotherhood of Elks; was a member of the Citizen's Safety Committee, of which he was Treasurer. An active member of the committee to secure the enactment by the Legislature of a law requiring the words "yes" and "no" to be placed on ballots for Constitutional amendments. He was Treasurer of the Capital Removal Committee, one of the original organizers and a large contributor to the fund, and an effective fighter against the removal. He has been, since assuming the responsibilities of business life, not only a liberal contributor, but an active worker in the promotion and advancement of every enterprise, large and small, proposed for the general interest of the Capital City.

He was united in marriage October 12, 1898, to Olive, daughter of the late Judge Gilson T. Ewing, of this county, who is the mother of his infant daughter, Kathryn. Mr. Dallmeyer is a fine specimen of physical manhood, an ardent lover of the manly sports, being especially fond of his rod and gun, a lover of the National game, base ball, and is at present Treasurer of the State Horse Show Association of Jefferson City.

He has prepared an artificial lake on the Ewing farm, and is having it stocked with game fish. His comfortable home, 615 East Main street, is presided over by his charming wife, who, in addition to her other varied accomplishments, has a rich and highly cultured voice, which she exercises, to the very great delight of those who are so fortunate as to be among her list of friends and visitors.

E. R. HOGG.

Edwin R. Hogg was born October 16, 1863, at Hannibal, Mo., attending the public schools of that city until 15 years of age, when he went to work in his father's planing mill, where he continued three years. When of age he went to Western Kansas to take charge of the lumber yard of S. A. Braun & Co. After six months he resigned this position and traveled for John J. Cruikshank, of Hannibal, Mo., selling lumber in the West until March, 1893, when he came to Jefferson City and purchased of Capt. J. L. Keown his lumber yard, where he has continued since and built up a large and prosperous business, selling lumber extensively in five counties. In Jefferson City, January 16, 1895, he was married to Miss Maude McHenry, daughter of James E. McHenry. The ties of this union have been strengthened by the birth and presence of two boys, Ed. R., jr., and Jack C. Mr. Hogg is a member of the M. W. A., K. of P., and the Elks. His every move in life has been attended with uniform success. He is President of the Home Building and Loan Association, which, under his direction, has developed into one of the strongest in the city. Though a prominent Democrat, he has never held or sought office. He was strongly urged to make the race for Mayor of Jefferson City in the Spring of 1899, but feeling that his business required his whole time, he declined the proffered honor. Mr. Hogg is a progressive, public spirited man and one who lends his influence to every movement to forward the interests of the city of his adoption. As a business man, he is recognized as one of the best in the State.

L. C. LOHMAN.

Louis C. Lohman, President of the Missouri Illustrated Sketch Book Company and wholesale and retail dealer in hardware and groceries, was born in Jefferson City, October 31, 1850. His parents were Charles F. and Henrietta Lohman, natives of Prussia, who immigrated to America in 1842, stopping about two years in St. Louis, where they were united in marriage, from which place, starting to the State of California, Mr. Lohman was influenced to stop in Jefferson City, where he remained, becoming one of the wealthiest and most prominent business men in Central Missouri. His commercial operations, in addition to his large interests in Jefferson City, being at Sedalia, Otterville and other places. He had also large investments in steamboats, which were at that time the popular means of travel and transportation. In later life he met with financial reverses, but is remembered by the older citizens of Cole county and Central Missouri, as a man of remarkable business ability, sterling worth and integrity. Louis C. Lohman, after receiving the advantages of the excellent schools of his native town, later attended Wyman's University at St. Louis. At the age of eighteen he entered the store of his father in this city, as clerk, in which position he continued about a year, when he was employed as a clerk on the steamer "Viola Belle," of which his father was principal owner; after continuing in this position for two years he returned to the store of his father as clerk. In 1871 he associated as partner in the business and in 1874 purchased the entire stock and has continued to most successfully conduct the business since. During 1889 and up to the Fall of 1892 he operated the steamboats Hugo, Black Diamond, Carrier, Edna and Sport on the Missouri and Osage rivers in connection with the Missouri Pacific Railroad. When the M., K. & T. was built, this business became unprofitable and was abandoned. Mr. Lohman has been steamboat agent for the Star Line, St. Louis and Omaha Packet companies from 1868 until railroad competition finally drove them out of the business. He was united in marriage in Jefferson City September 6, 1886, to Miss Amelia, daughter of C. Staats, a native of Germany. To this union has been born three sons and one daughter; Ira and Louis are students at the public school; Sylvester, is two years of age; Margarette Henrietta is an infant girl born April 3, 1900. Mr. Lohman, in addition to his large mercantile interests, is owner and manager of the Lohman Opera House. He is also a large stockholder in the Merchants Bank, of which he is President, and is a stockholder and for many years was a director in the First National Bank. He has a large amount of valuable residence and business property in Jefferson City, and is also a large property owner in Kansas City, Mo., Ft. Smith, Ark., Sioux City, Ia., and in addition seven or eight thousand acres of valuable land in various counties of the State, under the surface of a large portion of which are rich mineral deposits of lead, iron and jack. He is associated with Jacob C. Fisher in valuable gold properties a ping about two years in St. Louis, where they were united in marriage, from which place, starting to the State of California, Mr. Lohman was influenced ripple Creek, Colo., and real estate in Anaconda, Mont. In 1893 Mr. Lohman erected an elegant home, in the suburbs of the city on South Jefferson. He is not a politician, but his views are decidedly in sympathy with the Republican party with which he affiliates and to which he gives his strong and unreserved support. He has been eminently successful as a financier, the prudent exercise of his far-reaching judgment having been attended with marked financial success. He is physically well preserved and is as vigorous as he was at the age of twenty-five. In addition to his practical business education and experience he has been quite a traveler and observer. In 1878 he made an extensive tour across the waters, visiting England, France, Switzerland and Germany and has traveled extensively in the United States.

L. S. PARKER.

Lester S. Parker, President and Treasurer of The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, was born in Worcester, Mass., from which place, at the age of three, his parents removed to Lexington, Ky. From there, after five years, they removed to Chicago, where his father, Geo. C. Parker, was engaged in manufacturing shoes for the great firm of Phelps, Dodge & Palmer. His home was the first house consumed by the great fire of 1871, after Mrs. O'Leary's famous cow kicked over the lamp. Soon after the great conflagration the family removed to Baltimore, the subject of this sketch going to Worcester to attend college. While in Worcester he was an active member of the Massachusetts Natural History Association, having charge of an important work in ornithology. Later entering Baltimore College, he graduated in the class of 1879, his education having been acquired with the view of practicing law; removing to Kansas, near Salina, he was the following five years engaged consecutively in the practice of law, in teaching, farming, sheep and cattle raising. In 1894 he removed to St. Paul, Minn., where he was employed as foreman in the shoe factory of Kellogg & Johnson of that city. One year later, going to Chicago, he associated with C. M. Henderson & Co., in organizing the Jefferson Shoe Company for the purpose of manufacturing shoes in Jefferson City, and was made Superintendent and General Manager. In 1895, just before the death of Mr. Henderson, the plant was removed to Dixon, Ill., when Mr. Parker disposed of his interest and organized the present company, incorporating under the name of The L. S. Parker Shoe Co., his associates being F. N. Chandler, Vice-President and Manager of the factory, and George Elston,

Secretary. Mr. Parker was married in 1882 at Salina, Kan., to Miss Katie Lockard, of that city, who is the mother of his daughter, Gracie, and his son, Dan, both of whom are attending the public schools of this city. This devoted companion he had the misfortune to lose by death in November, 1890. He was a second time united in marriage in May, 1895, to Miss M. Sue O'Bannon, daughter of Capt. O'Bannon, a prominent farmer of Cass county, and a former Representative of that commonwealth in the State Legislature. She was the mother of two children, Alice, now aged four years, and Lester O'Bannon, an infant of eighteen months. To this devoted companion he also had to perform the sad duty of following to the grave in September, 1899. Mr. Parker, notwithstanding his large experience and eventful history, is still in the prime of life. His opportunities for learning the shoe business, coupled with his natural talent for making them, (having now in his possession one he made complete when nine years of age) he has used to good purpose, as the factory of which he is President is running full time, giving employment to 230 people, and is now over 65,000 pairs short in filling orders. The company manufactures exclusively workmen's shoes of various kinds of leather, but all substantial. They sell only to jobbers in large quantities. In addition to his large shoe manufacturing interests,

Mr. Parker is associated with others in valuable mining property near Joplin, which is now yielding a good return. He is also largely interested in the popular summer resort at South Haven, Mich., the company, of which he was one of the original promoters, being the Monroe Park Cottage Company, which owns a large number of furnished cottages at that famous resort on the great lakes. Mr. Parker is a member of the First Baptist church of Jefferson City, of which he is trustee and active in his church duties. He was for some time Superintendent of the Sunday-school and now teaches a class. The melody of the church choir is regularly enriched by his well-trained tenor voice. He is also one of the Board who looks after Baptist State Missions and Sunday-schools, and is one of the working force of the State B. Y. P. U., which organization he served two terms as Vice-President.

CHARLES OPEL.

Charles Opel, Vice-President, Business Manager and Treasurer of the Missouri Illustrated Sketch Book Company, one of the most prominent architects and builders of Central Missouri, is a native of Jefferson City, the son of Adam and

Charlotte Opel; born June 23, 1857. His education was in the public schools of his native town. Mr. Opel, in his profession, is what may be termed a self-made man, his knowledge of the technical and painstaking work being acquired by his own study and experience. He first learned the trade of cabinet maker and later assisted his father, who was a builder, associating with him in business in 1882, when they opened the present office on Madison street. Among the many monuments which bear evidence of his skill and taste, as well as his executive ability, and of which he was architect and builder, we mention the lovely homes of this city of Gov. L. V. Stephens, Postmaster George F. Robinson, M. R. Sinks, the grocery merchant Joseph R. Edwards, attorney; Capt. W. H. Brantley, John Tweedie, sr., and H. F. Priesmeyer, shoe manufacturers. He was also the architect of the imposing buildings of the Lincoln Institute, the First and Second Baptist churches, the improvements which have added so much in elegance and beauty to Mr. Sullivan's home on East Main, the Schultz store, the M. E. church South (now building) and the many substantial and elegant buildings which make Russellville the most imposing village in this part of the State. He was also architect of the Evangelical church at California, Mo., the symmetrical beauty of which is remarked by observers. He was married in November, 1881, to Miss Myrtle C. Hughes; has six children living: Vernie, Jess, Carl, Edward, Frank and Norman, having also one boy, George, at the age of four. Mr. Opel has been and is a valuable citizen of the Capital City, taking an interest in every measure to add to its artificial beauty as well as other means to material progress. He is at present Secretary of the Commercial Club, an organization the purpose of which is to look after and advance the general interests of the city. He is a strong advocate of the Single-Tax theories, promulgated by the great philosopher and writer on social problems, Henry George, and is at present State President of the Single Tax League. He is a fluent writer and a speaker, and wields an effective lance in defense of the principles he advocates. His comfortable home is in the western suburbs of the city.

ALBERT KROEGER.

Albert Kroeger, editor of the Missouri Volksfreund, is a native of Germany, born near Meppen, Hanover, December 25, 1850. His parents were Gerhard Henry and Anna Adelheid (Wangel) Kroeger. He immigrated to America in 1862 with his parents, coming direct to Jefferson City, where he arrived in October, being then 13 years of age. Three years later he began as type-setter in the office of the Missouri Staats-Zeitung, where he completed his trade, after which he worked in different printing offices of the West until February, 1876, when he purchased the plant of the Fortschritt, and begun the publication of the Missouri Volksfreund, which he has continued to conduct with marked success since, it now being the most influential German Weekly published in Central Missouri. He has served two terms as City Councilman. He was united in marriage in this city October 16, 1882, to Mathilda, daughter of John and Crescentia (Wagner) Wengert, natives of Bavaria. To this union has been born nine children; Otto, a young man of unusual promise and exceptional habits, looks after the composition and make-up of his father's publication, the Missouri Volksfreund; Christina, Leo, he has given his unswerving loyalty during more than one-third of a century of his residence here. By his personal correspondence and through his paper he secured the active opposition of the German papers throughout the State to the Capital removal, the evidence being very clear that the Germans throughout the State almost without exception voted against the movement.

His paper has been a welcome visitor in the homes of the thrifty German families of Jefferson City and Cole county for nearly a quarter of a century, and its columns have been kept so clean and forceful in the presentation of everything that it is regarded as the oracle largely influencing the thoughts and actions of the German element throughout the city and county.

J. G. LESLIE.

John Grant Leslie, associate editor of the Daily and Weekly Press and also a stockholder in the Press Printing Company, was born on a farm near Russellville, January 9, 1864. He is a son of Andrew Jackson and Elizabeth Stark Leslie. He was reared on the farm of his birth, his early education being in the neighboring schools, graduating in the class of 1892 from Clarksburg College, after which he continued two years in the exalted work of teaching. He taught at Jamestown, Smithton, Clarksburg and other places, his last engagement in this profession being as principal of the Jefferson City High School. While engaged in teaching, he served two terms as Superintendent of Public Schools of Cole county. During his educational work Mr. Leslie studied law and was admitted to the bar by Judge Dorsey W. Shackelford, now a member of Congress from this district. He continued in this profession, making his home in Jefferson City, for about two years, when he was drawn into newspaper work, first as correspondent and reporter of the St. Louis Star. Later he became the Jefferson City correspondent of the St. Louis Republic and Kansas City Times, which duty he still performs. He was two years local editor of the Daily and Weekly Tribune, which work he discontinued when that plant changed owners after the death of the President, H. W. Ewing, soon after which he engaged in his present work, being one of the organizers of the Press Printing Company. He was married April 21, 1897, to Miss Maud, daughter of Andrew J. Curnutt. Mr. Leslie is a member of the Jefferson Lodge, No. 43, A., F. & A. M. of the Jefferson City Camp, M. W. A., 2304, and of the R. N. A. Coronation Camp, 1306. He is a Rosa, Paulina, Caecilia, Agnes, Paul and Mathilda, all of whom, with his congenial and devoted wife and his sister, Anna, form an unbroken and interesting family circle at his home, 409 Mulberry street. Mr. Kroeger is a member of St. Peter's Catholic church, of which he has been one of the choir more than 30 years. He is a member of St. Peter's Benevolent Society, of which he is Treasurer; also of St. John's Orphan Society.

Mr. Kroeger's early education was in the common schools of Germany, being completed in the great practical school found in the printing offices, his being in those of Kansas City and St. Louis. He is a most worthy citizen of Jefferson City, to which young man blessed with a fine physique and a good mind, his facile pen has for several years been a potent factor in presenting to the people through the newspapers important facts and ideas in the interest of Democracy, and, in addition, wielding a well-directed and effective lance at the weak points of the Republican party. His comfortable home, No. 204 Ash street, is brightened by the presence of little Leta Irene, his only child, age two years.

A. C. SHOUP.

Alfred C. Shoup was born on a farm near Mansfield, in Richland county, Ohio, July 2, 1853, from which place, when six years of age, his parents, Henry and Mary Shoup, removed to Jefferson City; his early education was in the public schools, until 13; when not at school he assisted his father, who was a woolen manufacturer. At the age of 13 he entered the employ of Louis Conrath, a confectioner of Jefferson City, continuing two years, when he engaged with Mr. Zuber, also a confectioner and caterer. In 1870 he entered the office of the People's Tribune as an apprentice, the proprietors at that time being Regan & Howes. His aptitude and intelligent application resulted in his advancement to the position of foreman of the job department in 1872, in which position he continued until 1884, when Mr. Henry W. Ewing purchased a controlling interest in the Tribune Printing Company. On assuming control, Mr. Ewing recognized the value Mr. Shoup's experience and business sagacity, naming him Business Manager of the entire plant, which included in its scope the Daily and Weekly Tribune. In this important position he continued until changes occurred resulting from the death of Mr. Ewing. To Mr. Shoup may be credited largely the upbuilding and financial success of that great newspaper and general publishing plant. On June 1899, in connection with others, most of whom were associated with him during his management of the Tribune, he organized the Press Printing Company of which he is President and Business Manager and which, under his skillful management (profiting by his large experience and long connection with the Tribune), has made a phenomenal financial and g eral success from the start. The daily and weekly taking at once first place among the leading publications in the Capital City, the recognition of the value of its columns as an advertising medium being attested by the large space used by the shrewd business men of Jefferson City. He was married December 6, 1882, to Miss Emma, daughter of Mrs. Lou C. Murrain, of Linneus, Linn county, Mo., now a resident of Brookfield. This union has been blessed with four children; Miss Estelle M., Claude H., and Hermia are attending school. Ralph, a bright boy of 8, met a tragic death August 4, 1896, be drowned in a pool while engaged in play with his young companions. Mr. Shoup is a member of the A. O. U. W. His comfortable home, corner of Dunklin and Adams, is highly favored by the presence of a wife of culture and personal beauty and an exceptionally charming daughter of 16, Miss Estelle.

J. H. EDWARDS.

Joseph Harry Edwards, editor of the Jefferson City Daily and Weekly Press and Secretary and Treasurer of the Press Printing Company, was born in St. Charles, Mo., February 12, 1862, where he remained until seventeen years of age, attending the public schools of the town. After reading law in the office of his uncle, Abner Edwards, who was State Senator from that district a number of years, he removed to Glasgow. In 1883, coming to Jefferson City, the subject of this sketch was made Docket Clerk of the Senate the second time, he having served in that position in 1881; he was also city editor of the People's Tribune, and, in 1884, when Mr. H. W. Ewing secured control of the Tribune Printing Company and was made President, he was made Secretary and Treasurer, in which position he continued until he disposed of his stock in connection with the Ewing estate, November, 1898. In January, 1899, he was unanimously elected Official Reporter of the Senate. In June, in connection with others, he organized the Press Printing Company, of which he is, as stated above, Secretary and Treasurer, and also editor-in-chief of the Daily and Weekly Press. He is a member of the Democratic Central Committee of the Eighth District. He was united in marriage January 31, 1894, to Mary M., daughter of the late James E. Carter, one of the former owners of the Tribune and several terms Mayor of the city. To this union has been born three children; Roxana is five years of age, Carter three and Harry, an infant. He is a member of the Elks, A. O. U. W., L. O. H., K. of P. and M. W. A. Mr. Edwards has been one of the most prominent and influential figures in Jefferson City since his connection with the Tribune in 1884. He is recognized as one of the best journalists in Central Missouri; as Associate Editor of the Tribune for many years he assisted in directing the policy of that paper and during the last few years of the life of Mr. Ewing, on account of the latter's ill health, the responsibility of directing this powerful organ of Democracy devolved largely upon him. The work of his pen, however, has not been confined to the local press. He has been for many years the Jefferson City correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-

Democrat, and performed the same duties for the Kansas City Times until the recent change in the ownership of that paper, since which time the Kansas City Journal has been so fortunate as to secure his contributions from the Capital City. He is an excellent citizen and fully alive to the interests of his city, county and state, as well as the general interest of the great Democratic organization, which has for many years had his loyal and intelligent support.

The home of Mr. Edwards, with his cultured, accomplished wife and bright children, is in his lovely flat, 116a E. High street.

E. W. STEPHENS.

Edwin W. Stephens, President of the Tribune Printing Company of Jefferson City, Mo., Publisher of the Columbia (Mo.) Herald, and proprietor of the E. W. Stephens' Publishing House, Columbia, Mo., the largest, most complete and perfectly equipped printing establishment in a city of that size in the United States, is a son of James L. Stephens, who immigrated to Boone county with his parents from Kentucky in 1819. His mother was Amelia, daughter of L. O. Hockaday of Callaway county. He was born in Columbia, Missouri, January 21, 1849. Few men have been more fortunate in parentage and environments conducive to the development of a well rounded and useful man. He was born, reared and continues to live in what is justly termed "The Athens of Missouri," where he has enjoyed and taken advantage of all the educational advantages necessary for his full and complete mental development. Early in life he chose as his profession the business of a publisher, entering the office of one of the weekly publications of that city, where he learned by practical experience every detail necessary in the production of a newspaper and successful work in a job office. He later purchased the plant of the Herald, which he has now so ably conducted for more than a quarter of a century, it at the time of his purchase occupying a comparatively small space on the second floor of one of the business houses of Columbia, and requiring the services of only four or five men in turning out all the job work, including the regular publication. By his thorough and practical methods, coupled with his bright and intelligent work in securing additional business for the office, he has built up not only the largest and most prosperous publishing house in the entire West, not excepting those of the great cities, but has been a force in elevating and dignifying the exalted profession of country journalism throughout the United States, more potent than any other one man. "He is a gentleman who fully understands and deeply realizes the graver duties and responsibilities of the editorial calling, and is actuated by the idea of duty, the grandest inspiration to continued, untiring, noble action that ever touched the heart of man. A man actuated by that principle never ceases to grow in all that make one strong and noble. He has an active mind that is ever finding new resources within itself. He has a pleasant presence, is a clear, forcible speaker, a good parliamentarian, and a most able and agreeable presiding officer. His preparation for a successful career has been most thorough. He was raised in a home where the purest principles and the highest educational and literary entertainment were ever present as incentives and stimulants to the youthful mind.

"He is a graduate of the State University, and while never a seeker of office, has had many honorable trusts imposed upon him. He has nearly always attained the position of presiding officer in all official boards and associations to which he has belonged, occupying the honorable positions of President of the Board of Curators of the Missouri State University, of the Alumni Association of the same institution, President of the Board of Commissioners of Missouri Insane Asylum, No. 3, President of the Missouri Press Association, President of the National Editorial Association of the United States." He is Moderator of the Baptist General Association of Missouri. "He has fine executive ability, as well as a genius for organization. He is most happily married, and is the father of four promising children.

"Mr. Stephens' publishing house in Columbia—in a building erected especially for it—is the largest in the State. Here are printed law books for five States, stock books for various National associations, and books and pamphlets without number."

HUGH STEPHENS.

Hugh Stephens, Business Manager and Secretary of the Tribune Printing Company of Jefferson City (State printers and binders), a son of E. W. Stephens, was born in Columbia, Missouri, December 4, 1877. He was educated in the place of his birth, having taken one year of the A. B. course in the State University. At intervals, during his youth and early manhood, he was an apprentice in the different departments of the printing office of his father, where he served as printer's devil, bindery employe, press feeder and typesetter.

During 1897 and 1898, owing to the serious illness of his father, he was compelled to assume more responsible duties in connection with the large business. On this account he abandoned the idea of a thorough college course to engage in the active and responsible duties of business life. Since then he has secured a fourth interest in the Oxford Publishing Co., of which he is Secretary and Treasurer, the company having exclusive right to the sale of Rader's Civil Government and History of Missouri, which is used in all the public schools of the State.

When the Tribune Printing Company came under the new ownership he acquired an interest and was elected Secretary and Business Manager. Since its reorganization, this company, who are the State printers and binders, have more than doubled the their scope not only the management and direction of the immense business of publishing and binding the books and various publications which is constantly increasing, but the management and direction of the Daily and Weekly State Tribune, the State organ of Democracy.

E. M. WATSON.

Edwin M. Watson, editor of the State Tribune, Daily and Weekly, the official organ of the Democracy of Missouri, was born in Callaway county, November 29, 1867. Five years later, his father, Dr. B. A. Watson (now a prominent physician of the "Athens of Missouri") removed to Columbia, where the subject of this sketch attended the public school until the age of 14, when he entered the office of the Columbia Herald for the purpose of learning the "Art Preservative," where he remained three years. In 1890 he graduated from the Missouri State University, receiving the degree of A. B., after which, following the bent of his mind, he entered actively value of their plant, adding typesetting machines, an entirely new set of bindery machinery, and large additions of type, making it one of the largest and most complete printing offices in the West. During the past year this company has handled nearly double the work heretofore turned out in the same length of time, and has issued the largest edition of the Revised Statutes yet published. It has now on hand a large contract with the State of Arkansas, and other important outside contracts on which it is about to begin.

The subject of this sketch is a member of the First Baptist church, of the B. Y. P. U., and a teacher in the Sunday School. Although only 22 years of age, Mr. Stephens possesses the executive ability which enables him to direct the affairs of his immense business corporation in a smooth and thorough manner, which produces results most satisfactory to both his associate stockholders and the public with whom they do a large and extensive business. His duties, including in the field of journalism, his first work being reporter on the St. Joseph Ballot, a Democratic paper established that year by Col. Wm. M. Hyde, who was so long connected with the St. Louis Republican, the name of which has since been changed to the St. Louis Republic. He soon after accepted a position as staff correspondent and special writer for the Fort Worth (Texas) Gazette, which at that time was the leading Democratic daily of the Lone Star State. He later accepted a position as city editor of the Daily Mail of Fort Worth, an afternoon paper. In 1894 he returned to Columbia and entered the law department of the University, graduating in the class of 1896, being one of the honored men of that class. In the Spring of 1897 he was nominated by the Democratic party and elected to the office of City Attorney of Columbia, which office, however, he resigned in November, 1898, to accept his present position with the State Tribune of Jefferson City. Mr. Watson is a young man, of a bright, receptive mind, who has enjoyed exceptional advantages in his education, to which has been added a large and varied experience in that great school afforded by journalism in the great states of Missouri and Texas. He is a close reader and observer. The daily products of his pen, which appear in the State Tribune, give evidence that he takes a broad view of all matters of public interest not only in this State, but throughout the country, his analysis of things being clear and forceful. He is of a happy, genial disposition, enthusiastic and buoyant in spirit, and responds promptly to every call to advance the general interests of the Capital City, to which, as a citizen, he is a most valuable acquisition.

JOSEPH SAILER.

Joseph Sailer, editor and publisher of the Jefferson City Post, a German weekly, was born in Calla-way county, Missouri, December 28, 1873, on a farm near Cedar City, where he remained until eleven years of age, when he removed with his parents to the Capital City, his education being principally in the private Catholic school. At the age of fourteen he was apprenticed as a printer in the Volksfreund, a German weekly of Jefferson City, where he continued two years, when he went to St. Louis, and the following four years did work on different papers of that city. He returned to Jefferson City in May, 1894, and established the Post, beginning with very limited facilities, and, of course, no circulation, but by close and intelligent attention to business he has built up a valuable plant, his circulation now within Cole county being the largest of any paper published within its limits. Mr. Sailer, in addition to his editorial work, does most of the mechanical work in his well-equipped office, which he has secured to himself by the characteristics of the best Germans, industry and thrift. He is a Republican in politics, and an uncompromising supporter of that great political organization.

M. L. TREMAIN.

The most important factor affecting the material interests and progress of a community is the local press. The recital, in its columns, of the worth and acts of men and women stimulates others to enterprise and deeds of philanthropy, while its condemnation of vice curbs the baser passions and restrains the violation of law. As an educator it is a local school of history, biography and literature, and its well and ably conducted ranks in importance with the school. It pictures the condition of the unfortunate and places the scene before the more fortunate who carry relief. Through its influence, communities are united in developing and carrying out enterprises which advance the general prosperity that would not be practical or successful without the mutual effort; in fact, this vehicle of progress reflects and pushes forward the social, moral and material interests of a community more than any other element within its bounds. In the village of Russellville this field is well filled by the Rustler, whose editor and publisher is Marcus L. Tremain. Mr. Tremain was born in Calhoun county, Ill., on St. Valentine's Day, (Feb. 14), 1870, from which place his parents removed, when he was an infant, to a farm in Miller county, near Tusculum. He is a son of Dr. G. W. Tremain, who is still a practitioner. The subject of this sketch continued on the farm until the age of 16, when his parents removed to Aurora Springs, where he attended the Miller County Academy two and one-half years, his education at this place being under the direction of the eminent Prof. H. L. Moles, who was at the time principal of the school. Mr. Tremain began teaching in 1888, in which elevating work he continued in Miller and Morgan counties, Mo., until 1893, when Illinois, offering a more lucrative and inviting field, he removed to Calhoun county of that State, where he continued in the exalted profession until 1899, when he purchased the valuable property and plant of the Russellville Rustler, which he now so ably conducts. He was married Dec. 25, 1892, to Miss Rosa B., daughter of J. M. T. Miller, whose father was the first settler of Miller county, and for whom that commonwealth was named. He has one interesting boy, John Lyman, six years of age, the result of this union. In March, 1894, he had to perform the sad duties incidental to the death and burial of this devoted and congenial companion. On April 21, 1898, he was united in marriage to Miss Laura A. Flagge, who is the mother of his infant son, Lindley Earnest. Mr. Tremain is a man of culture, an able writer and a practical business man, all of which qualifications he is using in an industrious and well-directed effort, through his paper, to advance the interests of the town of Russellville and the adjacent community. He is a member of the A. F. & A. M., O. E. Star, I. O. O. F., M. W. A., M. P. L., A. H. C., and the Elks of Jefferson City, a worthy representative of these social and elevating orders. He is an active member of the Christian church and a man whose influence is calculated to do much to sustain the reputation of Russellville as the best town of its size in the State of Missouri.

A. S. FERGUSON.

Alfred Sterling Ferguson, of the firm of Ferguson & Mayer, was born in Callaway county, Missouri, May 30, 1861. He is the son of John R. and Minerva (Waggoner) Ferguson. On his father's side he is a descendant of the old Scotch family of Fergusons, known in history and literature. The first of the family who came to this country settled in Nelson county, Kentucky. In 1818 his grandfather, Robert Ferguson, immigrated to Missouri, settling in St. Louis county, and for whom Ferguson Station was named. The following year he removed to Callaway county, purchasing a farm, where the subject of this sketch was born. On his mother's side he comes from German ancestors, who came to this country when it was still under

English rule, settling in Davidson county, North Carolina. During the Revolutionary War two of his great grandfathers fought gallantly (one a Colonel and the other a Major) for their adopted country in the struggle for independence. Early in the century his grandfather, David Waggoner, removed to Callaway county, near Millersburg, where he owned a large farm. Before the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Ferguson's father had, by his well directed efforts, become a wealthy farmer, enjoying with his family all the comforts of life, most of which he lost during that tragic period.

The subject of this sketch, being the youngest of the family, received none of the advantages as did the older children, and is, therefore, practically a self-made man. In 1873 he engaged with Col. Switzler on the Columbia Statesman as an apprentice to learn the printer's trade, continuing two years. In 1875 he came to Jefferson City, where he worked at the Journal office, completing his apprenticeship. In 1883 he became the editor and publisher of the Journal. One year later he accepted a position with the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and in 1886 was appointed to the responsible position of day foreman, resigning three years later (1889) on account of ill health, when coming to Jefferson City he formed a partnership with Mr. Edward Mayer, engaging in the stationery and printing business, under the firm name of Ferguson & Mayer, in which he has continued since. He is a member of the A. O. U. W., and K. of P.

Mr. Ferguson was married in 1885 to Miss Virginia Beauregard Harding, daughter of Gen. James and Christine (Cordell) Harding. They have one son, James Harding, now 13 years old. His comfortable home is 429 East McCarty street.

E. R. HAGAN.

Edward R. Hagan was born on a farm near Cedar City, Callaway county, October 4, 1870, from which place, when he was one year of age, his parents removed to Miller county, and settled on a farm on the Osage River. Later they removed to Aurora Springs, where they were engaged in the livery business. Mr. Hagan's education was in the public schools of Miller county. Early following the bent of his mind, he engaged as a printer in the office of the Autogram, at Tusculumbia, where he continued until 1887, when he removed to Jefferson City, and was employed the following two years in the office of the Tribune, after which he had charge of the mechanical work on the Missouri School Journal, of which Prof. H. A. Gass was editor and publisher. In this he continued several years, when, in connection with Mr. Prather, he established the Capital City Journal, but disposed of this plant in March, 1900, and accepted a position with the Cole County Democrat. He is an industrious young man, of good habits, who has not yet assumed the responsibilities of married life.

F. W. PRATHER.

Frank W. Prather is a native of North Vernon Jennings county, Indiana, from which place his parents, when he was two years of age, removed to Boone county, Arkansas, later to Kansas, and from there to Missouri, when he was nine years of age. Mr. Prather's school advantages were very limited, the most of his education being acquired while performing his duties in the printing office where his first experience was as an apprentice in Appleton City, this State. At the age of seventeen he started the publication of a weekly on his own account at Forsyth, in Taney county, and in 1891 established the Springfield Republican as a weekly but which is now a daily, and one of the most influential Republican journals, outside of the large cities of the State. This plant he sold, however, in 1892, and after spending four years in Texas, returned to Missouri, and was employed on the State printing by the Tribune Printing Co. of this city, until the changes resulting from the death of Mr. Ewing, when he associated with Mr. Ed. Hagan in publishing the Capital City Weekly Journal, which plant he, with his partner, disposed of in March, 1900. He was married June, 1897, to Miss Mollie Brumley, of Springfield, she being at the time a visitor in Jefferson City. As a result of this marriage he has a bright boy of two years. Mr. Prather is and has been a consistent and earnest Republican in politics, and for many years closely affiliated with the Typographical Union, in which he has held a number of important official positions. He is a young man of large experience, good habits, and wields a facile pen. He is now in Washington, D. C., where he recently accepted a position in the Government Census printing office.

A. PRIESMEYER.

August Priesmeyer, President and founder of the A. Priesmeyer Shoe Company, was born on a farm near Westphalia, Prussia, December 17, 1832. At the age of 17 he immigrated to America, stopping first near Cincinnati, Ohio, where he worked on a farm several months, when he went to Cincinnati, learning the trade of shoemaking. After an apprenticeship of two years he removed to St. Louis, where he engaged in a shoe store. His aptness and close attention to business soon resulted in his having charge and management of the entire shop and store. In 1857 he made a trip to Europe, visiting his parents and many places of interest, returning in the Fall; he renewed his engagement at the same place, continuing until the Spring of 1859, when he opened a retail store on his own account. With this he did a prosperous business until 1867, when he disposed of his stock and engaged largely in the hide and tobacco business, which resulted in the loss of the accumulation of his thrift and good management of the past years. In 1869 he again opened a shoe store on his own account, receiving financial assistance from a friend, who later became associated with him, and whose loyalty assisted him greatly in bringing about the success which attended his later efforts in the manufacture of shoes. In 1874 he disposed of this business and removed to Jefferson City, where he engaged in the manufacture of shoes in partnership with the friend who had assisted him in the past, Mr. F. Woesten, now a retired capitalist and most worthy citizen of St. Louis. This friend continued to furnish the capital, the firm being A. Priesmeyer & Co. In the work of manufacturing at the prison he still associated with his old friend and the partnership continued until 1876, when he bought the interest of his partner and continued the business in the name of A. Priesmeyer, until the Fall of 1899, when the A. Priesmeyer Shoe Co. was organized and incorporated, with Mr. A. Priesmeyer as President; John Tweedie, sr., Vice-President and Superintendent of the factory, and H. F. Priesmeyer, Secretary, Treasurer and Manager of the business. Both Mr. Tweedie and Mr. H. F. Priesmeyer had long been faithful lieutenants in this growing and prosperous manufacturing plant, and on account of their faithful and intelligent services had been given a share of the profits for more than 15 years, although their names had not up to the time of the incorporation been associated with the business. When Mr. Priesmeyer first established this plant he only employed thirty-five men, but under able and successful management, pains-taking and straight-forward methods of doing business and producing the very best value possible the business was built up to its present proportions, now employing over 250 workmen, with eighteen traveling salesmen, who cover and enjoy a large trade throughout the entire West and South; in fact, covering virtually all the United States except those of New England and a few of the North Atlantic States which are more contiguous to the manufacturing plants of Massachusetts. In August, 1860, Mr. Priesmeyer was married to Caroline Steinbruegge, of St. Charles, Mo. To this union were born three sons, two of whom died in infancy, Eddie at the interesting age of six. He had the misfortune to lose by death his companion May 20, 1889. In April, 1891, he was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Meyer, of St. Louis, and was called upon to perform the sad duties attendant upon her death in 1895. In 1899 he was united in marriage to Mrs. Emma Witte, of St. Louis, who is now his genial and devoted companion in his home, No. 1537 S. Grand Ave., St. Louis, he having retired from the active duties connected with his business and removed to that city in 1891. Mr. Priesmeyer is a fine example of the success which attends the earnest, active and well directed efforts of an honorable man. He came to this country when but a youth, without means, his first work being on the farm. After learning the business of shoemaking before the extensive improvements in machinery had brought that business up to its present high state of perfection, so greatly reducing the cost and assisting in the production of artistic and substantial foot-wear, he has moved steadily along with the business of his choice until he now occupies a place in the business world as a manufacturer of which he may be justly proud. No man engaged in the manufacture of shoes in the United States stands higher than A. Priesmeyer, who is now enjoying in retirement the justly earned fruits of his long and constant labors. In addition to two trips to Europe, in 1897, Mr. Priesmeyer made a trip around the world, which occupied fourteen months, visiting Japan, China, the Orient, India, Africa, Palestine and Syria, and making trips in the various countries, using the means of travel peculiar to each country, seeing life in its every phase in all parts of the world, and being a close and practical observer, he is an interesting and instructive talker. Although having lived nearly his three score years and ten, he is as hale and hearty as most men of 50; in fact, he yet seems in the prime of life, with a prospect of many years.

JOHN TWEEDIE, SR.

John Tweedie, sr., Vice-President of the A. Priesmeyer Shoe Co., and Superintendent of the factory, was born in Moffat, Dumfries Shire, Scotland, September 28, 1838. He attended school until 10 years of age, when he engaged in learning the trade of shoemaking in his father's shop, continuing his studies at night. In 1856 he immigrated to America, stopping first in New York, where he worked at his trade a few months, when he removed to Providence, R. I., and engaged in the work of a carpenter the following three years, after which he removed to Mystic, Conn., where, after working in the ship yard a few months, he returned to New York and resumed his trade of shoemaking. Removing to Middletown, Conn., in 1861, he responded to a call for volunteers enlisting in the 2nd Connecticut, which was discharged from service a few months later, when, in answer to a second call he enlisted in the 9th Rhode Island, and later in the 15th regular U. S. Infantry. He continued with this regiment, and during the early part of 1864 was appointed Drill Sergeant at Fort Adams; afterward being promoted to First Sergeant. In 1865, when the army was reorganized he was transferred to the 33rd, retaining the same rank. Mr. Tweedie was in the first battle of Bull Run and a number of other important engagements. He was also with Gen. Sherman in his famous campaign in Georgia. He received his regular discharge at Macon, Ga., in 1867. He then accepted the position of Superintendent of the Andersonville National Cemetery. He was later Superintendent of the construction of the Peabody School Houses put up, one each at Bainbridge, Thomasville and Newton for the United States Government, and one of the Superintendents in the construction of the Atlanta

Barracks, Atlanta, Ga. Resigning in the Fall of 1869, he went to St. Louis, where he resumed his old trade of shoemaking as foreman for Cochran & Linden, and in 1872 accepted a like position with A. Priesmeyer & Co., who at that time were conducting a store and shop in that city. In 1874 he came with Mr. Priesmeyer to Jefferson City, where he has continued in charge of the factory of that now large and prosperous manufacturing concern since. On May 1, 1867, Mr. Tweedie was united in marriage at Macon, Ga., to Anna DeBernuff. To this union ten children have been born. Charles died at the age of eighteen months and three others in infancy. Charles J. is an assistant to his father in the Priesmeyer factory. John, jr., has charge of the trimming and heeling department. Katherine is the wife of Julius Freeman of St. Louis. Joseph and Julia are at home. Caroline is attending the public school of this city.

Mr. Tweedie is a member of the G. A. R., the I. O. O. F., the A., F. & A. M., Royal Arch Chapter and Commandery. He is also a loyal member of the Commercial Club and a generous supporter of all measures recommended by that organization. His home, (a cut of which accompanies this article) with his family, is 601 East High. Mr. Tweedie possesses the characteristics of the Scotch race, pluck, energy and perseverance and as a result of his well directed efforts he today occupies a position in the social with his business well in hand and gives promise of a long life of continued usefulness.

H. F. PRIESMEYER.

Henry F. Priesmeyer, Secretary and Treasurer of the A. Priesmeyer Shoe Co., was born in St. Louis, Mo., August 16, 1857, and was educated in the public schools of that city. At the age of sixteen he went to Chicago, entering the law office of Lyman & Jackson, with the view of studying for the practice of the legal profession. At the age of twenty-one he resigned this position and came to Jefferson City to engage in work for his uncle, A. Priesmeyer. After several years of practical and pains-taking work in the factory, he went on the road as salesman, where he continued seven years in North and Southwest Missouri, building up a large and profitable business in the products of his uncle's shoe factory. In July, 1884, he gave up the road, taking charge of the office, and in 1892, became manager of the finance and salesmen. In November, 1899, the A. Priesmeyer Shoe Company was incorporated, the incorporators being his uncle, A. Priesmeyer, who established the business, and was made President of the corporation, John Twee-

and business world of which he may justly be proud. As a citizen he is a worthy representative of the thrifty manufacturers who have located in Jefferson City and built up a large and prosperous business. He has given to his family all the advantages of a comfortable and well provided home as well as those of a modern education, and is today in fine health, die, sr., who for many years had charge of the factory, becoming Vice-President and Superintendent of the factory, and he, the subject of this sketch, Secretary and Treasurer. Although both he and Mr. Tweedie had been sharing in the profits of the business for a number of years they had not become regularly associated in the business until the incorporation as above stated, November 1, 1899. Mr. Priesmeyer was united in marriage May 2, 1883, to Miss Julia M. Meyer, of St. Charles, Mo., a lady of culture and of charming personality, the mother of his five children, Mamie, Charlotte, Colette, Theodora and Jack. The death of Mamie at the interesting age of sixteen cast a shadow over this bright and interesting home. Mr. Priesmeyer is a member of the Elks, of which he is at present Exalted Ruler. He was a charter member of the Commercial Club, and was twice elected its President, and through all its history has continued a loyal and generous supporter of this valuable organization, whose purpose is to advance the general interests of the city. He is a stockholder and director of the Bridge and Transit Company, of which he was the first Vice-President. He is also President of the Board of Education of this city. He has been active and generous in developing the State Horse Show Association, is fond of base ball, and all the manly sports. As a citizen and business man none stand higher in the estimation of the people of Jefferson City than Mr. H. F. Priesmeyer. His ideal home, with his charming wife and most interesting children, is at the corner of McCarty and Madison streets.

W. Y. MAYO.

Walter Young Mayo, deceased, is directly descended from Maj. William Mayo, who immigrated from England, in 1716, to the Isle of Barbadoes, making the excellent map of that Isle, which is now on file in the King's College Library. Coming to Virginia, in 1723, he ran the dividing line between Virginia and North Carolina. One of the rivers intersecting that line was named in honor of Maj. Mayo, which name it still retains. He was the most prominent civil engineer in Virginia. In 1736 he was appointed surveyor of the Northern Neck of Virginia in order to settle the disputed boundary between Lord Fairfax and the crown. Early in 1737 he laid off the City of Richmond, but in 1744 he died. Col. John Mayo (born October 21, 1760,) was the projector and founder of the celebrated Mayo bridge just below the falls of the James River at Richmond. He obtained a charter for the bridge in 1785, and after ineffectual efforts to obtain State aid or to form a corporation, boldly built it from his own design and at his own expense. His petition for the charter was received with ridicule, and Col. Innis, a prominent member of the Legislature, facetiously observed that "after passing that bill they would pass one to build a ladder to the moon." Mrs. Mayo was a daughter of John De Hart, of Elizabethtown, N. J. who was a member of the First Continental Congress that met in Philadelphia in 1774. The annual advent of Col. and Mrs. Mayo to their beautiful home, in their coach and six, with colored footmen and out-riders, was an event long to be remembered by the inhabitants of that ancient borough.

The old Mayo homestead, "Powhatan," is a short distance from Richmond (in a perfect state of preservation and in full view from the Capitol steps) where, partially protected by an open arbor, is a huge rock which marks the last resting place of the most powerful Indian Chief of Virginia, Powhatan (1741), whose principal residence was here and for whom the place was called. Maj. Mayo served in the State troops during the war of 1812, and his eldest daughter, Maria, (the reigning belle of the day) was the wife of Gen. Winfield Scott (the hero of Lundy's Lane), a woman noted for her personal beauty, exquisite charm of manner and conversation and a finished harpist.

Walter Young Mayo was a son of Lucy Elizabeth (daughter of Dr. Elijah Young, of Jefferson county, Ky.), and Walter Powhatan Mayo, born in Louisville, Ky., November 21, 1874. His grandfather, Hon. William H. Mayo, was killed near his home at Boonville, Mo., during the Civil War by the Bush whackers through mistake. While being pursued he threw his watch and valuables into a brush heap at the roadside, and told a lady, who was hiding there, to take them to his wife, which she did, this being the valued timepiece of the subject of this sketch. With his widowed mother and sisters, Walter came to Jefferson City, Mo., (1886), when a small boy (hugging his beloved dog, "Charlie," close to his side). He remained until a few months before his death, when he went with his mother to New Mexico for his health. As we sit listening to the echoes of the past, the variations of his marvelous whistling come as strains of celestial music from the vast unknown. "His was a peculiarly magnetic nature that drew all who knew him to his side; he counted his friends by the score from the humblest to those highest in social and political life, true of him not only in Jefferson City, but in New Mexico, where he had been but a few months at the time of his death (March 7, 1895)."

Governor Lon V. Stephens wrote of him: "Walter Y. Mayo, who, for over four years, held a position under me in the Treasury Department, has passed over the river. Death has taken from us the youngest member of our force within but a few months of his legal majority, full of hope and rich in promise; his sun had just risen, and it gave promise that before him was a bright day. The position of stenographer, which he held, brought him into close and confidential relation with me. I found him at all times trustworthy, respectful, submissive, anxious to please, sensitive to criticism. By his model life and devotion to duty he won the respect of myself and his associates. He bore in his manner the cherriest good will to all, with malice to none. He was a manly Christian boy, who loved his church, his league and his Sunday School. Bereft of father when but a few weeks old, he has fought life's battles for his mother, sisters and self under many disadvantages, winning the praise and admiration from those who witnessed his struggles and who appreciated his surroundings. His beautiful love for his mother was at all times noticeable. His chiefest aim was to make her happy. In her presence and at her knee he found the truest altar, and for his sisters, Virginia and Jessie, the companions of his boyhood, there was a love tender and beautiful. He appealed to them in every instance, in every emergency. Their wishes were his, their happiness his. He would die before he would bring to them sorrow or disappointment. His money was always used to their comfort and enjoyment. Although full of courage, he leaned upon his mother and seemed to be as a dependent, helpless child in her arms, and she in turn was dependent upon and trusted him, looking forward to the day when her son would be a strong man who would comfort and support her in her declining years. God is too wise to err and too good to be unkind, otherwise we would feel that in this instance he had struck a cruel blow. Walter's tender heart is hushed forever, he has laid down his office work never to again resume. Eternal joy to his immortal spirit."

His remains are at rest in the cool bosom of mother earth in Woodland Cemetery, in the eastern part of Jefferson City.

P. T. MILLER.

Phillip Thomas Miller (deceased) was born at Greensburg, Greene county, Kentucky, May 7, 1818, from which place he came to Jefferson City in 1833, when fifteen years of age, accepting a position as clerk in the store of his uncle, Thomas Miller, where he continued six years, when, in 1839, in partnership with Thomas M. Winston, sr., he embarked in merchandising on his own account, in which business he continued until 1846, when he withdrew from the business to engage in steamboating on the Missouri River with his uncle, Thomas Miller, who was the master and owner of the Steamer Amelia. He served as clerk, and later as captain of this steamer. Later he was clerk of the Missouri Penitentiary, under Major Cochran, and was appointed to the position of Warden, without solicitation, in 1861, by Gov. Gamble. He performed the important duties connected with this office until March, 1865. While Warden, Mr. Miller secured the passage of an act of Legislature establishing the commutation, or three-quarter rule, now in force in the Missouri Penitentiary. Later, in company with Gen. H. Clay Ewing and Wm. E. Dunscombe, he organized the Jefferson City Savings Association, of which the present Exchange Bank is the successor. He held the important position of Cashier of this banking association until it was changed to the National Exchange Bank, when he was made the Cashier of the new organization, in which position he continued until December, 1872, when he resigned to take the position of editor of the Jefferson City Tribune, which was published at that time by Reagan & Carter. He retired from this position on being appointed chief book-keeper in the office of the State Treasurer, under Phil. E. Chappell, a position in which he continued through four administrations and until his death, January 25, 1895.

Mr. Miller was married December 22, 1841, to Miss Maria Louise Winston, daughter of Nicholas J. Winston, who survives him. To this union were born seven children, four boys and three girls, three of whom, George B. Miller, Louise, now Mrs. Bragg, and Dr. Phil. T. Miller, a prominent dentist of Jefferson City, are living. Mr. Miller moved into the house his widow and surviving children still occupy, 509 Jackson street, in the spring of 1842, and under its roof all his children were born. Mr. Miller was all his life a constant and devoted member of the Old School Presbyterian church. He superintended the erection of the first Presbyterian church building at Jefferson City (the old stone church still standing on Main street, west of the Madison Hotel). He was a member of the State Board of Guardians until the Board was abolished by legislative enactment; was a steadfast friend of the public schools. He was a delegate from Missouri to the National Prison Congress in January, 1873, which met at Baltimore, Md., and has held many offices of trust and honor during his active and useful life. He was a friend and champion of every measure looking to the advancement of Jefferson City and his Democracy was a part of his religion. His life was a model from his early childhood, never having the disposition to sow wild oats. He lived and died a Christian gentleman, a man among men. His home life, which is the very best place in which to judge a man, was ideal.

Of the many worthy characters now deceased who helped to make the history of Jefferson City none shine with more luster or credit as a worthy, exemplary and model citizen in all the relations of life than the subject of this sketch. While he was editor of the Tribune, his forceful writing did much to lead the Democracy of Missouri into a broad and liberal policy, and the result of his work and influence at that time is still felt and doing its work.

J. M. SOMMERER.

John M. Sommerer, of the firm of Sommerer & Bassman, grocers, on East High street, was born on a farm near Honey Creek, Cole county, December 18, 1871, where he grew to manhood, assisting on his father's farm, acquiring his education in the nearby district school. At the age of twenty (1891) he came to Jefferson City, where he engaged as clerk for T. E. Schultz, a grocery merchant, the following two years. Resigning this position in 1893 he was steward one year at the United States Government works, a position which he continued until the works shut down. After spending a short time at his old home he returned to Jefferson City, and was engaged as clerk one year with Jesse W. Henry then one of the leading grocery merchants of Jefferson City, after which he was one year with John Stuart, also a grocery merchant, on the corner of Lafayette and High streets. Following this engagement he was with Lawrence Wagner until 1896, when he, in connection with Mr. Bassman, his partner, purchased the business of Mr. Wagner which they together have conducted most successfully since, having greatly enlarged the business, it now being recognized as one of the leading and most popular grocery houses of the city. Mr. Sommerer was united in marriage October 1, 1896 to Miss Emma Schaefer of Jefferson City. This congenial and devoted companion he had the misfortune to lose by death March 29, 1898. His infant daughter, Emma, survived the mother only a few months. Mr. Sommerer is a member of the Lutheran Trinity church, of which he is Collector. He is a bright young business man, who gives his close attention to business, in which he uses the experience he has accumulated in his association with other merchants in the city to the best advantage possible. In addition to his interest in the grocery store, he is a stockholder in the Jefferson City Building and Loan Association.

G. C. BASSMAN.

George Casper Bassman, of the firm of Sommerer & Bassman, grocery merchants, 220 East High street, was born on a farm in St. Louis county, Mo., May 21, 1857. His parents were George Casper and Eva B. (Ott) Bassman, who removed to this county when the subject of this sketch was six months old, and settled on a farm ten miles south of Jefferson City, where he received his education in the nearby schools. He followed farming until March, 1890, when he moved to Jefferson City. A year later he began business on his own account, leasing the Farmer's Home, and continued three years. The following three years he engaged successfully in farming, when he again returned to Jefferson City and formed a partnership with Mr. John M. Som-merer and purchased the grocery business from Lawrence Wagner, which they have successfully conducted since. He is a member of the Knights of Maccabees.

Mr. Bassman was married September 30, 1879, to Miss Margaretta Sahr, of Jefferson City. To this union eight children have been born: Frederick, the eldest, died in infancy. Hilda and Estella are young ladies at home. Agnes and Otto are attending school. George and Oscar (twins) and Sophia are also at home. His comfortable home, with his devoted wife and interesting children, is 802 Jefferson street.

PROF. J. H. SULLENS.

Prof. John Hunter Sullens was born near Brazito, Cole county, January 24, 1869, where he was reared, his early education being in the Centennial public school nearby. He later attended Hooper Institute at Clarksburg. In 1889 he began teaching school, which has since been his life work. His first engagement was at Russellville, where he continued one year, since which time he has taught at Lohman, Bass, Elston and Mt. Carmel. He was appointed School Commissioner of Cole county by Governor Stone, to which office he has been elected a second time, and is now serving the second term. August 26, 1891, he was united in marriage to Dora D., daughter of Judge John Musick, at present member of the Cole County Court. This union has been blessed with four children; the eldest, Fern, is seven years of age; Clyde died in infancy; Clarence is a bright boy of three years, and Elsie Dean an infant of one year. In 1892 Mr. Sullens bought a farm near Bass, this county, where he at present makes his home. He and his wife are members of the Mt. Carmel M. E. church (South). He is also a prominent member of the State Teachers' Association, and takes an active interest in their meetings and those of the teachers' institutes. He is a strong advocate of County School Supervision and has been one of the active leaders in bringing about the submission of that important question to the voters of Cole county the coming Spring. He is a strong advocate for a compulsory school law. He believes that school children, both intermediate and advanced, should have the advantages of a good library in connection with each school. He encourages among his pupils the manly sports, and is especially fond of baseball.

J. A. HOUCHIN.

James Albert Houchin, Secretary, Manager and Treasurer of the Star Clothing Manufacturing Company of Jefferson City, was born on a farm near Atlanta, Logan county, Ill., October 10, 1869, where he remained until eighteen years of age, assisting his father (who was an energetic, pushing farmer), attending school during the Winter about three months in the year. His father, who was ambitious to secure for his family better educational advantages than those afforded by the country schools nearby, removed to Lincoln, where the subject of this sketch enjoyed the higher educational advantages afforded by the schools of that city. He also attended the Lincoln Business College, taking a commercial course, short-hand and typewriting. January 1, 1890, for the purpose of more thorough equipment for an active business life, he entered the Gem City Business College of Quincy, Ill., where he enjoyed the advantages of practical business training by real commercial transactions, including that of banking. Completing his course at the Gem City College, he was sent by that institution to fill a position in Jefferson City, Mo., as book-keeper and stenographer for the Charles R. Lewis Clothing Manufacturing Company, from which position, after remaining three years, he resigned to accept a similar one with the C. M. Henderson Shoe Company, also of Jefferson City. After continuing one year with this company, he resigned and organized, with others, the Star Clothing Manufacturing Company of which he was elected Secretary and Treasurer and one year later he had added to his duties the office of General Manager. This company suffers from the trying incidents which often attend a young enterprise on account of lack of experience and established business, and, during the panic of 1895, had to struggle for continued life. In March, however, of 1897, the stockholders re-organized, placing the subject of this sketch in complete control and under his well directed efforts its prosperity has been almost phenomenal, their products now being sold throughout the West and South, and exceedingly popular with the close and judicious buyer. From a capacity of 25 dozen per day in 1897 the business has grown until they now turn out 17 dozen articles of men's substantial wearing apparel daily, their annual business now amounting to over $300,000. Mr. Houchin, who is now directing the affairs of this progressive and growing concern, recognizes no obstacles as standing in the way of success. To his persistent and well-directed effort the success of the concern is largely due.

Mr. Houchin was united in marriage August 1, 1893, to Miss Mollie Clark, of Jefferson City, Mo. He is a member of the M. E. church (South) of the city, cheerfully performing the duties devolving upon him as a member of that great religious organization.

zation. He is also a director and a most active and progressive member of the Commercial Club, an organization which is doing so much to brighten, stimulate and unite the people of the Capital City in making it a most desirable place in which to live. During his college life Mr. Houchin was an active participant in the field sport of baseball, and was also a member of one of the most successful foot ball teams. Being a fine specimen of physical manhood, he carried off the first honors in many athletic contests, and now advocates for students, an abundance of recreation as a means of developing the physical as well as the mental man. Although now only 30 years of age he has, by his untiring energy and well-directed efforts established a substantial and prosperous business and made himself comfortable in this world's goods. His home, with his congenial wife and one child, a lovely daughter, Myrene, four years of age, is 611 East Main street.

J. W. HESKETT.

In most cities there are men, whose peculiar qualifications as sagacious buyers and sellers, coupled with an ambition to do a large trade, enables them to rapidly develop an immense business, the volume of which carries with it the advantages incidental to large purchases and reduced percentage of expenses, enabling them to make lower prices than less favored competitors, thus drawing to their counters the economical and thrifty buyers from all the paths of life. Of this class of men in the State of Missouri none stand higher than Mr. J. W. Heskett, the proprietor of the New York Racket Cash Department store, No. 232 East High street. Mr. Heskett was born on a farm in Ross county, Ohio, near Chillicothe, May 6, 1859. At the age of eleven his parents removed to Missouri, settling on a farm in Saline county, near Malta Bend, where he attended the country school, later graduating from the Normal Department of the Missouri State University, class 1881. Like many successful men, Mr. Heskett's first work on his own responsibilities was teaching, after which he managed his father's large farm, later embarking in the general mercantile business, in partnership with S. T. Wilson at Malta Bend. About fifteen months later he dissolved with Mr. Wilson, who continued the business, while he removed, with his part of the stock, to Marshall, doing a successful business until 1888, when he purchased a farm eight miles northwest of that city. On account of the ill health of his wife he quit farming, and selling his Jersey herd, other stock and implements, rented his farm, when, at the request of the Postoffice Department and several of the bondsmen (he being one) took charge of the postoffice at Marshall, which office he managed from March 1, until July 1, 1897, when he removed to this city opening the New York Racket store on Main street. This business, under his judicious management, soon outgrew his quarters on Main street, and in September, 1899, he removed to his present commodious store. Although he began business here with a small stock, it is now the largest department store in the county. He employs constantly from seven to eight assistants, which during the holiday season is increased to about thirty. Mr. Heskett was married March 18, 1886, to Miss Mollie, the only daughter of Henry Blosser, one of the most prominent and wealthy farmers of Saline county. As a result of this marriage they have five children, two of whom died in infancy, the others, two girls and a boy, ages eight, ten and twelve, are bright, healthy children, attending the public schools of this city. Mr. Heskett still owns his fine farm in Saline county, but is completely absorbed in his rapidly growing business which he is managing most successfully.

F. G. SUDEN.

Frederick Gustave Suden, the leading photographer of Jefferson City, was born in Schulan, Holstein, Germany, April 11, 1849, where his father was an extensive dealer in coffees and spices. The subject of this sketch was educated in the schools of his birth place. At the age of 16 he shipped as steward on the Germania, a tramp steamer, engaged in the South American trade. During this service he visited all the important seaports of South America, the West Indies, Mexico, and the seaports of Europe on the Atlantic seaboard. Among other places, during his connection with this steamer, he visited the City of New York. Leaving the Germania, he spent several months in learning of the New World, after which he returned to Europe, from which place he soon sailed for New York City, where he remained until 1869, and learned, while there, the art of photography. He came to Missouri in 1871, stopping first in St. Louis, where he worked in different galleries, after which, procuring an outfit, he became an itinerant artist of Missouri, which he continued until 1878, when he located in Jefferson City and established a gallery. In 1880 he made a visit to Europe. In 1881 he was united in marriage to Helen, daughter of Herman and Helen Tellman. To this union were born four children: Louis A., is an efficient assistant in his father's gallery; Helen M., is a pupil at St. Peter's Parochial school; Stella A. and William H., are at home. In 1889 Mr. Suden again visited Europe, taking in the Paris Exposition and visiting his relations in Germany. He has been a member of the I. O. O. F. for the past fourteen years.

No artist in the State of Missouri has a better reputation than Mr. Suden, or has made photographs of so many prominent people of the State. In his gallery are found photographs which almost make a history of the commonwealth. He has made a picture of each General Assembly for the past 15 years, and in his list of negatives can be found almost every prominent individual who has visited or been engaged with the State Department during the period of his work here. He is an exemplary citizen and a pains-taking, conscientious artist who deserves the large patronage which the people of the Capital City extend to him.

C. F. TANNER.

Charles Frederick Tanner was born in Muenichberg, Kingdom of Bavaria, Germany, October 1, 1826. His early education was in the place of his birth, where he learned the trade of mill wright, miller and carpenter, at which business he worked from the age of fifteen until 1849, when he immigrated to America, where, after stopping in St. Louis a few months, he came to Jefferson City in the spring of 1850. He first engaged in the work of carpenter, but soon after, in connection with his brother, Jacob, rebuilt and improved the Glover mill, south of this city, which, after managing a short time for Mr. Glover, they purchased. Later they disposed of this mill and built the brick store now occupied by Jacob Tanner and engaged in general merchandising. Soon after disposing of his interest to his brother, they together purchased the old Riggins mill, rebuilding and remodeling the same, and after running it four years sold out and came to Jefferson City, where for several years he engaged in the work of carpenter and contractor. In 1883 his eldest son, who had been absent in Kansas City and acquired a thorough knowledge of machinery, its manufacture and repairing, removed with him to their present quarters, where they have continued since to run a machine shop under the active direction of the son, Theodore, having recently greatly enlarged and improved the building. Mr. Tanner was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Stoehr of Jefferson City. To this union has been born eleven children. Chris. died at the age of four, Charles at the same interesting age and Annie at the age of one. Theodore is at the head of the large machine shop and is assisted by Ludwig and Julius. Of the daughters, Christina is the wife of Conrad Bowman of St. Louis, while Barbara, Maggie, Eda and Antonia are at home. Mr. Tanner is one of the old citizens of Jefferson City, whose life has been intimately associated with its history for more than half a century. He is a member of the Evangelical Central church, and has served the city as Alderman one term. His comfortable home is on Dunklin, where he lives, surrounded by his interesting family, all of whom are most worthy men and women.

G. W. WALTHER.

George W. Walther, dealer in furniture and undertaker, 106 West High street, Jefferson City, is a son of 'Squire Albert Walther, a native of Bavaria, Germany, who immigrated to America in 1839, and settled on a farm in Cole county, from which place he removed to Jefferson City, in 1866. Here he engaged in the grocery business two years, when he disposed of his interest and returned to his farm, where he died April 15, 1879. The subject of this sketch was born on the farm, eight miles east of Jefferson City, February 8, 1853. His early education was in the neighboring schools. Coming with his father to Jefferson City, in 1866, he finished his education in the public schools of this city. Except for the few years his father lived in Jefferson City, he was continuously with him on the farm until twenty-seven years of age, a good portion of the time managing the business, and was successful in growing wheat and potatoes, and also in raising stock. In 1880 he purchased the old homestead, which he continued to run successfully until August,

1895, when he removed to Jefferson City, and engaged in his present business, which he has continued since. He was united in marriage October 27, 1881, to Miss Louise, daughter of Fred Guenther, a prominent farmer of Morgan county, Mo. To this union has been born one child, a daughter, Hilda Elizabeth, who is now at home. In the Fall of 1894 Mr. Walther was the nominee of the Republican party for the office of Collector of Cole county, but was defeated by Thomas Mahan, the Democratic nominee, by a small majority. He is a member of the Evangelical Central church, of the I. O. O. F., and Brotherhood of Elks, a most worthy citizen, who is highly esteemed by all who know him intimately.

GOVERNMENT LOCK AND DAM ON THE OSAGE RIVER.

Under the charge of the Mississippi River Commission, a series of four locks and dams was contemplated for the waters of the Osage, and approved by the Secretary of War. Mr. J. W. Beaman, then at Hermann, Mo., in charge of the Gasconade improvements, under Maj. Allen of the Mississippi River Commission, was appointed to sound and make calculations of the flow of water in the river. In 1894 Theodore Schoonmaker succeeded Mr. Beaman by the War Department, turning over to the Missouri River Commission the field of the Gasconade and Osage rivers, and he further supplemented this work by drillings and the erection of the Government lodge in 1895, and the letting to Messrs. McGee, Kahman & Co., the contract for the coffer dam, the excavation and pile driving, for foundation of the Lock, to be known as Lock and Dam No. 1, which was placed at a point just below Shipley Shoals and seven miles from the mouth of the river. They commenced work in the Fall of 1895, completing the coffer dam, excavating and part of the pile driving. At this time, owing to a change of plans by the Chief Engineer calling for the lowering of the floor of the Dam fully five feet, the above parties threw up the contract, the Government purchasing the plant and its belongings from them in the Winter, 1895. During the following Summer, 1896, the pile driving was finished under the direct charge of the Government, under the management of the Missouri River Commission, also the sand and gravel was dredged from the river and washed ready for the making of concrete for the Lock and Dam, the original plan being a masonry wall of lime stone. In 1897 Capt. F. B. Maltby succeeded Mr. Schoonmaker as assistant engineer, and put down the floor to the Lock and walls, and finished the bank wall of the Lock and part of the river wall. Owing to no appropriation, in 1898, the work was necessarily stopped. In the Spring of 1899 a contract was let to Pollard & Wallace of Champaign, Ill., to finish the Lock and build the Dam. They did what work they could, commencing in June, but as labor was scarce and good workmen hard to obtain, they only finished the Lock and seven sections of the ten of the Dam which can be easily noticed by looking at one of the views accompanying this article. The coming year or Summer, 1900, expects to see the completion of everything, as the Lock gates are in and only the three sections remain covering a space of 250 feet. It is an interesting place to visit, and if the theory of the Government engineers is carried out by the complete and successful working of this pile of masonry, the enormous sum of money it has cost will be well invested, and when the time comes to build the other three locks of the original plan the obstacles overcome by the building of this one will be slight when profiting by the experience of this work. The Dam itself is peculiar, being movable and designed by

Capt. H. M. Chittenden, a model of which was made and tested by Capt. F. B. Maltby, 1897, and proved to be satisfactory in every detail, and fully explained by drawings in his response to the Government on inquiry as to its practicability. The superstructure is of wood seven feet high, the base a solid concrete wall nine feet high, making a total of sixteen feet. The upper or wooden dam is worked by hydraulic pressure and can be lowered or raised to meet all requirements and stages of water. This feature especially being very noticeable in times of flood, when it will be lowered entirely and only a nine-foot wall will be left to block the river channel. The Lock is bound to become a resort for Jefferson City people not only as a place of interest, but the neighborhood of the Dam will eventually make magnificent outing grounds. The works are at present in charge of Walter P. Pollard, a young man of sterling worth and rare ability as an engineer, and have been since 1891. Last Summer while Pollard & Wallace, of Champaign, Ill., were fulfilling their contract, they insisted on his supervision of the work laid out in every division of their working forces. His knowledge of the ground and the works is minute and thorough. Capt. F. B. Maltby is still officially in charge of the works under the Government, reporting to Capt. Keller of the Missouri River Commission for details. So devoted to the finishing and working of this Dam is he, that he declined an important appointment on the staff of engineers sent by Congress to survey and make reports in regard to the Panama and Nicaragua Canal. From the records of this Congress we notice that the Committee on Rivers and Harbors recommends the appropriation of $146,000 for the further completion of the works on the Osage River. This is a very important work, as the traffic tonnage on this beautiful stream is five times that of the "Big Muddy," into which it finds its ending, seven miles below the Lock. The total cost of the work, when completed, will be $300,000.

TAOS CATHOLIC CHURCH.

St. Francis Xavier's Catholic church at Taos has an interesting history, it being the first church erected by the Catholics in Cole county. On May 1, 1838, Rev. Father Helias (a Jesuit, born of the noble family of F. Huddelghem, in Ghent, Belgium, August 3, 1796) came to Westphalia, now in Osage county, but then a part of Gasconade, to preach the Gospel and administer the sacraments to the Catholics who were widely scattered through that part of Missouri. Within a few days after his arrival he crossed the Osage River and said Mass in the house of a family near where the church, of which we are writing, now stands. He continued his residence in Westphalia, from which point he visited the scattering members of his numerous charges four years, when, with the approval of his superiors, he removed his residence to Taos, and transferred to this place the books with the records of baptisms and marriages. From that time Taos was for a number of years the center of all the missions in that part of the State, and from here this noble character visited, regularly, about 25 different places named on the record, some of which are not now known. Some of the locations have been washed away by the Missouri River. His circuit included St. Thomas, in Cole county; Portland, in Callaway county; Columbia, in Boone county; Moniteau (now Cedron), in Moniteau county; Boonville, Pisgah and Pilot Grove, in Cooper county; Franklin, in Howard county, and last, but by no means least, Jefferson City, where he worshipped first in the house of Gen. Anthouy Kramer, near where now stands the Capitol. The nearby places were visited regularly, while more distant points only twice a year, his circuit frequently involving a trip of more than 100 miles. When Father Helias was making one of his earlier visits to Taos from Westphalia, the congregation offered 40 acres of ground for building a church, school and home for the priest, but refused to hand the deed for the land to Father Helias, who then purchased 10 acres of land of Mr. H. Haar. The old home of Mr. Haar is still standing, and is the oldest part of the parsonage, now used as a kitchen. The first church, in honor of St. Francis Xavier, was built of logs, on the ground now used as the pastor's garden. This house was afterward removed by Mr. Forek to the place where Ben Forek is now living, and is still standing.

Also a school was started with the church on the forty acres intended for the place of the church.

The first teacher was Mr. Weger, who died there later. Of course, the school at that time was not frequented regularly, and the instruction for preparing for the sacraments could be only very imperfect on account of long and frequent absence of the pastor. The house of Mr. Haar was rented to several parties, among them the Forek family, and in this historic building was born Bernard and Herman Forek, now living near the church. Father

Helias built, with money furnished by his pious mother, a stone house which is now connected with the kitchen by a hall. The congregation soon outgrew the capacity of the first church, which was replaced by a second one, built of cotton rock, which is at present used as a school house and during the Winter months as a chapel. A cemetery was first laid out on the 40 acres, but since the church was not built there its use was discontinued, and a new one selected near the church, of about one acre. When this was full of the remains of the departed the old one was enlarged and enclosed, and is now in use again, both cemeteries having been blessed by Bishop Kenrick of St. Louis. During 36 years Father Helias had stood faithfully at his post, when the Lord called him from the scene of his pious and devotioned labors. His death was sudden, although not unexpected, as he told his friends that he expected to die in such a manner. He had written the remembrances of his death on the back of small pictures and distributed among his friends, the duty to be filled out after his death. His remains were buried in the cemetery near the church, the congregation erecting a monument to his memory. After his death several priests visited at intervals the Taos church until Rev. Father John Gruender was appointed pastor. By his zealous and earnest efforts, new life was infused into the congregation which made a number of improvements, a new school house was built, which is now used as teacher's residence, and an addition was made to the parsonage. In 1881 a large number of the congregation withdrew and erected a church at Wardsville, this being the youngest of the many parishes that went out from the mother church, like so many grown daughters starting in families for themselves, nearly all of whom have outgrown the old home. Notwithstanding the withdrawal, the old church was too small and with his usual courage and determination, Father Gruender did not rest until he saw rise the present magnificent brick building, whose steeple is crowned with a spire reaching 124 feet above ground. This church was finished in 1883. In 1885 Father Gruender made a trip to Europe, his duties during his absence being performed by Father Schulte. He was followed by Rev. Father Joseph H. Schmidt, who is still in charge, he being the third regularly appointed pastor, a record remarkable for a church of so long a history. This magnificent church building is furnished throughout with new and highly polished pews, and high altar, pulpit, three large bells, an elegant pipe organ with 13 speaking stops and two manuals, and now, although in a village of only a few people, it is the finest organ in Central Missouri.

RUSSELLVILLE.

Russellville, in Moreau Township, the second town in size and importance in Cole county, is eighteen miles southwest of Jefferson City, the county seat and State Capital, and 142 miles from

St. Louis on the Lebanon Branch of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. It has four churches, a modern two-story brick school building (where are employed three teachers), an excellent weekly newspaper flouring mill, bank, large modern brick hotel, livery stable, and, in fact, every convenience and advantage that can be found in a town of much greater pretensions. The merchants are wide awake and progressive, their unusually large stock and low prices drawing to the town trade for many miles in all directions. Most of the business houses are large, modern brick structures. Its healthful location is on the watershed between the North and the Boaz Mine, which has already added to the wealth of the county more than $50,000. This great source of wealth will unquestionably, when it secures the attention of capital and mining experts, be the means of raising Russellville to one of the largest and most prosperous towns in the State. Coupled with the many advantages spoken of above, is an exceptionally fine class of citizens and business men, who are enterprising in an eminent degree. It

South Moreau. Its customers are the prosperous and thrifty farmers who till the rich bottoms of the Moreaus, and the splendid wheat-growing and fruit-bearing ridges that lie between these streams. In addition to this great source of wealth (sufficient to support a small city) there is, underlying the surface around town, immense deposits of high-grade lead ore, which is at present undeveloped, but one, is their broad and well directed efforts that has placed Russellville so far in the lead of other trade centers in the county and made it a most desirable town in which to locate, for those wishing to reap the advantages of a prosperous and growing town, and at the same time enjoy the social and educational advantages of a highly moral and intellectual community.

LINCOLN INSTITUTE.

Lincoln Institute had its origin in a fund of $6,379 contributed by the 62nd and 65th regiments of the U. S. Infantry, when discharged in January, 1865, of which the 62nd gave $5,000. The only condition of the gift was that a school be established in Missouri, open to the colored people. The idea of founding such a special school as Lincoln Institute at Jefferson City grew out of a conversation held at Fort McIntosh, Texas, between Lieutenant Adamson and Rev. R. B. Foster, who subsequently became the first principal of the school. The Board of Trustees, consisting of the following named gentlemen: Gov. Fletcher, Superintendent Parker, Mr. Yeatman, Judge Krekel, Attorney-General Wingate, State Printer Foster, State Treasurer Bishop, Rev. Whitaker, Rev. R. B. Foster and Sergeant Brown, was organized on June 25, 1865, and school opened September 17, 1866. January 19, 1870, a State Convention of colored men was held in Jefferson City, of which the Hon. J. Milton Turner and the Rev. Moses Dickson were leading spirits. As a result of the gathering a bill was drafted to endow Lincoln Institute as a State Normal School for the training of colored teachers. The bill was passed and approved by Gov. McClurg, and since that time the Institution has been supported by the State.

Lincoln Institute.

In June, 1871, the main building was completed. It was a substantial brick building, 60 by 70 feet, three stories, conveniently arranged and eligibly located upon a prominent hill, just outside the limits of Jefferson City, commanding a fine view of the city. The grounds contain 20 acres. "The Legislature of 1879, appropriated $15,000 for the support of the Institute, provided $5,000 should be applied to the payment of its indebtedness. This appropriation was contained in the general appropriation bill and was a grant to a corporation managing a charity. The Constitution provides: "The General Assembly shall have no power to make any grant of public money or thing of value to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporation whatever.' The grant was in violation of that part of the Constitution just quoted." Governor Phelps, from whose message to the Legislature the above is taken, held the bill until the Board of Trustees met and unanimously voted to transfer the Institute to the State. The bill was immediately approved. This friendly act of the late Governor enabled the trustees to pay every dollar of the debt which for several years had embarrassed them and to place the Institute on a more permanent basis.

Since the Institute became a State school, the Legislature has not only made large appropriations for its maintenance, but has also given money to erect dormitories, to purchase scientific apparatus, to make additions to the library and repair the main building.

By an act of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly a college and a college preparatory school were established in connection with the Institute.

The same Assembly also passed an act which provides that the normal diplomas shall entitle their holders to teach in the schools of the State without further examination; also that the graded certificates, which are granted upon the completion of the two years' course, shall entitle their holders to teach the several branches therein named for a period of two years from the date of graduation. Provision is made in the act for annulling these diplomas and certificates whenever it is found to be necessary.

By an act of the Thirty-sixth General Assembly an Industrial Department was established in connection with the Institute.

The main building was destroyed by fire on the first of August, 1894, but was soon replaced by a far more commodious structure for the erection of which the Legislature appropriated the sum of $40,000.

The Presidents of the school have been the following named gentlemen in their order: R. B. Foster, W. H. Payne, S. T. Mitchell, M. Henry Smith, Inman E. Page and John H. Jackson. At present the school is in a flourishing condition. It has a Faculty of twelve members and an enrollment of 277 students, the largest number in attendance in the history of the Institute. The members of the faculty, come from all sections of the country and are experts in their several lines. The school is well equipped throughout and the discipline and management fully up to Eastern standards. Manual training for both sexes is a special feature of the work at Lincoln Institute. The citizens of Jefferson City, regardless of race, take a great pride in the school and desire its success.

The following named gentlemen compose the Board of Regents: Jesse W. Henry, Jefferson City; Hon. W. T. Carrington, Jefferson City; Robert H. Davis, Greenville; John F. Heinrichs, Jefferson City; Mathematics; Archie L. Reynolds, A. B., second assistant in the Industrial Shop. Mary E. Grimshaw, Instructor in Sewing; Carrie M. Carney, Instructor in Vocal and Instrumental Music; Kate Jordan, instructor in Drawing and assistant teacher in Music; Mrs. Libby C. Anthony, Matron of the girls; Mrs. Sarah H. Dupee, Matron for boys.

The buildings, which occupy the highest point in a beautiful campus of 20 acres, are modern and well equipped, the pupils in attendance represent the best of the race from all parts of the State, while the President and entire faculty are well worthy

PROF. J. H. JACKSON.

Prof. John H. Jackson, President of Lincoln Institute, was born in Lexington, October 31, 1850, where he received his early education in the public schools of that famous judicial seat of Fayette county, Ky. He later entered Berea College, from which he graduated with high honors in the class of 1874, he being the first negro graduate of the Blue Grass State. Following the completion of his education he engaged in teaching a number of years at Lexington. In 1881 he removed to Kansas City, where he was President of the Lincoln High School a number of years. He was appointed by the Governor of Kansas to a number of important positions at different times, among them he was clerk of the Jury Commission, and also clerk of the Police Board of Commissioners of Kansas City, Kansas, and member of the Board of Examiners for Kansas City, Kansas, a position no other one of his race had as yet been honored with. In 1887 he responded to a call from the State Normal College at Frankfort, the Capital of his native State, where he continued to conduct the affairs of that institution with distinguished ability until 1898, when he resigned to accept a call to his present exalted position, the most important of the State occupied by one of the emancipated race. President Jackson was united in marriage July, 1877, to Miss Henrietta Stewart, a lady of education and culture, of Lexington, Ky. This devoted companion he had the misfortune to lose by death November, 1887. In 1889 he was married to Miss Ida Joyce, of Columbus, a graduate of the famous High School of the Capital City of Ohio, and a woman whose mentality and culture makes her a most congenial and companionable helpmate of her distinguished husband. To the first marriage were born two sons; Arthur, the eldest, will graduate from Lincoln Institute, class of 1900; Atwood M., a bright lad, is also a pupil at that institution, while Earl, the son of his present wife, is a pupil in the primary department of the Institute. Although Prof. Jackson has devoted his life to the education of the negro race, his distinguished ability and very broad and well-balanced mind has been recognized by the people with whom he has lived and who have called upon him to serve them frequently in a political capacity. He was delegate at large from the State of Kentucky to the Republican National Convention, 1880, being one of the famous 306 whose fidelity to Grant in the memorable struggle to place the great warrior and statesman a third time in the Presidential chair, makes a dramatic page in the annals of our country's political history. As stated above, he served the State of Kansas, during his stay in Kansas City, Kansas, in a number of important positions and was prominently mentioned for the office of State Auditor, but declined the honor. He has also been prominent and earnest in his opposition to legislative measures which he thought were prejudicial to the interests of the negro race, being one of a delegation of several hundred who appeared before the Governor of Kansas, requesting him to oppose, in his message, the famous separate coach law, in which petition and ceremonies he was the leader and most prominent speaker. His masterly address in opposition to the measure was based on conditions rather than color. He was also chairman of the Committee on Educational Statistics of the Negro Race at the World's Fair in 1893, his comprehensive report being most favorably commented upon by the press throughout the United States. He was also one of Kentucky's Commissioners at the Atlanta Exposition, at which place, by invitation, he made an address on Negro Education in Kentucky, which attracted much attention from those interested in the social and elevating problems connected with the negro race throughout the civilized world. In 1897 he addressed the Senate for the purpose of securing an appropriation for the benefit of the State Normal School, which was so marked and able, in its presentation that the appropriation was made in full of his request. Few men, if any, of his race enjoy more fully the confidence and esteem of the broad-minded people of the United States than does Prof. J. H. Jackson. His broad and well-balanced mind, associated with his sterling character, makes him a man eminently fitted for the exalted position of trying to lead and stimulate the more ambitious and worthy of his race, to aspire to the highest in life. He is a consistent member of the A. M. E. church, and has been for many years, combining with his many other qualities, of manhood the highest type of Christianity. Lincoln Institute, the great State Normal for the negro race of Missouri, is fortunate in securing a man of his distinguished ability and character to direct its affairs. He lives with his family in the comfortable home provided by the Regents of the Institute for the President of the college.

PROF. B. F. ALLEN, A. B. A. M.

Prof. B. F. Allen, A. B. A. M., Vice-President of the Lincoln Institute, was born in Savannah, Ga., and received his early education in the public schools of his native city. He completed the course of study at the University of Atlanta, and later attended the National University, graduating with high honors. In languages he became very proficient and served as a student teacher—an honor much envied. He was afterward elected Principal of the Monticello High School, which he filled most credibly, and later as principal of Risley High School at Brunswick, Ga. Soon after he was elected Principal of the Florida Baptist College at Jacksonville, Fla., but before accepting the offer he was notified of his election to the chair of Natural and Physical Sciences in the State University, at Louisville, Ky. While both these were under consideration he received a telegram from Prof. I. E. Page, (formerly President of Lincoln Institute), asking him to accept the chair of Latin and Greek in Lincoln Institute, which he accepted with little time in which to notify the other institutions of his inability to accept their offers, and has filled the position four years with honor to the institution. He is professor of Modern Languages, History and Pedagogy and has been prominently connected with all movements of the work for the past five years, and specially interested in the Collegiate Department, which department he has done more to build up than any one connected with the school. Few men so young have been more useful in life, and can accomplish so much with apparent ease. He is a fearless speaker, a born teacher, and those who have been under his instruction say they cannot fail to get the essence of the subject he is teaching. He has a reading knowledge of four of the modern languages, which, together with his well stored mind, make his work specially advantageous to the students under his instruction. Very few men of the negro race have been so much favored by nature or enjoyed the educational advantages equal to Prof. Allen.

J. H. BREDEMAN.

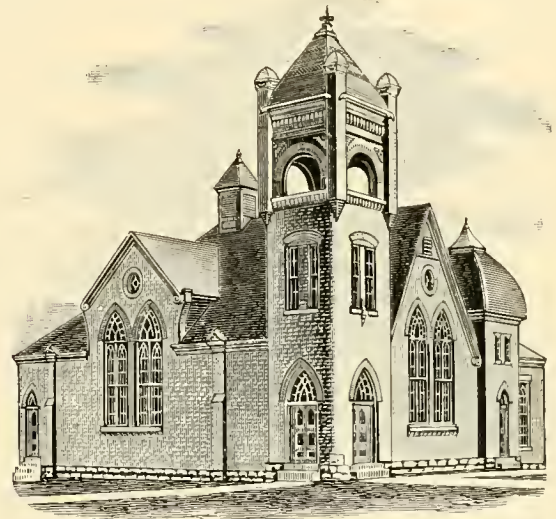

John H. Bredeman, Superintendent of the Industrial Department of Lincoln Institute, was born in Nord Borchon, near Paderborn, Province of Westphalia, Germany (June 8, 1849). He attended school under his father (who was a teacher) until 14 years of age. In 1867 he graduated from the Mechanical School of Paderborn, having determined to make blacksmithing his business. He immigrated to America the same year, coming directly to Jefferson City with his uncle, Joseph Knaup. The following two years he was employed as blacksmith by Fred Fisher, Jno. Fitzpatrick and Henry Dimler, when he formed a partnership with Joseph Crump and opened a blacksmith shop (1869), buying out his partner's interest one year later. After continuing this stand five years he sold out and engaged as foreman in the saddletree shop of J. S. Sullivan at the Missouri Penitentiary, continuing ten years when he was elected Assistant in the Industrial Department of Lincoln Institute, and later (1899) Superintendent, which position he now holds.

Mr. Bredeman was married (June 9, 1870) to Miss Theresa Schrimpf; 17 children have blessed their home, two dying in infancy. Kate is the wife of Ben Droste of Jefferson City; Anna is the wife of John W. Grieshammer, Jefferson City; John is in St. Louis with the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Company; Lawrence is assistant foreman at the Giesecke Shoe Company; Frank is a druggist with J. L. Wright of Jefferson City; Mary, Lizzie, Clara, George, Edward, Pauline, Lavenia, Herman and Henry are at home with their parents; Albert is with the United States soldiers in the Phillipines. Mr. Bredeman is a member of St. Peter's Catholic church, Catholic Knights of America, and an enthusiastic Democrat. With his large and interesting family, his home is at 123 East McCarty street.

SECOND BAPTIST CHURCH (COLORED).

The Second Baptist church (colored) of Jefferson City has an interesting history. In January, 1859, a colored minister, Emanuel Cartwright, complying with an urgent request, came to Jefferson City to preach at the funeral of Julia Brock. At that time (when they were slaves) the colored people were members of the regular First Baptist church, with whom they worshipped. Following the funeral, Rev. Cartwright held a series of meetings, which continued several weeks, and under his preaching some 50 or 60 were converted. In 1860 the whites, who were the Masters, concluded the slaves, who were members of their church, should have their own pastor, and in answer to their request, Silas Woodson was sent from St. Louis to take charge of the church, still they were not allowed to hold their meetings on account of the excitement at the time resulting from the agitation of slavery. Just previous to the war, they were not allowed to worship except when some of the whites were present. The colored congregation grew restless under this restraint and called a church meeting of their own, and elected the following named deacons: Archie Drake, Howard Barnes, Patrom Johnson and Arthur Lee, all of whom were elected Trustees. They held services for some time in a small frame building, between Jefferson and Main streets, and later in the stone church on Main street, west of the Madison Hotel. This building, however, was soon closed against them by the then owners, the Presbyterian church. Rev. Cartwright continued to visit them once a month, and when he would fail to appear, the deacons would conduct services. The earnest little band feeling the necessity of a home of their own, decided to make an effort to purchase property, which they did, on the corner of Main and Monroe streets, agreeing to pay for the same $1,150. With the co-operation of the earnest and faithful lady members of the organization they succeeded in raising this amount, after a struggle of some length, and the property was deeded to them. The congregation continued to prosper spiritually, and grew in numbers. They exchanged their property for their present location, and christened the new building the "Second Baptist church of Jefferson City." About this time (1873) Rev. Cartwright gave up his claim on the church, after which they elected a regular pastor, the first being Rev. Gabriel Gray, with Howard Barnes as clerk. After a short time Rev. Gray was succeeded by Rev. H. H. White. After the departure of Rev. White, Rev. Attwater occupied the pulpit a short time, but attempted to defraud the congregation without success. He was discovered, and left clandestinely. About this time John Gorden was elected clerk. Rev. H. J. Burton was the next pastor, whose administration was prosperous, both financially and spiritually. During one of his protracted meetings there were 65 additions to the church. Rev. Burton continued in charge nearly three years, and was succeeded by S. P. Lewis, who was a pulpit orator of great power. He was followed by Rev. B. F. Ratliff, whose administration was a blessing to the church. November 11, 1888, Rev. J. S. Dorsey became the pastor in charge, continuing for five years. During his pastorate they built a new parsonage at a cost of $1,000, and raised during the five years $5,580 in cash. When he left, the treasury contained $400 to its credit in the bank to go toward the erection of a new auditorium, the plans of which had been drawn. At this time William Mause was elected Treasurer, with Mrs. S. H. Wiseman, Assistant, who succeeded to the office on the death of Mr. Mause, filling the place until a successor was elected in the person of John H. Burton. The church organization has built adjoining their church proper a splendid auditorium, and now have one of the nicest and most modern church buildings in the city. The present pastor is Rev. John Goins, the church now being the best equipped and strongest religious organization of colored people within the Capital City.

REV. JOHN GOINS.

Rev. John Goins, who will be installed as pastor in October, 1900, of the Second Baptist church (colored) of Jefferson City, Mo., was born in Madison county, Ky., October 15, 1864, from which place he came, when a lad, with his parents to Marshalltown, Iowa, and from there to Richmond, Mo. His public school training was in the white schools of Marshalltown, Iowa. His higher education was at Louisville, Ky., State University (colored). He finished a classical theological course at the Western College, Macon, Mo., in 1897, which entitled him to the degree of B. D. His pastorates included the churches at Waverly, Liberty, Stewartville, Plattsburg and Platte City, Mo. These churches were greatly helped and improved under his administration during the last two and a half years. He is now laboring as State missionary under the plan of co-operation, run by the American Home Mission Society (white), Southern Baptist Convention (white), State Board of Missions (white), and State Board (colored), of this State. His work has given general satisfaction to these four Boards, and all concerned. He was united in marriage October 24, 1899, to Miss Mary E. McMahan, of Fulton, Mo., who is a graduate of Lincoln Institute, and a very estimable lady, and has been of great help to him. He is a member of the A., F. & A. M. Rev. Goins is a man of talent, who has profited by his opportunities for study, and large experience with men. His work, in this, the most important point for the colored race in the State, gives promise of great good.

AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

The A. M. E. church of Jefferson City was organized about the year 1862 by the Rev. John Turner, with twenty-five members. A lot and log cabin at 116 Miller street were given to the members by Mr. Elijah Ramsey. For about a year they had no pastor. In 1863 the Rev. Frank Carter, their first pastor, was sent to them. He served the church one year, and during this time they were holding services, consisting of both Methodists and Baptists, as the Baptists had no place to hold services. In 1864 the Rev. Prince Wright was sent to the church, and served two years. During this time the old cabin was torn down, and a frame structure was erected in its place, where the Methodists continued to worship, having separated from the Baptists. The membership continued to increase. They worshipped in this church until 1876, during which time the following pastors served: Rev. Edward Doran served two years, Rev. Thornton Smith one year, John F. Jordan two years, M. S. Parks two years, G. H. Nickels two years, J. C. C. Owens one year, William Ware one year. Rev. William Henderson was sent to the church in 1875, and was its pastor three years; he bought the lot on the corner of Miller and Madison streets, and erected the commodious brick building, in which the church still worships. The church had grown to a membership of over one hundred, which made the building a necessity. The Rev. John Turner, the man who organized the church fourteen years before, was the next pastor. He served one year. He was followed by the following pastors: Reverends John Fouché, G. W. Guy, W. A. Dove, C. W. Preston, J. P. Watson, Solomon Dorcee, James Madison, C. N. Douglass.

lass and W. B. Brooks. In 1895 an unpleasant period appeared in the history of the church, which had grown to a membership of about one hundred and fifty. The Rev. P. W. Dunavant was sent to the church as pastor; after serving three months he was suspended from the A. M. E. connection, and succeeded in taking nearly all the church with him. They claimed the property, worked to hold it, and kept possession of the building about one year. During this time the A. M. E.'s, that were left, had no place in which to worship. The Rev. W. A. Norris was sent to look after them, and improve their condition. The year following, those who had withdrawn, finding they could not hold the property, vacated the building, procuring other quarters. The Rev. E. S. Brown was sent to take charge of the remaining few, about fifteen. He was succeeded by Rev. Madison, who was followed by Rev. J. C. Caldwell, who served two years, being succeeded by Rev. E. R. Vaughan, who served one year. At the meeting of the annual Conference in St. Louis, in October, 1899, the Rev. J. F. Sage was sent to take charge of the church. Rev. Sage has been doing effective work, and within five months he succeeded in adding more than sixty members to the congregation. The membership is now back to its normal size, and the church is in a prosperous condition.

REV. J. F. SAGE.

Rev. Jefferson Franklin Sage, pastor of the A. M. E. church of Jefferson City, was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1858, coming to Missouri when a youth. After the war he lived with Mrs. Henry Godfrey, in Warren county, three years. He then attended school at Jonesburg, and later learned the barber trade, working in different shops in Jonesburg, Warrenton and St. Charles. While in St. Charles he accepted a position in the car shops (being the first colored man to work there), continuing three years, and while there also preached for the A. M. E. church, but was not licensed until 1879. His first charge was O'Fallon Circuit, where he remained a year and a half, and during his pastorate built a church house. He then went to Ashland, Boone county, Mo. (a circuit), continuing two years, enlarged the building and increased the membership fifty per cent. He then served Montgomery City one year, and later three years at Richmond, where he increased the membership from 17 to 170, and remodeled and improved the church building; while at this place he also served as editor of the Richmond Critic, a weekly paper. His next charge was Moberly, Mo., where he remained two years, and during the first year 126 were converted. During his stay here he was editor and manager of the Christian Recorder. From here he was transferred to Lawrence, Kansas, where, during his two years' service, he secured 118 additions, and remodeled the church at a cost of $500. He then served a congregation at Ottawa, Kansas, and Lincoln, Neb., at the latter place securing 33 additions, and paying off $1,000 on a debt of $3,300. After one year's service at each of these places he went to Miami, Mo., where there were added 52 members; after two years here he came to Jefferson City (November 1, 1899), where he has continued since. The church and auxiliaries are in good condition, and the Sunday School in fine working order. During his short stay here 61 additions have been made to the congregation. He is a member of the Knights of Tabor.

Rev. Sage was married in 1871 to Miss Mary Alexander, at St. Charles. This union has been blessed with five children: John Wallace is in St. Louis; the remaining four are attending school in Ottawa, Kansas.

AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH (ZION).

The African Methodist Episcopal church (Zion) was organized October, 1894, by members who withdrew from the African M. E. church. Services were held in the Opera House until the erection of the church on Madison street, between Miller and Elm. Rev. P. W. Dunavent, the first pastor, after the organization, was succeeded by Rev. S. C. Doby, the next pastor being Rev. Clement Peters. Rev. S. W. Hawkins followed, who was succeeded by the present pastor, Rev. W. A. Ely, September 24, 1899. The church is in good working condition. William Thompson is leader of the choir. The Superintendent of the flourishing Sunday School is Ferny Longdon.

REV. W. A. ELY.

Rev. Wesley A. Ely (colored), pastor of the A. M. E. church (Zion) of Jefferson City, was born in Atlanta, Ga., in 1854. When nine years of age he was taken in charge by Col. Joseph Wilcox, an officer in the U. S. army, who took him to his home in Syracuse, N. Y., where the wife of this distinguished man took an interest in the promising lad and gave him all the advantages of an education. At the age of fourteen, having previously studied in the primary schools, he was sent to Oswego, N. Y., and from there to Fulton Academy (an M. E. school) at the age of seventeen, where he remained two years, when he returned to Oswego, N. Y., and entered the State Normal, where he completed a course two years later. He then engaged in teaching, his first school being in Raleigh, N. C., where he was Principal of the High School (colored) two years, after which he attended the Madison University at Madison, N. Y., where he graduated, class 1879. From here he went to Drew, a theological college of the M. E. church, where he continued four years, completing his course in 1884. He then engaged in active work in the Western New York Conference, and began preaching regularly, first at Athica, N. Y., where he continued most successfully in his work as pastor three years. The following two years he was at Syracuse, after which he was made Presiding Elder, in which he continued four years, his charge including a number of congregations. He was then sent to Rochester, N. Y., by his bishop, where he remained two years, and the following two at Saratoga Springs, after which he was again Presiding Elder over the New Jersey district three years, this work being followed by two years at Atlantic City, the famous seaside resort. He was at Louisville one year, from which place he came to Jefferson City in 1899, being sent here by the Zion M. E. C. organization to try to strengthen spiritually their congregation in the Capital City. Rev. Ely was married to Marie Carle, of Utica, N. Y., a lady of education and culture, a graduate of the famous Pochester High School. She is the mother of his children, most of whom are at present attending prominent schools in the state of New York. Rev. Ely has a good mind, and has been blessed with the advantage of a splendid education and a large experience in his work as preacher. His work, since coming to Jefferson City has resulted in nineteen additions to the church, while the Sunday School, prayer meetings and other auxiliaries are in good working condition.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

B. H. OTTO.

Benjamin H. Otto, whose death in this city on March 17, 1900, cast a gloom over a wide circle of friends and relatives and produced a keen but refining sorrow in the hearts of his immediate family, was a native of Hanover, Germany, where he was born May 25, 1850, at Drehle Court, Bersenbueck. When he was six years of age his parents, Henry and Katherine Von Delde Otto, immigrated to this country. He had the misfortune to lose the one who bore to him the sweet relation of mother, when she was only 36 years of age. His father, however, survived her and reached the allotted time of man, three score years and ten. The subject of this sketch learned the trade of pressman in the office of the St. Louis Republic, where he remained a number of years. At the age of sixteen he was a charter member of the Typographical Union, No. 8, of St. Louis. He came to Jefferson City in 1870, accepting a position as foreman of the pressroom of the paper then known as the State Times, now the State Tribune, in which office he continued until the time of his death. When he moved to Jefferson City he became a charter member of Typographical Union, No. 119, of this city, an organization in which he always took a deep and earnest interest. In 1886 he was elected President of this Union, to which position he was re-elected a second time. He was united in marriage, March 28, 1872, to Martha, daughter of James H. and Charlotte Meador. To this union six children were born, three of whom died in infancy. Of the living children, William H., who is employed by the Missouri Illustrated Sketch Book Co., and Minnie, are with their mother. Lottie, the eldest daughter, is the wife of Rudolph H. (Ren) Dallmeyer, to whom she was married December 17, 1890, and is the mother of his two grand children (to whom he was passionately devoted), Martha Allen and Philip A. Dallmeyer.

He was a consistent member of the M. E. church (South), of the A. O. U. W. Lodge, No. 67, and Jefferson City Lodge, No. 24, Degree of Honor.

In the person of Mr. Otto were united the sterling qualities which are embraced in a noble character and are expressed when we say he did his duty to his family, his church, his country and society. His beautiful life and character will long yield a fragrant and elevating influence on his surviving family and friends.

J. T. FISHER.

James Thomas Fisher, foreman of the Tribune Printing Company press rooms, is a native Missourian, born January 5, 1870, his ancestors being from Ireland. He was raised on his father's farm in Osage county until he was seven years of age, when his mother died, leaving him, his brother and infant sister to the tender mercies of friends and relatives. He was sent to the public schools in Gasconade county until ten years of age. His father married again at that time, and removed to Russellville, Cole county, where he lived about one year; he then removed to Linn, Osage county, where Thomas was sent to the public schools about three years. His father then removed to Morrison, and Thomas, the subject of this sketch, came to Cole county and worked for Mr. N. B. Henley on a farm in Clark township three years, after which for the United States Government Survey, having assisted the civil engineers in surveying and sounding the river at Shipley Shoals, where there is at present a Lock and Dam. He was also employed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company for about a year. In 1890 he was employed by the Tribune Printing Company as a press feeder. Five years later he was selected as assistant pressman by his foreman, the late Mr. Otto, and in 1899 was placed in charge of the night force in the press room, and after the death of Mr. Otto, was made foreman. Under his supervision the second volume of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, Election Laws, School Laws and numerous other reports have been printed; also the Cole County Sketch Book. During his fifteen years' residence in Cole county he has, by his industry and thrift, acquired a neat little home in the southwestern part of the city, where he resides with his wife and bright little daughter of six. Mr. Fisher is in politics a Democrat. Is a great believer in the advantages to both the physical and mental man of athletic exercises, having fitted up a gymnasium at his home for his own exercise.

G. J. VAUGHAN.

George Johnston Vaughan, President of the Vaughan-Monnig Shoe Company, is a native of Kentucky, where he was born June 22, 1846, on a farm near Lexington, in Fayette county. When ten years of age he removed with his widowed mother to Lawrence county, Ind., coming ten years later (1866) to Jefferson City, Mo., where he was first engaged as a brakeman on the Missouri Pacific Railroad, after which he was conductor on a freight train until 1875, when he was made ticket agent and yardmaster for the Missouri Pacific at Chamois, Mo. Returning to Jefferson City (1877) he opened a general store at the corner of Mulberry and McCarty, which he conducted for eight years; he was the following two years City Clerk. In 1881 he accepted a position with the Missouri Pacific as conductor of the passenger train on the Lebanon Branch, in which position he continued fourteen years, when he retired from the railroad business. He was Postmaster under President Cleveland (1894-98), his successor being G. F. Robinson. In 1897 he organized the Vaughan-Monnig Shoe Company in connection with R. S. Harvey, J. S. Fleming (the late banker), and Hugo Monnig; for the purpose of manufacturing shoes, and of this company he is now President, and has been since its organization.

In 1899 he engaged in the furniture and undertaking business, associating in partnership with Judge Joseph Stampfli, the firm being Stampfli & Vaughan. On November 5, 1872, he was united in marriage to Miss Annie Kolkmeier of Jefferson City, who now presides over his elegant home (a view of which accompanies this article), 509 West McCarty street. Mr. Vaughan is a member of the order of Railroad Conductors, I. O. O. F., A. O. U. W., Legion of Honor, and Treasurer of the local lodge of Odd Fellows. He has been a valuable citizen of Jefferson City many years, and is now one of its representative men. In addition to his furniture and undertaking business and shoe manufacturing interests, he owns valuable residence property in this city. He is a loyal and active supporter of the Democratic party.

F. E. LUCKETT.

Fenton E. Lockett, a member of the bar of Jefferson City, was born on a farm near Foristell, in St. Charles county, June 8, 1861. His father, Thomas H. Lockett, came to St. Charles county from Virginia in 1836. The education of the subject of this sketch was in the public schools of that county, later taking a two-year's course at the State University at Columbia, Mo., after which he engaged in teaching in St. Charles and Warren counties the following five years, when he entered the law office of an uncle, Judge A. H. Edwards of St. Charles, with the view of preparing himself for the practice of the legal profession. In 1885, coming to Jefferson City, he entered the law office of Smith & Krauthoff, the members of which firm were Judge Jackson L. Smith, an eminent jurist, now Judge of the Court of Appeals of Kansas City, and L. C. Krauthoff. He continued in this office until the dissolution of the firm. In September, 1887, he was appointed City Attorney to fill an unexpired term, and was re-elected to the office the following Spring, 1888; re-elected in 1889 and 1891. In 1892 he was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Cole county, and continued in this important office three successive terms, during which time he made a record as an efficient and thorough worker in his duty to the State and county. It was under his thorough and persistent work a Prosecuting Attorney that Jake Brown, the murderer of Frank Mackin, was found guilty of murder in the first degree and hanged; Ed. McKinzie, the murderer of Nicholas Linhardt, a prominent farmer living near Lohman, suffered the same fate, as did also Tobe Lanahan, murderer of little Willie Gaines. At the expiration of his last term in this official position, Mr. Luckett opened an office for the practice of his profession in the Binder building, where he has continued one of the most successful and prominent lawyers of the Capital City since. He was an associate counselor in the celebrated Dr. J. D. Goddard murder case, which was brought here from Kansas City, and was senior counsel for the defense in the cases of May Salzer and Maude Miller of this city. He was united in marriage October, 1889, to Mathilda, daughter of Capt. Louis Bergau. To this union has been born one son, Thomas Fenton, now eight years of age. Mr. Luckett was appointed a member of the Board of Managers of the State Hospital, No. 1, for the Insane, located at Fulton, Mo., by Gov. Stephens, in March, 1898, an important and responsible position, which he still holds. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. As a criminal lawyer, no one in Central Missouri is more prominent or has been more uniformly successful than Mr. Luckett. He is a close student and a hard worker, and now enjoys a practice which taxes his well directed efforts to their fullest capacity. He is a prominent member of the Democratic party, and takes a deep interest in the affairs of that great political organization, and if the time should come in his life that he should desire to enter politics in an official way, there is no question but that his name will find a prominent place on the pages of the history of the great commonwealth of Missouri.

DR. I. N. ENLOE.

Dr. Isaac N. Enloe was born on a farm eight miles southeast of California, in Moniteau county, Missouri, April 29, 1860, his early education being in the neighboring schools and the Clarksburg Select School. He graduated from the Missouri Medical College of St. Louis, in the class of 1883, locating in St. Thomas, Cole county, Mo., where he engaged successfully in the practice of his profession until 1889, when he disposed of his property and practice to his brother, Dr. John S. Enloe. Going to New York City he took a post-graduate course in the Polyclinic Hospital School of Medicine. He located in Jefferson City, March, 1890, engaging in the practice of his profession, which he has continued since, except in 1895, when he took a second post-graduate course in the Polyclinic Hospital School of Medicine of New York. He was united in marriage October 12, 1886, to Miss Rebecca J. Short, daughter of John A. Short of Russellville, this county. To this union have been born seven children: Loyce, Ada, David and Justin are attending the public schools of Jefferson City; Robert and Roscoe (twins), bright boys of five years, are at home; the other child, John, died in infancy in 1898.

Dr. Enloe is a member of the A., F. & A. M. He is a Republican in politics, and was the nominee of that party for Representative of Cole county in 1888 and 1894, being defeated by 55 and 27 votes, respectively, which was a complimentary result under the circumstances, the county being strongly Democratic. He is President of the Pension Board of Examining Surgeons, and was for nine years a member of the Board of Education of Jefferson City, and is an active member of John McDowell Medical Society. His mind and thoughts are absorbed in the duties of his profession and devotion to his family. He is a regular subscriber to the medical journals and a close observer and reader of their contents, keeping fully abreast with the advancing thoughts and experiments which are constantly developing new truths in this humane science. Dr. Enloe is a direct descendent of the Enloes who immigrated from Scotland to this country at an early day, his great grandfather, Enoch Enloe, settling in York county, South Carolina, where he and his brother, Isaac, taught school and farmed, each of whom were soldiers in the Revolutionary War. James, the youngest son of his great grandfather, was born in 1793 in York county, S. C., from which place he moved to Tennessee. He also lived a short time in Kentucky, coming to Missouri about the year 1828, and locating in Cole county. He was a farmer and stockraiser, and took an active part in politics, representing Cole county twice and Moniteau county once, after that county was cut off from Cole. Enoch Enloe, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Barren county, Ky., May 19, 1814, coming to Missouri with his father in 1828; his wife was formerly Miss Jane C. Murray. He was a farmer, and engaged in teaching, residing on a farm, the old homestead, eight miles southeast of California, Moniteau county, Mo.

J. A. DROSTE.

Joseph A. Droste, the Deputy Circuit Clerk of Cole county, was born in Jefferson City, November 13, 1870, his education being in the public schools of this city. At the early age of nine he began to work on a farm near the city, at which he continued when not at school, until the age of nineteen, after which, with the exception of eighteen months spent in St. Louis in the employ of Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict, he has occupied his present position, in which his experience and aptitude make him most proficient. Mr. Droste is a worthy young man, of good habits, with a promising future. He makes his home with his father, J. G. Droste, one of the pioneer German settlers of Cole county, and a highly esteemed citizen.

G. H. WYATT, JR.

George H. Wyatt, jr., son of George and Sarah Jane (nee Owens) Wyatt, was born on a farm five miles west of Jefferson City, in Cole county, October 29, 1863. Here he remained attending the neighboring schools until thirteen years of age, when he was placed in the school at California, Missouri, making his home with an uncle, Judge Samuel H. Owens, a prominent attorney of that place. In 1879 he entered the Christian Brothers College at St. Louis, taking a collegiate course, graduating in the class of 1881; returning to Jefferson City he entered the law office of Smith & Krauthoff, prominent attorneys, as confidential clerk and law student. In this position he remained three years, after which he entered the Law Department of the Louisville (Ky.) University, graduating in the class of 1885. Returning to Jefferson City he engaged in the practice of law in partnership with Hon. W. S. Pope, and was later elected City Attorney, his majority being 502 votes. He soon thereafter, however, resigned this position, and went to Texas, where he engaged in newspaper work the following two years, most of the time editor-in-chief and business manager of the Trade Review of Waco, Texas. Returning to Missouri in 1889, he established the weekly Sentinel at Linn Creek, Camden county. This paper he continued through the following campaign, making a warm fight for Democracy, which resulted in their first victory after the war, overcoming a Republican majority of over 600, a victory which his conceded, was due largely to his efforts through his paper and on the stump. On account of sickness he sold this plant and returned to Jefferson City. Recovering, he engaged in farming until January, 1899, when he was elected clerk of the Joint Revision Committee, in which position he did most efficient service until the work which he had in charge was completed, November 1, 1899. His annotations, while engaged on this committee work, evidenced his rank as a lawyer of ability. Since the completion of this duty he has engaged in the practice of his profession. His ancestors were among the early pioneers of this county, his paternal grandfather coming to Cole county from Virginia in 1816, when Missouri was yet a territory. His mother was a member of the Owens family, one of the most prominent, socially and politically, of the Blue Grass State. He is a man of an unusually bright mind, a fluent, forceful speaker, and a ceaseless, active worker in his efforts to promote the interests of the Democratic party, of which his family have been members since its organization. Mr. Wyatt was united in marriage (December 17, 1886) to Rebecca Jessamine, daughter of Lucy Elizabeth (Young) and Walter Powhatan Mayo, pioneer citizens of the Blue Grass State) in Louisville, Ky., who, together with his bright interesting children, Sarah Eugenia, Sherwood Mayo and "Dolly Dimple," form a charming family circle at the old Wyatt homestead, five miles west of Jefferson City.

J. H. KAUTSCH.

J. H. Kautsch, of the firm of Kautsch & Linhardt, dealers in agricultural implements and general merchandise, Lohman, Mo., was born in Cole county, February 14, 1860. He received his education in the public schools of this county, and engaged in farming until 1882, when he formed a partnership with C. W. Lohman, the firm being C. W. Lohman & Co., merchants; continuing in this business until the Spring of 1887, when, with J. A. N. Linhardt, he engaged in his present business. In 1885 Mr. Kautsch was married to Miss A. M. Schubert, daughter of Adam Schubert. They have two children, Alma Elizabeth and John Arthur. Mr. Kautsch is a Democrat in politics, and was appointed Postmaster of Lohman during Grover Cleveland's regime as President, which office he still holds. Like his partner, Mr. Kautsch is a genial, whole-souled gentleman and a thorough, upright and honorable business man, belonging to that class who build up towns and communities, and make friends whose friendship continues through life.

J. A. N. LINHARDT.

J. A. N. Linhardt, of the firm of Kautsch & Linhardt, is a son of John Linhardt, of Lohman, Mo., and was born upon his father's farm in January, 1866, where he grew to manhood. He received his education in the public schools, and followed the vocation of a farmer until 1887, when, in partnership with Mr. J. H. Kautsch, he engaged in the business of general merchandising and dealer in agricultural implements and grain at Lohman. Through the hustling and well directed efforts of the firm a large business has been built up, they selling, annually, a car-load of binders and mowers alone. Mr. Linhardt, who is known to all, and likes to be called by the name of "Adam," is of genial and friendly disposition, and is a shining example of what a young man of sterling integrity can accomplish as a successful business man. He is unmarried, and a Republican in politics.

H. O. LINHARDT.

H. O. Linhardt, one of the prominent farmers and stockmen of Cole county, whose home is near the village of Lohman, was born November 16, 1872, and is a son of Nicholas Linhardt, whose tragic death, in April, 1896, resulted in the hanging of his murderer, Ed. McKinzie. The subject of this sketch was made administrator of his father's large estate, which included, in addition to the home farm of 520 acres, other lands and personal property, money, notes, bonds, etc. Mr. Linhardt, in addition to the farm on which he raises bales and ships quantities of hay, is engaged largely in stock-raising. His herd of high-grade and thoroughbred cattle being the finest in the county, his registered animals being of the best families imported to this country. He also raises a large number of hogs. Mr. Linhardt is an energetic, thorough-going young man, who discharges the responsibilities which have devolved upon him since the death of his father with ability and success. He has not as yet assumed family responsibilities on his own account, but with his two brothers, J. Ed. and Nicholas, jr., makes his home with his widowed mother. He has three sisters, Mrs. Anna Knernshield of Elston, Mrs. Emma Knernshield of Lohman and Mrs. Elizabeth Gemeinhardt of Jefferson City. He is one of the stockholders of the Lohman and Russellville Telephone, the company of which he is Vice-President.

JUDGE PHILIPP OTT.

Philipp Ott, ex-judge of Cole county, Mo., was born in Bayreuth, in the Province of Bavaria, Germany, October 11, 1831, his parents being Charles and Catherine Ott, also natives of Germany, now deceased. He received his education in the college of Bayreuth. In 1849, with his sister Johanna, he immigrated to America with Adam Opel and family, now residents of Jefferson City, landing at New Orleans, after 53 days on the ocean. He first located in St. Louis, securing employment the following day with his uncle. He continued in this position until the death of his uncle, when he continued the business for his aunt, later purchasing her interests and conducting the business on his own account one year. In 1853 he disposed of this business and removed to Cole county, engaging in merchandising at Marion. When 26 years of age he took the oath of allegiance to the United States, and was Postmaster at Marion over a quarter of a century. In 1865 he disposed of his interests here and removed to Kansas City, but becoming dissatisfied, remained only one year. Returning to Marion, he engaged in farming until 1882, when he removed to Jefferson City, where he has conducted a large lumber business since. In 1885 he was appointed County Judge by Gov. Fletcher, and was elected two successive terms following the expiration of his term by appointment. He was Deputy Sheriff of Cole county four years. Mr. Ott was married to Miss Elizabeth Wippenbeck, a native of Germany, April 14, 1853, who is the mother of his four children, three of whom are living, Francis S., Katie and Louis. On April 2, 1889, he was elected Mayor of Jefferson City on the Republican ticket, and it is said of him that he was the best Mayor the city ever had. He is one of the representative men of Cole county, and being one of its early settlers, has witnessed many changes in its growth and prosperity. He is now one of the most substantial business men of Jefferson City and has been recently elected to the important office of President of the Commercial Club, an organization of the best citizens of the city, whose aim and object is to promote and advance her material interests.

A. J. SHOCKLEY.

Andrew Jackson Shockley was born on a farm near Milan, Ripley county, Ind., March 12, 1834. Here he grew to manhood, and was educated in a log school house nearby. When twenty-one years of age he came to Linn Creek, Camden county, where he was employed by former Governor McClurg as a cooper until 1861, when he returned to Indiana where he remained three years and engaged in farming. He returned to Missouri in 1867, renting a farm in the river bottom near Carrollton, where he continued until 1869, when he removed to DeWitt and engaged in the livery and implement business. Disposing of this interest in 1875 he removed to Jefferson City, where he engaged in the hardware business, the firm being Shockley & Wilson. In 1878 he purchased the interest of his partner and continued the business on his own account until 1881, when he disposed of his stock of hardware and purchased a farm near Jefferson City, from which place, after three years, he returned to Jefferson City, engaging again in the hardware business. Dis posing of this stock in 1885, he removed to Carrollton, Mo., where he continued in the hardware business until 1892. He returned to Jefferson City continuing in the same business until July, 1899. Mr. Shockley was married December 28, 1860, to Miss Rebecca Tipton of Camden county, who continued his devoted companion until separated by death twenty-three years later. She was the mother of his daughter, Miss Minnie Shockley, who is now a teacher in the public schools of Jefferson City. In 1885, Mr. Shockley was again united in marriage to Miss Laura, daughter of Maj. J. B. Ruthven of Cole county. To this union has been born three children; the eldest, Ruthven, is a student, as is also Nola; Lee Johnston, the youngest, is four years of age. Mr. Shockley has been forty years a member of the I. O. O. F., during which period he occupied all the official chairs of that excellent order. He has also for many years been a member of the Missionary Baptist church, and was for some time one of the trustees of the First Church of Jefferson City, and also served as Treasurer. He was also Treasurer of the Baptist church in Carrollton during his residence in that city, at which place he was also a member of the City Council. During the administration of former Governors Crittenden and Marquette he was door-keeper of the Senate. Mr. Shockley has recently disposed of his elegant home on E. High street and removed with his interesting family to Joplin, a circumstance regretted by his many friends of Jefferson City; he still, however, continues his citizenship here.

FRANCIS ROER.

The death of Francis Roer in this city December 3, 1888, took from the ranks of her citizens one of the noblest characters who had figured prominently in developing its elevating influences. In reading the history of Jefferson City his name is associated with the uplifting factors which have aided so much in its religious development. He was born in Soest, Germany, July 29, 1810, in which place in his early manhood he was traveling salesman for a wholesale tobacco house and clothing factory, from which business he resigned to come to America, settling at Westphalia, Osage county, Mo., from there in the Fall of 1846 he removed to Jefferson City. In 1850 he began teaching school, which he continued the following two years, and when the Catholics had no church house in which to worship he taught the religious truths in his private house to young and old, before a priest was stationed here. Many of the prosperous business men of the Capital City of today were his pupils. In 1853 he opened a tannery, in partnership with Charles Pratt, which, owing to the lack of shipping facilities, they discontinued two years later, when Mr. Roer opened a news stand and bookstore, which he conducted with success the following nine years, when he disposed of the business to Oscar Momig, who was later killed in the disastrous wreck of the first train which went out on the Lebanon Branch road. In connection with his bookstore and news stand, he engaged in the insurance business, representing four Old Line companies, and in 1860, when the Germania Life Insurance Company was organized he was appointed its first agent, which position he continued until his death, as stated above, December 3, 1888. In 1861 he was appointed by Gen. H. Clay Ewing (at that time Mayor of Jefferson City), Collector. He later served the city as Assessor for a number of years; was of the number of pious and faithful men who organized the Catholic church at this place and assisted in building the first, the second and also the present magnificent church building, which was erected in 1882, and was one of the solid and substantial supporters of that great religious organization during his life. He was a charter member of St. Peter's Benevolent and St. John's Orphan Societies. April 21, 1853, he was united in marriage to Miss Helena Arens. To this union were born three children; Sophia is the wife of Dr. George Schwoerer of St.

Louis county, Mo.; Francis William, one of the most popular and successful business men of the city, is serving his third term as County Clerk of Cole county, with whom Elizabeth and his mother make their home at 216-218 Madison street, the old home, which his father purchased March 1, 1867. Mr. Roer, at the time of his death was 78 years of age, and during the 42 years of his residence in Jefferson City he witnessed its growth from the hamlet it was on his coming, to the beautiful city of lovely homes and splendid business houses, with a population of over 10,000 happy and prosperous people. In this city no man was held in higher esteem, and deservedly so, than the late Francis Roer.

PROF. LEE JORDAN.

Prof. Lee Jordan, Principal of the school of Russellville, was born in Moniteau county, on a farm near High Point, Jan. 27, 1867, where he remained until fifteen years of age, working on the farm in Summer and attending the neighboring school during the Winter season, when his parents removed to Miller county and settled near Olean, from which place he attended the Miller County Institute at Spring Garden, and later the Aurora Academy at Aurora Springs. Prof. Jordan began teaching at the age of fifteen, continuing to attend school during vacation. In this exalted profession he has continued since, having taught a term of from six to ten months each year, his work being in the counties of Miller, Moniteau and Cole. He took charge of the Russellville school in Sept. 1898. His successful work resulting in the renewal of his engagement at the expiration of each term since. He was married April 27, 1887, to Miss Ella, daughter of Judge J. J. Pitchford of Spring Garden. Five bright children are the result of this union, three boys and two girls, their ages being from two to twelve years. Prof. Jordan is a worthy member of that elevating social order I. O. O. F. at Olean, of which lodge he was Secretary three years; he is also an active and earnest member of the Missionary Baptist Church. In his exalted profession he has taken an intelligent and studious interest, being a continuous supporter of the institutes and other means of culture for the teachers. His wife, who is his assistant, is in thorough sympathy with his work, being educated largely at the same school with him, and was engaged in teaching when they united their destinies. For this reason their companionship is most congenial and mutually advantageous. Prof. Jordan is a fine specimen of physical and mental manhood, a most worthy man, whose sterling character is one of his most important qualifications in influencing the receptive young minds who are placed in his charge. He is serving a second term as School Commissioner of Miller county, his majority on his first election being 19, while at the second it was 775, a fact attesting his efficiency and qualifications for this important position and the appreciation of the same by the citizens of that commonwealth.

W. S. LESLIE.

William S. Leslie, a farmer near Russellville, was born in Cole county, Mo., on a farm near Russellville, May 3, 1854, where he was reared, obtaining his education in the neighboring schools. He began farming on his own account when twenty-one years of age, renting one year, when he purchased the farm on which he now lives. In addition to the successful management of his farm he has been for many years one of the prominent stockbuyers and shippers of Cole county, dealing principally in cattle, hogs and sheep. On April 7, 1874, he was united in marriage to Miss Ella, daughter of Wm. B. Groom, of Moniteau county. To this union have been born six children, three boys and three girls: the eldest daughter, who died at the age of eighteen, was at the time the wife of Dr. N. T. Enloe of Jefferson City, to whom she was united in marriage one year previous; Byron is a bright and talented newspaper man, at present engaged with the "Press" at Jefferson City, and the Jefferson City correspondent of St. Louis and Kansas City dailies. The remaining children are at home with their parents. Mr. Leslie is a member of the Cole Springs Baptist church, in which he has occupied the important position of clerk for a number of years. He is an active Democrat in politics. Mr. Leslie was one of the organizers of the Russellville Exchange Bank and several years a director, but has disposed of this interest.

GEORGE SCHNEIDER.

George Schneider, of Schneider Bros., of the Russellville Hotel, was born on a farm near Taos, May 12, 1857, where he was raised. He engaged in farming near Shipley Shoals five years, when he purchased the farm he still owns near Brazito. He associated with his brother, Louis, in the hotel business at Russellville in April, 1898, where he now makes his home, still retaining his farm, which he rents. He was married March 13, 1887, to Miss Katie Schubert, sister of M. Schubert, President of the Schubert-Weyler Mercantile Company of Russellville. Of his three children, Albert is twelve years of age, Mary eleven and John nine, all of whom are now attending the public school at Russellville. Mr. Schneider is a good citizen, whose well-directed efforts have given to him a liberal portion of this world's goods, and he is one of the many public spirited men of the town of Russellville who assisted in giving to it its many advantages.

R. W. MORROW.

Robert W. Morrow, a member of the bar of Jefferson City, was born in the city of Galway, Ireland, October 27, 1865, where he received his early education. At the age of nineteen he left his native country for the United States, where he first visited a sister, Mrs. Logan Reavis of St. Louis. After a few months he accepted a position as stenographer and clerk with the Texas Pacific Railroad, from which position he resigned two years later to accept a similar one with the Adam Roth Grocery Company, where he remained two years. Being an exceptionally efficient stenographer he was tendered a position with the Secretary of State, which he accepted, being in the office with Capt. A. A. Lesneur six years. During his residence in the Capital City he devoted his leisure hours to the study of law, and was, in April 1898, admitted to the bar at Vienna, Maries county, by Judge Shackelford, at present a member of Congress from this district. During the session of the 40th General Assembly he was elected Enrolling Clerk of the House of Representatives. After the adjournment of this session he decided to locate permanently in the Capital City, and opened a law office in the Realty building, where he continues the practice of his profession with marked success. Mr. Morrow is a young man of rare mental capacity, and exceptional literary culture. He is unquestionably one of the most talented men of the State, some of his productions in verse ranking with those of our greatest poets. His poem on the opening and dedication of the great steel bridge which spans the Missouri River at this point, shows a wide range of thought and an ability to express in fine words, most appropriate to the hour, rarely found in men of his age. Another poem, which was extensively copied throughout the country, was on the death of the great silver champion, Richard P. Bland. He has written a number of choice short poems, which have appeared in the various papers and magazines of the country and received most favorable comment from the press. One of his most beautiful productions is entitled "Optimistic," and among those which are especially pleasing to men who are appreciative of the higher class of literature is "Cupid in the Country," "The Lochinvar of the East" and many others which we have not space to mention. Mr. Morrow's ability as a writer is not confined to verse. He wields a strong and versatile prose pen. Being a close reader he has produced some articles on the current events of the day which are strong and show a wide range of observation and thought found only in an extensive reader and a close analytical observer. He is also an eloquent and forceful speaker. Mr. Morrow is a member of the M. E. church (South) of Jefferson City, of the order Giant Oaks, and an active influential worker in the interest of the Democratic party.

GEORGE WAGNER.

George Wagner, deceased, was born in Schwarzsach, Bavaria, February 13, 1821, from which place, at the age of twenty, he immigrated to America, and settled on a farm in Cole county, near Osage City. His education was in the private schools of his native town in Bavaria. In 1846 he built a brewery two and one-half miles west of Osage City, this being the first one established in the county. He continued to operate this enterprise successfully until 1870, when he removed to Jefferson City, and purchased the plant (now owned by Moerschel Bros.) which he continued to operate until 1886, when he sold to his sons, Conrad and Lawrence, who in turn disposed of their interest to the present proprietors. He was elected Sheriff of Cole county on the Republican ticket in the Fall of 1878 and re-elected in 1880. He served as Alderman of Jefferson City a number of years. He was a member of the Evangelical Central Lutheran church, and also of the I. O. O. F. He was united in marriage in the Spring of 1849 to Anna R., daughter of Nicholas Wolfrum, a farmer near Osage City, she also being a native of Bavaria. Mr. Wagner was the father of thirteen children, of whom seven are living: Conrad is a prominent and wealthy citizen of this city; Lawrence is in Colorado Springs; William W. is the popular proprietor of the Monroe House; Henry is in the hotel business in St. Louis; Christopher is in San Francisco, Cal., and Louis is in Denver, Col. Katharine is the wife of George Peasner of this city. Mr. Wagner was a prominent figure in Cole county and Jefferson City during his successful life, and established what is now one of the most prominent families in the county. His death occurred in this city, September 24, 1895, at the age of 74 years. His wife survives him, and is now aged 71 years, making her home with her eldest son, Conrad.

CONRAD WAGNER.

Conrad Wagner was born on a farm near Osage City, this county, May 1, 1849, acquiring his early education in the district school nearby. He later attended Jones' Commercial College, St. Louis, graduating in class of 1869, from where he returned to the home of his father, George Wagner, and later removed to Jefferson City. Here he worked in the ship with his brother, Lawrence, operated the brewery successfully until 1892, when it was disposed of to the present proprietors, the Moerschel Brothers. He then engaged in the wholesale wine, beer and liquor business in Colorado Springs, being associated in this business with his brother, Lawrence, and in which he still retains his interest, his brother looking after the business. In addition to this and other property interests in Jefferson City, Mr. Wagner is a stockholder in the First National Bank, of which he is a director. He was united in marriage October 8, 1878, to Theresa C., daughter of Albert Walther, a prominent farmer near Ewing Station. To this union have been born four sons and one daughter: Adolph L. is a druggist with G. A. Fischer; Edwin L. is also a druggist in the employ of J. L. Wright; Miss Frieda is at school in Colorado Springs; Emil and Paul are at home. Mr. Wagner is a member of the Evangelical Central Lutheran church. His business movements in life have been attended with uniform financial success, and, as a result, he is now able to live in comparative retirement, although still in the prime of life. His home is 113 West Ashley street.

W. W. WAGNER.

William W. Wagner, proprietor of the Monroe House, is a native of Cole county, to which place his parents, George and Katherine Wolfrum Wagner, from Bavaria, Germany, immigrated in 1844, the year of the great over-flow, locating on a farm in the township of New Liberty, where the subject of this sketch was born February 10, 1855. On this farm he was reared and obtained his education in the neighboring schools, graduating later from the celebrated Jones' Commercial College of St. Louis. In his early manhood he was Deputy Sheriff under his father, being afterward elected to that office, in which he served two terms. After engaging in various other pursuits with financial success, he became the proprietor of the Monroe House, the leading commercial hotel of Jefferson City. Mr. Wagner was united in marriage November 16, 1876, to Miss Lena, daughter of John Bohrer, of Jefferson City. This union has been blessed with six children, three boys and three girls: the eldest, Victor, assists in the management of the hotel; Alma is the charming wife of Fred. C. Binder, a prominent young business man of Jefferson City; George is clerk in the hotel; Stella and Alfred are students at the High School; Edwina, the youngest, is five years of age. Few men in Central Missouri are better known or more popular than Wm. W. Wagner, the genial proprietor of the Monroe House of Jefferson City. He has not only managed his hotel business with marked financial success, but has other important interests in most of which he was influenced to become identified, not altogether on account of their substantial character and promise of dividends, but largely to assist the material progress of the city. Of enterprises of this class, he is a stockholder and director in the Jefferson City Water Works Co., the Bridge and Transit Company, the Jefferson City Light, Heat and Power Company, of the latter of which he is President. He is also largely interested in mining properties in the southern part of the county, property which promises on development to be immensely valuable. Mr. Wagner is a Knight Templar, a member of the I. O. O. F., Elks, K. of P. and M. W. A., and in all of these exalted and elevating orders is a worthy representative. He demonstrated his loyalty to Jefferson City by a very active opposition to the Capital removal, and was a strong advocate and assisted greatly in securing for Cole county its magnificent court house. All of Mr. Wagner's efforts have been attended with financial success, the result of the prompt and active exercise of his good judgment.

H. H. NEEF.

Herman Henry Neef was born July 18, 1833, in Baden, Germany, and died at his home in Jefferson City, Missouri, March 31, 1900. His parents were Joseph and Susannah Neef. His father was a wealthy and prominent citizen, owning a large hotel at the fashionable watering place of Constance, in the Southern part of the Grand Duchy of Baden.

The education of the subject of this sketch was in the schools of the place of his birth, and afterward in Switzerland, where he attended a Lyceum for several years. In his early manhood he learned the trade of tinner. In 1848 the Liberal party, to which his family belonged, rose against the Grand Duke, (forcing him to flee the country), and established a Republic, which was shortlived, however, for the Prussians espoused the cause of the Grand Duke, and a few months later restored him to his country and throne, after several short conflicts with the Revolutionary party. Those who had been active in the Revolution (among whom were the Neefs) now found their estates confiscated to the crown, and their lives in imminent danger. Many of the prominent Republican leaders fled to America, among them Carl Schurz of New York and Louis Prang of Boston. Mr. Neef's family was scattered, and made their way singly to America, where, after much inquiry and correspondence they were again united in 1854, at Carbondale, Ill. With his widowed mother, brothers and sisters, he removed to St.

Louis, soon after which, on account of serious sickness, he placed his mother in a hospital, hoping that the advantages thus afforded might relieve her physical distress; but this hope was without fruition, and he was soon required to perform the sad duties attending her death.

Mr. Neef, with the tools he could carry in hand, undertook to work his way to Jefferson City, on foot, but meeting with discouragements he returned to St. Louis. Soon afterward, removing to Ste. Genevieve, he opened a hardware store there, which, within a few months, he removed to Jefferson City. In 1858 he sold this business and removed to Tipton, Mo., where he engaged in the hardware business with great success, and within a few years his business grew to such an extent that he owned and operated at the same time hardware stores in Tipton, Sedalia, Warrensburg and Versailles. Having in this manner accumulated considerable wealth he retired from the hardware business and established a large brewery at Tipton which, within five years, was destroyed by fire, entailing a serious financial loss. He then opened a large hotel in the same city, meeting with great financial success, but within six months the entire property was consumed by fire, a total loss.

Soon after this he removed to Jefferson City and opened a hotel, doing a good business for six years when he leased the old Tennessee House. Two years later he purchased the property on West High street, known as "Neef Terrace," one of the handsomest pieces of architecture to be found in Jefferson City, containing two commodious office rooms (now occupied by the Missouri Illustrated Sketch Book Company), and four beautiful and well-appointed flats which are among the most desirable residences in the city.

Mr. Neef was married February 1, 1858, to Margaret, daughter of Joseph and Theresa Brenneisen, of Jefferson City. To this union were born five daughters, Amelia, the wife of Adolph Meyer, now engaged in the grain and cotton business at Perry, Oklahoma; Clara, wife of Dr. W. A. Clark, a prominent physician of the Capital City; Bertha, wife of Speed Mosby, Deputy Clerk of the Missouri Supreme Court; Misses Louise and Augusta, both of whom are living at home with their widowed mother; and one son, Julius, who has been for more than twenty years in the service of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and now occupies a responsible position in the office of the General Auditor of that company, at St.

"Neef Terrace."

Louis. Mr. Neef was a charter member of the A. O. U. W. lodge at Jefferson City. While at Tipton he served his community, successively, as member of the School Board, City Councilman and City Treasurer. In 1861 he enlisted in Company H., Cole County Home Guards, in which he served as sergeant. He was in active service during the whole of the Civil War, and near the close thereof was commissioned a lieutenant of the State Militia. After the war, in politics, he was always a Democrat.

He was a remarkable character in many respects. He had seen his share of sorrow, but lived bravely through it all, and his old age was blessed with peace and comfort. He was always genial and happy to the day of his death. He envied no man, hated none, and called no man his enemy. In the evening of his days he was wont to recall the scenes of his boyhood in the mountains of Southern Germany. About the last act of his life was to sing one of the sweet songs of his Fatherland, which he did with a voice which all who knew him will remember as of uncommon richness and beauty, and whose tones retained their wondrous power and sweetness to the last. But a few hours later he sank to rest and his soul passed peacefully like the echoes of the songs he used to sing.

In religion he was a devout Catholic, and his body now sleeps in the new cemetery of the parish of St. Peter, on the summit of the Missouri bluff, within sound of the ceaseless dashing of that river whose waves forever sing his requiem, where the first beams of the morning may kiss his grave, and the last rays of the sunset may linger upon it.

DR. J. L. THORPE.

Dr. Jefferson L. Thorpe, son of Dr. A. B. and Abigail (Shaon) Thorpe, is a native of Jefferson City, where he was born July 5, 1862, at the home of his grandfather, Capt. J. T. Rodgers. His great grandfather, on his mother's side, was John Yount, whose parents were natives of Holland, who came from Alabama early in the Nineteenth century and settled in Callaway county, opposite the Capitol building, where he erected the first brick house in that county. His father's ancestors came from England with the Puritans. He was a prominent physician, associated with Dr. Gray at California, Mo., in practice, and died when the subject of this sketch was two years of age. Dr. Thorpe's early education was in the public schools of California, Missouri, at White's Academy, and he later attended the State University at Columbia, Mo. Early following his inherited inclination for the science of medicine he began the study in Dr. Gray's office, of California, Mo., which was followed by a short period with Dr. Davison, of Jefferson City, after which he entered the St. Louis Medical College, graduating from there in the class of 1886, when he located in Jefferson City in the practice of his profession. He was soon after appointed to fill the unexpired term of Dr. A. D. Standish, at the State Prison, in which position he served about two years, and declined further appointment by Gov. Morehouse. He was appointed District Surgeon of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company in 1887, and continues to serve the corporation in that capacity. He was Secretary of the Board of Pensions eleven years (1887-1898). In the Fall of 1893 he was elected on the Democratic ticket as Coroner of Cole county, in which position he qualified and immediately resigned. In 1896 he took a post-graduate course in the Polyclinic School of Medicine of New York City. He was united in marriage October 1, 1889, to Helen C., daughter of Capt. W. C. Thomas, a wealthy citizen of California, Mo. He is a member of Jefferson Lodge A., F. & A. M., No. 43, a Knight Templar, a member of the Brotherhood of Elks and Medical Examiner of the M. W. A. He is a man of fine physique, unusually favored by nature in personal appearance and enjoys perfect health. He has a large and growing practice. His elegant and well appointed home is 111 West High street, which is presided over by his charming wife, and is brightened by the presence of his lovely daughter, Mildred, now nine years of age.

JUDGE E. L. EDWARDS.

Judge Edward Livingston Edwards, whose death occurred in this city September 1, 1894, was one of the most prominent and worthy characters found in the history of the citizens of Cole county. He was born in Rutherford county, Tenn., March 17, 1812, on a farm near Murfreesboro, where he remained until 19 years of age. His early educational advantages were confined to a few Winter months in the nearby school. He engaged to teach a school term in Williamson county, but resigned in the Autumn of 1831, coming directly to Jefferson City, Mo., where he studied law with his elder brother, Hon.

John C. Edwards, the Secretary, and later Governor of the State. In February, 1835, he was licensed to practice law, and during the same year was elected Clerk of the Circuit and County Court, the office of which had just been made elective. In 1837 he was elected Brigadier General of the First Brigade, 6th Division of Missouri Militia, but resigned the position a few weeks later. In 1838 he established, in company with John McCullough, the Jefferson Enquirer, as a Democratic paper, but suspended the publication at the close of the campaign in 1840 on account of lack of patronage. In 1841 he was appointed by Governor Reynolds Circuit Attorney of the Fourteenth Judicial District, which office he resigned soon after and entered earnestly into the practice of the legal profession. In 1846 he was elected to the State Legislature, and two years later to the Senate. In 1858 he retired from practice and removed to his farm in the Osage Valley, 11 miles east of the city. In 1860, however, becoming intensely interested in the tragedy-breeding question which occupied the minds of the people then, he removed to Jefferson City and became the editor-in-chief of the Examiner, a strong Democratic organ. After one year he again retired to the farm. In 1863 he again removed to Jefferson City, resuming the practice of law, and in 1874 was elected to the Legislature. In May 1879, he was elected to the bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge George W. Miller, to which position he was re-elected in November 1880. His life on the bench was marked with the same love of justice, as it had been as a lawyer at the bar, and he was frequently called to preside in other circuits by his brother judges. His judicial career ended, after fourteen years' service, December 31, 1892. He then being nearly 81 years of age, declined to be a candidate for re-election, though physically he could do as much as any member of the bar and his mind was not in the least affected. He was recognized as one of the best Circuit Judges that ever presided in Missouri. His demise, September 1, 1894, was the result of a stroke of paralysis at 7:30 a. m.

In 1840 he was married to Ann Ivy, daughter of Warren Dixon, of North Carolina. His widow survives him, now being 88 years of age. Of the living children born to this union, John W., is a farmer; Joseph R., a prominent attorney of Jefferson City; Sallie E., lives with her mother at the old home-

CAPT. C. W. THOMAS.

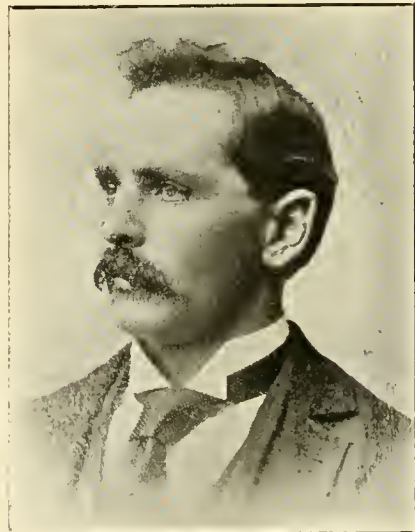

In the death of Capt. C. W. Thomas, December 31, 1899, Jefferson City lost one of her best citizens. This modest, noble character left his impression on those with whom he came in contact, influencing them to the better ways of life, not by prominent and conspicuous display of actions or words, but by sterling worth in what he was. He was born in Boston, the hub of the culture of this country, on July 26, 1841. His ancestors came from Wales and settled in Massachusetts in 1640, where their name have been honorably associated with the important events of the history of that commonwealth for more than two centuries. At the age of fifteen he was employed in the general store of an uncle, Edgar M. Brown, of South Adams, Mass., Mr. Brown being also engaged with others in the manufacture of cotton fabrics. Returning to Boston in 1856 he accepted a position in the wholesale dry goods house of Jewetts, Tebbetts & Co., where he remained until July, 1862, when he enlisted as a private soldier in the 2nd Massachusetts Infantry, one of the most distinguished regiments of the volunteer army. For brave and gallant service in a number of battles of the army of the Potomac, he was made lieutenant. While lieutenant, his regiment, in connection with the 3rd Wisconsin and 22nd Indiana, met and repulsed the terrible assaults of D. H. Hill's division of Lee's army at the great battle of Gettysburg; the captain of his company falling early in the engagement, the command, at the most critical moment, fell upon Lieutenant Thomas, who ably and gallantly directed the movements of his company through the remaining tragic hours of the fearful struggle. After this engagement his regiment was removed to New York, where it remained two weeks patrolling the city and maintaining order, suppressing the organized efforts of a mob to resist response to a draft for service. Returning to the Army of the Potomac they joined the corps of the 12th, commanded by General Slocum. This corps soon after being consolidated with the 11th in a new organization, became the 20th, commanded by General Hooker, and was sent West to the Army of the Cumberland. Capt. Thomas, after leaving Chattanooga, May 1, 1864, was continually on the firing line in General Sherman's memorable campaign in Georgia. During all his service in this exciting and tragic period in the history of our Nation, it is said that Capt. Thomas never missed a roll call nor murmured at the privations, to which, as a soldier, he was necessarily subjected. His part of the patriotic task of restoring the Union being completed, Capt. Thomas came to Jefferson City and during the administration of Gov. Fletcher held a clerkship under Gen. Samuel P. Simpson, who was then Adjutant-General of the State. In 1869 he embarked in that important branch of commerce, the grocery business, continuing a successful merchant to the date of his death. On the 16th of October, 1866, he was united in marriage to Miss Ophelia Bolton, daughter of the late Dr. Wm. Bolton, a prominent physician of this city. To this union four children were born: Charles Kent died in infancy; William Edgar is a book-keeper in the Union National Bank of Kansas City, while Cecil and Theodore, two worthy young men, reside with their mother in her lovely home on East Main street and hold positions in the office of Capt.

S. Waters Fox, U. S. Engineer, in charge of the river improvement. Capt. Thomas was a Republican in politics, a member of the Jefferson City Lodge No. 43 A., F. & A. M. and a man fully up to the highest standard found in worthy members of that elevating and educational social order. He was also a member of the James A. Garfield Post, No. 6, G. A. R., and of the Loyal Legion. Some years previous to his death, when memories which clustered around the playgrounds of his early youth, on Boston commons, with the hallowed history and traditions associated with Plymouth Rock, Faneuil Hall, Lexington, Concord, Cambridge and Bunker Hill, were called upon the stage of his brain by the sorrowful incidents attending the death of the only one who bore to him the sweet relation of sister, he expressed a wish to be buried beside his sainted mother and sister, where also lie the remains of an ancestry reaching back more than two hundred years. His wish was respected by the surviving family, who followed and laid gently to rest the body in beautiful Woodlawn Cemetery, where also rests the "mortal" of a long and honored ancestry.

F. J. WEILER.

Frank J. Weiler, Vice-President and Secretary of the Schubert & Weiler Mercantile Company, a native of Cole county and the son of Joseph and Louisa Weiler, was born on a farm near the village of Lohman, June 9, 1874. On this farm he was raised, his education being in the district school. His first effort on his own account was as clerk in the general store of H. Bockrath, now President of the shoe manufacturing concern which bears his name. He continued here six months, removing to Russellville, where he was for two years salesman for B. W. Lansdown, when he engaged in the business of retail grocer and restaurant keeper on his own account. This business he continued with marked financial success four years; disposing of it he embarked in the general mercantile business in 1898. One year later he united his interests with that of Mr. Schubert, the incorporated firm being the Schubert & Weiler Mercantile Company, of which, as stated above, he is the Vice-President. Mr. Weiler is happily married. His wife, to whom he was united May 18, 1897, was Miss Dale Chambers, of Russellville. He is a member of the M. W. A. and of the Catholic church, a young man of character, whose fine physique and business qualifications give promise of a happy and prosperous life.

J. W. GORDON.

John W. Gordon, who died at his home in this city, October 10, 1899, was the youngest son of John T. and Elizabeth (Berry) Gordon, natives of Virginia, who immigrated to Ohio in 1835, and three years later to Missouri, settling at Stringtown, on Moreau creek, Cole county, Mo., where the subject of this sketch was born in 1845, receiving his early education in the nearby district school. At the age of 19 years he entered school at Warrensburg, Johnson county, continuing one year, during which time Price made his raid through Missouri, when Mr.

Gordon was arrested by mistake but afterward released through the influence of a friend. He had previously served in the State Militia and on his return home re-enlisted but served only a short time he then returned home where he remained with his father until the latter's death. In 1867 he purchased the Central Flour Mill near Seruggs, this county, and after running the same two years, rented it for a term of years and later sold it to George Rainey, who continues to operate it. In 1878 he began to handle stock very extensively, at that time getting his first contract with the State to furnish meat to the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City, which contract was renewed from year to year until near the time of his death. He removed to Jefferson City in 1884 and engaged largely in the live-stock business, not only in Cole county, but in Kansas City, where he was a large buyer, shipping to Jefferson City and other places and selling to butchers and feeders; during a series of years he shipped about 150 car-loads (which amounted to $150,000) annually. Besides his stock interests he also did a large feed business, using as a storehouse his barn and sheds on the corner of Main and Harrison streets, in the western part of the city. Mr. Gordon was a member of the Masonic lodge; took an active interest in politics, being a Democrat, and was a liberal supporter of every movement for the advancement of Jefferson City. He was married in 1865 to Miss Henrietta, daughter of Capt. T. H. Millan (an early settler of Missouri and a captain in the Mexican War, who survives him and now resides in the comfortable home purchased in 1888 on the corner of Main and Jackson streets.

THE GOODALL FAMILY.

Job Goodall, the father of the family known by that name, of Cole county, Missouri, was born on that part of the Massachusetts Territory now known as the State of Maine, March 20, 1797. He was the third son of Capt. Josiah Goodall (commander of a fishing schooner) and Rebecca (nee Brooks) Goodall. The father (Josiah) was the only son of Paul Goodall, a Methodist minister and a native of Scotland; his wife was a daughter of Joel Brooks, Scotch Presbyterian minister. Josiah having lost his health, removed to Madison county, Va., in 1800, where Job grew to manhood. At the age of 16 Job, with an elder brother, enlisted in the army (war of 1812-15). In the year 1826 Job Goodall removed to Jefferson City where he engaged in the grocery business. In 1829 he disposed of his business and removed to St. Louis, from which place he returned to Cole county in 1830 and engaged in farming. J.

31 he removed to Randolph county, from which place, in 1849, he returned to his old farm in Cole county. In 1850 the fascinating stories of the discovery of gold carried him to California, from which place he returned, via Mexico, in 1851. On August 1856, he was murdered on his farm in this county in the middle of the day by unknown parties who have never been apprehended. In April, 1827, he was united in marriage to Sarah McRoberts Embree, daughter of John and Frances (nee Prewitt) Embree, Greenbrier county, Ky. The grandfather of Mrs. Goodall (Joel Prewitt), was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. To Job and Sarah Goodall were born eight sons and one daughter. Oliver Hazard Perry (whose portrait accompanies this sketch), was born in Jefferson City August 1, 1828, from which place, in 1852, he went to Oregon, where he has continued to make his home since, except three years (1868-71), which he spent in Missouri. He has been married a second time and is the father of thirteen children, twelve of whom (seven sons and five daughters) are living. He is a prosperous farmer and stock raiser and a prominent citizen of Oregon, having been several times elected to positions of honor and trust; John Embree, the second son of Job Goodall, was born on a farm in Cole county, December 13, 1830, from which place, starting to California with his father, he died en route at the age of 20; Mary Ann Rebecca (born December 13, 1832) is the wife of Jas. Gordon of Vernon county, Mo., and is the mother of ten children, eight of whom are living; Joel Brooks died (1843) at the age of 8 years; Henry Clay was born in Randolph county, February 28, 1838, after traveling over and making his home for a short time in a number of the Western States, he met an accidental death while engaged in mining in Southeast Kansas, in June 1878. His surviving wife, son and daughter removed to Leadville, Colo., where the son and daughter still reside; Daniel Webster died (1843) at the age of 2 years; William Washington Walker Goodall (born March 13, 1844) enlisted in the Confederate Army in July, 1862, Company E., 10th Infantry, Missouri Volunteers, Parson's Brigade, Price's Division. He was made a prisoner at the memorable battle (July 4, 1863) at Helena, Ark.; he was later exchanged at Richmond, Va., March 5, 1865. He was in the Siege of Mobile, April, 1865, which was bombarded by the Federal fleet continuously, night and day, for two weeks. From here he made his escape when the city surrendered and returned home July 3, 1865, where he continued to live on the farm with his mother until her decease, December 22, 1875. He was united in marriage to Sarah D., daughter of Thomas Handley, of Cole county, August 6, 1864. To this union have been born five sons and three daughters, one of each of whom are deceased. He is now employed as guard at the State prison in this city. He met with a painful accident while crossing the railroad track, April 15, 1890, and as a result is a cripple; Winfield Scott and Zachary Taylor Goodall (twins) were born in Randolph county June 30, 1847. Scott was assassinated February 16, 1870, on the streets of Jefferson City; the assassin was never brought to justice. Taylor was united in marriage (December 1870) to Nannie B., daughter of Thomas Mahan, a prominent farmer of Cole county. His tragic death (July 19, 1892) was the result of a fall from a railroad bridge. His wife, two sons and two daughters survive him. The eldest son is railroading in New Mexico; the second is married and lives in Jefferson City; the youngest daughter is a teacher in the public schools of Cole county; the eldest is happily married, and is Mrs. James H. Harrison, living in Fulton, Callaway county, Mo.

BYRON LESLIE.

Byron Leslie, newspaper correspondent and representative of the International Correspondence School of Scranton, Pa., was born August 9, 1875, on a farm near Russellville, Cole county, Mo. He is a son of William Stark Leslie, a prominent farmer and stock dealer, his mother being Mary Ellen Groom. He continued at the place of his birth where he attended the neighboring district school until 15 years of age, when he entered the Aurora High School at California, Mo., attending school there one year, and later took a course at the Clarksburg Baptist College, Clarksburg, Mo. From this place he came to Jefferson City, January 1, 1897, where he engaged in newspaper work as reporter in the Legislature for different papers of St. Louis, St. Joseph and Kansas City, Mo. In May of the same year he assisted as local editor of the Tribune, in which position he continued until that paper changed management in 1898, after which he has held the same position with the Daily and Weekly Press since it was established in June 1899. In November, 1898, he became the representative of the International Correspondence School of Scranton, Pa., in which position he did a large business, his field in this work including Fulton, in addition to Jefferson City. He has been since 1897 the Jefferson City correspondent of the Post-Dispatch of St. Louis and the World of Kansas City. He is a member of the First Baptist church, Secretary of the Sunday School and President of the B. Y. P. U., in which organization he is an active worker. He was united in marriage March 13, 1900, to Miss Callie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Clark, whose home is in the east suburb of the city. Mr. Leslie is a young man of exceptional habits and character; is an intelligent and persistent worker who has every promise of a successful and useful life.

THE JEFFERSON CITY LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

The most potent influence in life is knowledge which is to be gathered largely from books. Calisle said: "The influence of a good book is infinite," while a more recent and fully as talented writer has said: "Unfortunate in our time is he who is born into a home where there is an abundance of everything except books, and happy should be the man who must live in a small house if it be rich in books, for each one will be to him a kingdom." Emerson says: "There is one mind common to all individual men. Every man is an intellect to the same and to all the same. He that is once admitted to the right of reason is made a freeman to the whole estate." Rare and extravagant spirits come to the world at intervals and disclose to us through books, new facts in nature, thought and life. From good books one can often gather in a few hours rich treasures which cost the writer a lifetime of study and labor to produce. Many are waking to the advantages and pleasures afforded by good literature and reaching out for the riches being garnered in books from the accumulated wisdom of ages.

The Capital City awoke to the advantages of a library, and begun energetically the work of securing this luxury for its citizens in January, 1897, when, by well directed effort, they secured 250 subscribers at $3.00 a year, thus making the library an assured success. A meeting of the subscribers was called, who elected a board of the following directors: Messrs. A. M. Hough, F. M. Brown, H. Binder, J. C. Fisher, C. A. Winston, Mrs. Chas. E. Hess and Miss Mary Knaup, who at a subsequent meeting, at the office of Mr. J. C. Fisher, elected Mr. A. M. Hough President, Miss Mary Knaup Vice-President; Mr. Charles Winston Secretary and Mrs. Chas. E. Hess Treasurer. After the usual laws, rules and regulations were adopted, Miss Adelaide J. Thompson was unanimously chosen Librarian, which position she still holds. The association at first opened its rooms in the new court-house, which the county officials generously tendered. A book reception was held at the Commercial Club rooms and some 250 valuable works were donated, the library being opened first to the public in March, with 365 books on its shelves, b sides a traveling library belonging to the State Federation of Women, containing 56 volumes. During the first year, under the direction of the Librarian, several successful entertainments were given, which resulted in increasing the number of books to about 1,200. Since then the progress has not been so rapid, but the growth is steady, and the library now contains about 1,500 volumes. In July, 1899, it was deemed best to remove the library to more convenient quarters, when the very desirable location of the present room on High and Madison streets, in the Hope building, was secured. The only change in the directors since its organization is the retiring of Mr. J. C. Fisher, on account of his removal from the city, his place being filled by Dr. W. A. Clark. During the year 1899 there were ten thousand and four visitors to the library and 5,132 volumes taken out; the number of annual subscribers during the year 1899, 304. Judging by the increase both in number of volumes and patrons in the year 1899, it is confidently expected, with the now growing interest, the library, at no distant date, will occupy a building of its own and the number of its volumes increased to several thousand. The value to a community of the privileges of a well selected library cannot be measured by money. The Jefferson City Library is one of the elements which are making the lovely city a most desirable place in which to live.

MRS. M. V. EDWARDS.

The Supreme Judges of Missouri, in selecting the State Librarian, made a wise choice in the person of Mrs. Mary Virginia Edwards. Since the death of her distinguished husband, Hon. John N. Edwards, (May 4, 1889,) she has been prominently connected with many important public movements. She was Secretary of the Missouri State Board of the World's Fair (1892), having charge of the Missouri Building most of the time. After seven months in Chicago, she accepted an appointment in the office of Charles Higgins, Recorder of Voters of St. Louis, who is now Excise Commissioner of that city. Mrs. Edwards received her present appointment in 1897, since which time she has managed the affairs of the important office with ability and tact, making many improvements. She was elected (1899) President of the Missouri State Association of the Daughters of the Confederacy, having been a member since the organization. As a member of the Board of the Confederate Home Association, she has traveled extensively in the interest of the Confederate monument, to be erected at Springfield this year. The parents of Mrs. Edwards were James Selby and Laura Yerby Plattenburg, natives of Virginia and early settlers of Dover, Lafayette county, Mo.; she was educated in the private school of the Rev. James Chaney, a Presbyterian minister, who now has charge of the Theological College at Independence, Mo.

Her elopement with Maj. John N. Edwards, then with the Kansas City Times, forms an interesting romance in her full life. The objection to this union was grounded solely on the near family relationship of the parties. They were married at the residence of Gen. Joseph O. Shelby, near Aullville, in Lafayette county. We quote from the Kansas City Times: "Maj. John N. Edwards was married on March 28, 1871, to Mary Virginia Plattenburg, of Dover, Lafayette county, Mo., a woman not less brilliant than himself, of high impulses, poetic, sentimental and of an uncommon literary faculty; she is a fit companion for this mold of the "fiery and delectable shapes." To this union were born two sons and one daughter, John and James now young business men of St. Louis, and Laura, a young lady of lovely character and a charming personality, is now taking a post-graduate course at the Sacred Heart Convent, St. Louis, Mo., and was recently appointed by Gen. McCullough first maid of honor of the Daughters of the Confederacy of Missouri to attend the National meeting of the United Confederate Veterans of the United States (May 31, 1900,) in Louisville, Ky., an honor most worthily bestowed. To Miss Laura we cannot pay a higher tribute than to say she is worthy of her distinguished parents. Mrs. Edwards is not only favored by nature, physically, but her unusually bright mind has been greatly enriched by study, experience, travel and the association with her brilliant and versatile husband. She makes her home at the McCarty House.

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Of the men now living in the United States, Andrew Carnegie is the most striking illustration of the success which attends the well directed efforts of a bright mind, supported by a good body, and impelled by an ambitious and honorable desire to succeed. He was born in Dumfermline, Scotland, from which place he came with his parents to America when ten years of age, locating in Pittsburgh, Pa. Here the subject of this sketch secured a position to attend the fire of a small stationary engine in the cellar of a factory. When his work was over, at night he applied himself to the task of learning thoroughly the streets of the city, and when he had them firmly in his memory he secured a position as messenger boy in a telegraph office. After being there a short time he requested the manager to teach him telegraphy. The manager took an interest at once in the bright boy and gave him every opportunity in addition to which he was constantly engaged in practicing when not at other work, and although it was the custom of the office at that time to receive by tape, the young lad received only by sound. In a short time he had acquired such skill in telegraphy that he was able to get a position on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad System which at that time, as compared to its present immense proportions, was a small affair. The ambitious lad suggested a system of dispatching trains which made the capacity of the road much greater and did not diminish the safety of its operations. Thomas A. Scott, the great railroad magnate, who was later President of the system, was attracted by the ingenuity of the lad and selected him as his Private Secretary; (this was at the time when Mr. Scott was just beginning his wonderful career.) When Mr. Scott was made Vice President, his Private Secretary, Mr. Carnegie, was made a Division Superintendent. With his greatly increased salary and continuing to practice economy, he was able to invest his surplus earnings in oil lands, and later in the manufacture of sleeping cars. These investments laid the foundation of his enormous fortune which he is generously using both in this country and in his native (Scotland) establishing libraries and other philanthropic measures. During his youth, in fact all his life, he has been a close student and an omnivorous reader, and through his suggestions and influence was able to effect great changes and improvements in the management of public libraries. At this time he was developing a taste for literature, and had determined to devote his life to literary pursuits, but an opportunity presented itself (which he thought promised large returns) to make investments in the manufacture of iron, in which business he engaged and in a surprisingly short time his marked success enabled him and his associates to add factory to factory until the present Carnegie Steel Company of Pittsburgh is the largest of its kind in the world and for which they have recently refused the enormous sum of $200,000,000. Mr. Carnegie is the owner of a castle in the Highlands of Scotland where his judicious benefactions have made him the idol of the Peasantry. While he has an intense love for the beautiful scenery and fascinating traditions of his mother country, he has a great aversion for a Monarchical government, his views on this subject being set forth clearly in his publication "Triumphant Democracy," the dedication of which reads: "To the beloved Republic in whose equal laws I am made the peer of any man, although denied political equality by my native land, I dedicate this book with an intensity of gratitude and admiration which the native-born citizen can neither feel nor understand."

Mr. Carnegie believes in the advantages of an education, and especially the advantage to a community of a well selected library. He has given a library and art gallery to Alleghany, Pa., the cost of which was $300,000; to the libraries at Homestead and Braddock, where two of his steel plants are located, he gave $500,000, each, and to Pittsburgh he gave a library and art gallery, costing $2,500,000; to Edinburgh, Scotland, he gave for library purposes a quarter million dollars. These re some of his larger gifts. He has helped many struggling libraries and educational concerns with smaller sums, which sums, however, were large and amply sufficient. He has recently given from $25,000 to $100,000 for a number of libraries in the smaller cities throughout the United States, the only condition required of the beneficiaries is that they provide for the proper maintenance of the same. Jefferson, our own city, has recently been given $25,000 for the erection of a building, on condition the citizens will provide for its maintenance. In 1879 Mr. Carnegie made a trip around the world. Of this trip he wrote his impressions, and had them published in book form for private circulation; the title is: "Notes of a Tour 'Round the World." This pamphlet was so popular that it was gotten out as a publication for the general library. In 1882 he had printed "Our Coaching Trip" under similar circumstances with like results. This was republished in 1883 under the title "An American Four-in-Hand in Britain." In all the undertakings of this noble and generous character there has not been one failure. His palatial home is No. 5 West Fifty-fifth street, New York. He is President of the Oratoria Society of New York, and also director of the Carnegie Music Hall, which he built in the interest of that elevating and ennobling science to which he is passionately devoted. Of Mr. Carnegie, the people of Jefferson City and Cole county will know more when they enjoy the blessings of his benefaction in the elegant structure which will be built by his generous contribution.

JUDGE J. B. GANTT.

Judge James Britton Gantt, Chief Justice and Presiding Judge of the Missouri Supreme Court, was born in Putnam county, Ga., October 26, 1845. His education was in the private schools and academies of Jones and Bibb counties, Georgia. In the Spring of 1862, at the age of sixteen years, he enlisted in the Twelfth Georgia Regiment Infantry, C. S. A., and served in Jackson's Second Army Corps, Army of Northern Virginia, until permanently disabled by a wound at Cedar Creek Valley, Va., October 19, 1864. Previous to this he was twice wounded at the famous Battle of Gettysburg, and met with a similar misfortune at the Battle of the Wilderness, May 5, 1864. After the war he read law under Col. L. N. Whittle of Macon Ga., later attending the Law Department of the University of Virginia, from which place he graduated in July, 1868. He removed to Missouri in October of that year, and engaged in the practice of his profession. He has been associated in his legal practice with men of National prominence, among them the venerable United States Senator George G. Vest. He was elected Judge of the Twenty-Second Judicial Circuit of Missouri in November, 1880; after serving six years, he declined a re-election, and returned to the practice of his profession at Clinton. He was elected to his present position as Judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri, to succeed Judge Robert D. Ray, at the November election, 1890. He was united in marriage to Miss Alice Warth, April 23, 1872, who died August 8, 1889. He has four children. On July 23, 1891, he was united in marriage to Mrs. Matilda (nee Weidemeyer) Lee, a lady of rare culture, who, in addition to her many charms of mind and person, is an exceptionally fine performer on the piano forte. Of the many men who occupy a position as Judge in the State of Missouri, not in one are the elements which should constitute a man worthy of this exalted position more completely represented than in the person of Judge Gantt. He has enjoyed unusual advantages, having been associated with the greatest legal minds of the country, his observing mind enabling him to profit by the association. In addition to being a close student and reader of the many legal publications and law commentaries, he has made himself familiar with the great fountain source from which all ideas of justice and right are drawn—that book of books—the Bible, of which he has been a close reader and student since his early youth when he was lead in this direction by the counsel and influence of a pious, Christian mother. He is a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, and in the multitude of his duties, including the reading necessary to equip him for decisions on the important questions constantly before him, he finds time to study the lessons prepared for the Sabbath school scholars, and his talks to the class of young men in the Presbyterian church every Sunday morning are rare treats to the favored members of the class, most of whom will doubtless be largely benefited by his wise counsel and example, and through whom the good seed will multiply when they assume the responsibilities of social and business life. As to his ability as a Judge the number of his important decisions and opinions confirmed by the United States Supreme Court attest, while the fact that he will be renominated this Fall by acclamation should be a gratifying assurance to him that his worth and sterling qualities, as both a Judge and citizen are recognized and appreciated by the citizens of the proud commonwealth of Missouri. He resides, with his family, at his comfortable home, 111 East McCarty street, Jefferson City.

MISS MATHILDA DALLMEYER.

Miss Mathilda Dallmeyer, writer of the Sketch Book Prize Essay on the "Reasons Why Jefferson

City Should Provide for the Maintenance of the Library, With Which Mr. Carnegie Proposes to Endow the City," is a daughter of Mr. Rudolph Dallmeyer, the dry goods merchant of Jefferson City and a pupil of the High School. She is a young lady, of a good mind and a charming personal, who has every promise of a bright future.

MISS PEARL CRUMP.

Miss Pearl Crump, the popular and talented soprano of Jefferson City, whose portrait accompanies this sketch, is a native of Fayette, Howard county, Mo., from which place she removed with her parents to this city several years since. Her musical education was under the direction of Miss Frances Ehrman, who was at the time in charge of the Musical Department of the celebrated Howard-Payne College. She is a vocalist of rare ability, not only possessing a voice of exceptional sweetness, volume and strength, but one of remarkable range which enables her to reach with ease the most difficult pitches in the whole diapason of music. In addition she has a charming personality, an engaging presence and a magnetic nature which draws her hearers into close sympathy while enjoying the extreme pleasure afforded by her exquisite interpretations of the best productions of the great composers. She has been spoken of, and justly so, as the "Nightingale of Missouri." Few vocalists of the State have been so highly complimented by the press. In addition to her rare talent and accomplishments as a vocalist she is an excellent artist. All the tasteful and finely executed paintings which adorn the walls of the comfortable and charming home of her parents, on East Main street, are from her brush.

TRIBUNE PRINTING COMPANY.

Printed herewith are several views of the interior of the Tribune Printing office of Jefferson City, Mo., all taken since the improvements and changes in that plant following change of management in November, 1898. The equipment at that time has been almost entirely replaced by new and up-to-date fix-tizes, including linotype machines instead of the old method of hand composition. This has entirely revolutionized the typographical branch of the office, making it possible to print always from an entirely new face of type, also creating an almost inexhaustible capacity for holding matter in type, and, above all, enabling the compositors to work with four times the speed heretofore obtainable. The book bindery has also been completely changed and the house throughout rearranged, supplied with modern conveniences and thoroughly renovated. An exterior view of the Tribune building will be seen on page 195.

During the past year the company has handled nearly double the amount of work heretofore turned out, and has brought to the establishment, for the first time in its history, large outside contracts. The edition of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, published ished the past season, has been one-half larger than any previously issued by the State. This is the largest single contract for printing recorded as being executed in this State. In addition to this large amount of work, the office has issued all the other work for the State, managing to complete it many months earlier than in former years.

The facilities of the Tribune plant are amply reinforced in emergencies by that of the Columbia

Herald office, which also furnishes much of the outside work on which the Tribune force is kept busy when the work for the State is not pressing. At times, however, it requires the operation of both plants to their full capacity, night and day, to conduct the printing for the State. So large does the amount of this work become at times that it would overwhelm most any office in the West to handle it, while by the use of the two plants, the Tribune and Herald, it is done with comparative ease. Of the high class of book work turned out by this office this elegantly printed and bound volume can speak. The Tribune employs eighty people, and publishes the Daily and Weekly State Tribune, which is rapidly gaining in circulation, influence and patronage, the number of copies of each being larger now than at any time in the past.

The accompanying views are from the publishing house of E. W. Stephens at Columbia, Missouri, which plant is under the same management as the Tribune Printing Company of this city. The press of E. W. Stephens, or the Columbia Herald Building, as it is called in that city, an exterior view of which can be seen on page 194, is a two-story building, occupying a site 120x50 feet at the east end of

The Herald building is occupied solely by this publishing plant, and in arrangement throughout has been planned and built especially for the printing and publishing business, and is pronounced by observers the model publishing house of the United States. The fixtures throughout are new, having been bought direct from the factories a few years ago. In the list of equipment are four typesetting machines, four cylinder presses and all the most improved patterns of printing and book binding machinery. Here have been published Supreme Court Reports for Missouri, Iowa, Arkansas, New Mexico and Illinois, also Stock Records of American Trotting Register Association, American Hereford Herd Record, American Shropshire Sheep Record, American Poland China Record and other books of National importance. All these, in addition to the Columbia Missouri Herald, which is conceded to be the model country newspaper of the United States, are regular publications of the office.

The employees number one hundred, and include skilled workmen in all the different branches of the office. E. W. Stephens, the owner and proprietor, is also the President of the Tribune Printing Company, and all the patrons of either office have the advantage of the double facilities thus afforded, which in the aggregate exceed the capacity of any Western printing and publishing house. By thus securing the combined resources of two large printing plants, the handling of the State's printing and binding has been revolutionized.

The book bindery occupies three thousand square feet, nearly all the second floor. It is divided between two rooms, views of which appear on this page. The first is the folding room, containing two improved folding machines recently installed. The work of this room is done by lady employees only, and comprises the folding, gathering, sewing and pressing of the books before they are bound. The other part of the book bindery is the finishing room in which the work of covering, stamping, and final pressing is done. The last-named department also takes care of the special binding of magazines, newspapers, fancy books, etc. But most of the work is regular edition binding of law books, stock records and catalogues, the regular publications of the office. All this work is done by hand with the exception of cutting, embossing and pressing. It is also from this room that all shipping is done, and full supplies of all the reports published are kept for the states of Missouri, Iowa, Arkansas and New Mexico.

MAJ. T. O. TOWLES.

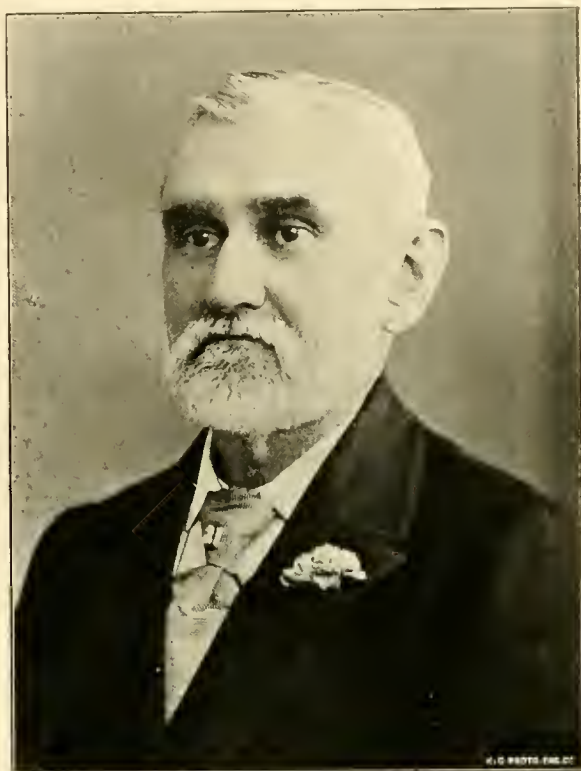

Maj. Thomas Oliver Towles, Deputy Superintendent State Insurance Department, was born in Columbia, Va., April 4, 1840. His grandfather, Maj. Oliver Towles, came to Missouri in 1819, and died four years later (1823) at Cape Girardeau. Two of the sons and one daughter subsequently moved to Saline county, Mo., and lived there many years, and their descendants are now living in several sections of Missouri. The subject of this sketch was educated in the best private schools and academies, and received a thorough classical and collegiate education. He studied law under the tutelage and supervision of Hon. Stephen O. Southall, for many years Professor of Law at the University of Virginia. He showed a fondness for journalism early in life, and while a college student became editor of a newspaper. He joined the Confederate Army in April, 1861, and served throughout the Civil War. He was present at the bombardment and surrender of Fort Sumter, in Charleston Harbor, in 1861, and was also an eye witness of the fearful work of the Confederate iron-clad Merrimac, in James River and Hampton Roads, Va., on March 8, 1862, and the great naval fight on the next day, between the Merrimac and the Monitor in the same roadstead. As soon as the war cloud dissappeared, Maj. Towles resumed his study of law. He came to Missouri in 1866 to make it his permanent home, living a while in St. Louis and then in Lewis county for several years, but since 1874 has continued to make Jefferson City his home. He entered political life in Missouri as the first editor of the LaGrange (Mo.) Democrat, a newspaper founded in 1867, continuing its editor (with the exception of a short interval) until 1875. He was a member of the Democratic State Convention which assembled at St. Louis in 1868, and nominated Hon. John S. Phelps as the candidate for Governor against McClurg, and served as Assistant Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives of the Twenty-Seventh General Assembly of Missouri (1873-5). At the first session of the Forty-Fourth Congress (1875-7) he was appointed Assistant Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, subsequently becoming Chief Clerk, and remaining such with an interval of service during a part of the Fifty-First Congress, until after the organization of the Fifty-Fourth Congress (December, 1895). When he resigned the Chief Clerkship of the House in the Fifty-First Congress, Maj. Towles was elected Secretary of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee (1890-1) when Gov. R. P. Flower of New York (then a member of the United States House of Representatives) and Senator Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland were respectively the Chairman of the House and Senate Democratic Campaign Committees. This Committee organized the fight for the Democratic control of the next Congress, and the contest resulted in the great Democratic majority in the House of Representatives of the Fifty-Second Congress. Upon resigning the Chief Clerkship of the House again in 1895 (the beginning of the Fifty-Fourth Congress) Maj. Towles was made Secretary of the National Democratic Bi-metallic Committee; Senator Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee, was Chairman of this Committee; Senator James K. Jones, of Arkansas, was its Treasurer; ex-Gov. William J. Stone, of Missouri, was one of the most active and zealous members of its Executive Committee. This Committee organized the Free Silver Democrats of the United States in the great struggle for control and managment of the National Democratic Convention at Chicago.

In 1896 Senator Jones and Maj. Towles opened the headquarters of the Committee in the Sherman

House at Chicago two weeks before the assembling of the convention, removing the offices there from Washington, D. C., where previously located. Maj. Towles was one of the Secretaries of the National Convention and was Secretary of the Executive Committee of the National Democratic Committee in the campaign of 1896. He was a life-long friend and advisor of the late Hon. Richard P. Bland. Since Cole county was first placed in the Congress-sional District, represented by Mr. Bland, Maj. Towles accompanied him in all his congressional campaigns, and aided him in the canvass of the district, over a large part of the territory, except in one campaign when Maj. Towles was detained necessarily in Washington City by his duties as Secretary of the Campaign Committee. During the administration of Hon. William J. Stone, as Governor of Missouri, he was a member on the Governor's Military Staff, and served thereon with the rank and commission of Brigadier General. He was appointed to his present position in April, 1897.

Maj. Towles has always taken great interest in the navigation and improvement of the Missouri River and Western water-ways, and while connected with the National Congress, there was not a river or harbor bill before Congress that he did not go before the committee in the interest of the same. It was partly due to his good work that the bill providing for the construction of the bridge at this city passed Congress. He was married in this city in 1885 to Miss Florence M., daughter of the late Judge Ephraim B. Ewing of the Missouri Supreme Court. Maj. Towles has been an active and zealous Mason for many years, is a member of Jefferson Lodge, No. 43, A. F. & A. M.; Jefferson City Chapter, No. 34, R. A. M. and Prince of Peace Commandery, No. 29, Knights Templar; he is an A. A. S. R. Mason Southern Jurisdiction of United States, holding membership in the Scottish Rite in Washington, D. C., in Mithras Lodge of Perfection; Evangelist Chapter Rose Croix, Robert De Bruce Council of Kadosh, and Albert Pike Consistory, having taken thirty-two degrees of the Masonic order. His comfortable home, with his cultured wife, is 612 East Main street, which is brightened by the presence of his two interesting sons, William Beverly and Eph Ewing.

DR. F. B. ANTROBUS.

Dr. Frank Benjamin Antrobus, of Jefferson City, was born December 15, 1868, in Kossuth, Iowa. At the age of 12 years his parents removed to Beloit, Kansas, where he attended the public schools, his college education being at the Kansas State University, at Lawrence, where he graduated, class 1887. He is a son of Dr. B. Antrobus, of this city, and following his inherited taste for the humane profession of the physician, he attended the Medical College of Kansas City, (which included practical experience at the City Hospital,) graduating in the spring of 1897, immediately after which he located at Jefferson City, where his success from the beginning was phenomenal; in fact it grew so large within a few months that he sent for his father, who was a practicing physician, to assist him, and since his arrival they both have had all they could possibly do. May 20, 1898, he was united in marriage to Frances M., daughter of John A. Bull, a prominent and wealthy furniture merchant of Beloit, Kansas. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the State Hospital No. 1 for Insane, located at Fulton Mo.; to this position he was appointed by Gov. Stephens, March, 1899. He is a member of the K. of P. and the Brotherhood of Elks.

Dr. Antrobus belongs to the Homeopathic School of practitioners and has been an intelligent student of that science, which was founded by Dr. Hahnemann, a German, a little more than a century ago and who practiced on the line of the theories he advocated with remarkable success and whose waiting rooms at Paris, where he was later located, and became the leading physician and most successful practitioner, were constantly crowded with patients.

F. N. CHANDLER.

Fremont Nathaniel Chandler, Vice-President of The L. S. Parker Shoe Company and Superintendent of the factory, was born in Wisconsin, July 1, 1858. His father, Nathaniel Chandler, was a shoe manufacturer. From Wisconsin he removed to Boston, Mass., when the subject of this sketch was an infant. Two years later he removed to Thomasville, N. C., where he engaged in the manufacture of shoes, continuing eight years with marked success when the unfortunate incidents resulting from the War of the Rebellion deprived him of his large accumulations. He returned to Massachusetts where the subject of this sketch attended school, and early learned the business of manufacturing shoes. When of age he removed to Chicago, where he engaged in the manufacture of shoes on contract for C. M. Henderson & Co., in which business he continued until the firm opened a shoe factory at the prison in Jefferson City, when he moved here and engaged in work in the factory which was in charge of Mr. Lester S. Parker, one of the stockholders. He was for some time previous to the organization of The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, Assistant Superintendent of the C. M. Henderson plant, and when Mr. Parke organized The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, he became Vice-President and Superintendent of the factory, in which position he continues. December 9, 1882, he was united in marriage to Miss Alice Stow of Chicago, a lady of culture and an accomplished musician, having been, previous to her marriage, a teacher of instrumental music. His son, Everett, a bright and promising young man, has just finished his course at school. Both Mr. Chandler and his wife are members of the M. E. church (South).

Mr. Chandler's mechanical ability as a shoe manufacturer places him in this department at the head of the list of superintendents of shoe factories in Jefferson City. He is also the buyer for The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, and is recognized by the tanners and leather dealers as one of the best buyers and judges of leather in the United States. He is an expert driver, having driven in a number of prominent races, and is often sought after to perform that service by horse owners who are exceptionally solicitous to have their horse come first under the pole. He owns his comfortable home, 310 Marshall street.

J. E. MURPHY.

John E. Murphy was born in Jefferson City in the home where his mother at present resides, 215 Miller street, July 28, 1860. He is the eldest son of the late Capt. Richard and Katherine Murphy, natives of Cork, Ireland. His education was in the public schools of Jefferson City and St. Louis. It was the purpose of his father to give him a thorough college education and prepare him for the profession of a civil engineer, but the death of this solicitous parent, when he was sixteen years of age, necessitated his withdrawal from school for the purpose of assisting in the support of his mother and sisters. His first work was for Reagan & Carter, then the publishers of the People's Tribune and State printers, in which office he continued in various positions under different managements until 1890, when he resigned, going to St. Louis, where he was five years a compositor in the Globe-Democrat and other prominent printing offices of that city. Returning to Jefferson City in 1896 he accepted the foremanship in the office of the Evening Courier, published by Ferguson & Mayer, in which position he continued until the plant was purchased by Jacob C. Fisher, when, in connection with Mr. F. Raithel, he compiled and published a most complete directory of Jefferson City and Cole county.

Following this he engaged in soliciting life insurance for about six months. He then accepted a position in the Tribune office, when Mr. Henry W. Ewing was its President, in which office he has continued since, at present being foreman of the State

Tribune. Mr. Murphy was married, September 30, 1885, to Miss Laura, daughter of Maj. Peter and Mary Meyers of Jefferson City. Of the five children born to this union, Mary Grace died at the age of 16 months; Richard (an unusually bright lad, and known to everybody in the city), Mary C. and Edgar are pupils at the public schools; Gerald is the youngest. Mr. Murphy is a member of the Jefferson City Typographical Union, No. 119, in which organization he has held all the important offices. He was a delegate to the International Typographical Union at their general session in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1887, and was elected, May 16, 1900, to represent the Union at their session which will be held in Milwaukee the present year. During the Capital removal fight Mr. Murphy was President of Jefferson City Typographical Union, and as such used his influence with the labor organizations of the State in supporting Jefferson City for the retention of the Capital for its friendliness in the past for organized labor. He went to St. Louis and visited the members of the different organizations in her behalf at his own expense. Mr. Murphy is a strong believer in Trade Unions, and thinks it to the interest of every employer to employ only members of the Union in good standing. He is a member of St. Peter's church. He has been continuously engaged in the work of his chosen profession since seventeen years of age, except six months, in 1894, when he was engaged in writing life insurance. He is familiar with all the details of the printing office, and a man of exceptional taste in the composition of display advertisements, the display work of this volume being under his supervision. He is fond of all the manly sports, especially of base ball, having reported all the games played in Jefferson City for the Tribune during the year 1899. His home, with his family, is 314 Jackson street.

HON. J. R. EDWARDS.

Hon. Joseph Richard Edwards, a prominent member of the bar of Jefferson City, is a native and was born here August 11, 1847. His father, the late Judge E. L. Edwards, many years Circuit Judge of this Judicial Circuit, was a native of Tennessee, his mother, Ann Ivy Dixon, of North Carolina. The subject of this sketch received his education at the Missouri State University, where he remained until reaching the Junior Class, when he discontinued school on account of ill-health. He then read law in the office of his father, and in 1869 was admitted to the bar, since which time he has successfully engaged in the practice, and is now one of the leading attorneys of Central Missouri. He served the city many years as Assistant Attorney and one term (1872-3) as Attorney, and was Prosecuting Attorney of Cole county six years (1873-1879), after which he was Assistant Prosecuting Attorney four years. In 1875 he was Alderman from the First Ward, and in 1883 was elected Mayor. He was elected to the Legislature in 1892 on the Democratic ticket without opposition, serving until 1895, since which time he has continued in the practice of law. Mr. Edwards has been counsel in a number of important trials in the United States and State Courts. While Prosecuting Attorney of Cole county he assisted Attorney-General Hockaday and Adjutant-General Bingham in the case of State vs. General Crafton which saved the United States and the State of Missouri several hundred thousand dollars; also prosecuted the bond fraud of 1875, and was the leading Attorney in the case of State vs. Nolan, former State Treasurer; was the plaintiff and attorney in the injunction suit against the Secretary of the State in 1896 to restrain him from submitting the amendment for Capital removal; has served as Special Judge of the Circuit Court in every county in this Judicial Circuit but one. In addition to his large holdings of valuable property he is a stockholder and director of the Merchants' Bank, and has been its Attorney since its organization, in 1889; is also a stockholder in the First National Bank, in the Russellville Exchange Bank, and the Poplar Bluff Bank in Butler county. He is Vice-President and attorney of the Jefferson City Water Works Company, of which he was one of the original incorporators; is a large stockholder in, and Vice-President of, the Lapsley-Edwards Grocer Company, wholesale grocers. He is proprietor of the Cole County Democrat, a Democratic weekly, for which he has recently erected the Democrat Building, on the corner of High and Monroe streets, and which is one of the most modern and best-located buildings in the city. Mr. Edwards is a supporter of the M. E. church (South); also member of the A. O. U. W., and a charter member of the K. O. T. M., having been Commander of the latter several years. He was united in marriage, May 9, 1871, to Mary B., daughter of the late Robert R. Jefferson of Jefferson City. This union has been blessed with two children: Miss Ethel is at home with her parents, No. 316 East High street; William L. is a law partner of his father (having been admitted to the bar in 1896) and is editor of the Cole County Democrat, a position which his father held from June, 1884, until March 1900, when he retired to devote his attention to his large and growing legal practice.

T. M. WINSTON.

Thomas Miller Winston, (deceased) was born near Greensburg, Greene county, Ky., September 14, 1816, where he remained until 1833, when he came to Jefferson City with his uncle, Capt. Thomas Miller, a merchant, for whom he clerked six years. In 1839 he formed a partnership with P. T. Miller and purchased the store of his uncle, continuing the same until 1846, when they disposed of the business. In 1847 he engaged in the livery and feed business, purchasing a stable which stood at the time where the postoffice now stands, doing a prosperous shipping business to the South. He later engaged in the mercantile business on his own account, continuing one year, when he sold an interest to Mr. McKenzie, which they conducted under the name of Winston & McKenzie until the Fall of 1851. In 1852 Mr. Winston purchased the drug store of Dr. P. Dorris, continuing the business several years, and in 1864 again engaged in the same business. He was appointed Sheriff under Governor Gamble, to fill the unexpired term of William Bolton; was elected to the office of Sheriff, serving one term; served two terms as Coroner of Cole county. In 1868 he was elected Door-keeper of the State Senate, serving three years and at the same time served as Commissioner of the Permanent Seat of Government, having charge of the construction of the stone wall, around the Capitol grounds, which was built by convict labor. March 6, 1877, he was appointed Marshal of the State Supreme Court, which office he continued to hold until the time of his death.

January 29, 1885. Mr. Winston was married December 19, 1848, to Miss Sallie Chapman Miller, of Greensburg, Ky. To this union have been born six children: Kittie C., died at the age of eighteen; George N., is at present Police Judge of Jefferson City; Benjamin W., is foreman of the book-room of the Tribune Printing Co.; Thomas M., Nannie M., and Ida M., are at home with their widowed mother, at 321 East Franklin street.

GEORGE PORTH.

George Porth, who for twenty years has been the leading jeweler of Jefferson City, was born on a farm near Mascoutah, Ill., May 9, 1859, where he remained until eight years of age, when, with his parents, he removed to Mascoutah, where he received his early education in the public schools. At the age of fifteen he went to Belleville, where he learned the trade of watchmaker and jeweler under Jos. Wehrle, with whom he remained four years. He then went to St. Joseph, Mo., where he had a position with Joseph Goodlive, as manager of the repair department; here he remained two years. Coming to Jefferson City in May, 1879, he purchased the stock of jewelry of Robert Gross at the place now occupied by the Globe Mercantile Company, the building at that time being a two-story frame. He continued this business at different places in the city since, until August, 1898, when he, in connection with John Vogt and J. H. Edwards, purchased the old Tennessee House block, which they removed in the Spring and Summer of 1899, and built the present handsome and modern structure. Since he was fifteen years of age, Mr. Porth has given his time and study to the business in which he is now engaged, and he has, by his straightforward business methods and close, prompt attention to all work entrusted to him, built up a large and prosperous business and accumulated a comfortable fortune.

December 6, 1881, he was united in marriage to Mary Helen, daughter of James and Charlotte Meador of Jefferson City. This union has been blessed with six children, four of whom are living: George, Hilda, Clifford and Edgar, are at home; Roy and Eugene are deceased. Mr. Porth had the misfortune to lose his devoted wife and companion, and the mother of his children, July 3, 1898. He has been for twenty-one years a worthy member of Capital Lodge, No. 37, and Eureka Encampment,

No. 10, I. O. O. F., and Canton Jefferson Lodge, No. 21, of which he is Ensign, and is also a member of Jefferson Lodge, No. 513, Brotherhood of Elks. He represented the city in the Third Ward as Councilman four years, and served one term (two years) as City Treasurer. He is President of the Jefferson City Sanitarium, incorporated under the laws of Missouri in 1898, the object of which is to cure inebriates, he being one of the organizers in the establishment of the institution. He worked actively for cheaper ferriage prior to the building of the bridge and is now a stockholder of the Jefferson City Bridge & Transit Company. He has always taken an active interest in the progress of Jefferson City, promptly doing his part in all measures proposed for its advancement.

ADAM OPEL.

Adam Opel, a retired contractor and builder of Jefferson City, was born in Bavaria, Germany, July 31, 1821, and is consequently a few months older than the State of Missouri. He is the only surviving son of twelve children of John and Margare (Keisling) Opel, also natives of Bavaria, who immigrated to America in 1849, the father dying before the family reached St. Louis. The subject of this sketch worked as a laborer in the City of St. Louis for about one year after his arrival, when he removed to Cole county, settling in Liberty township, where he engaged in farming until 1852. He then removed to Jefferson City, and engaged in teaming one year, when he entered a cabinet shop as an apprentice to learn that trade. After one year he engaged in the work of a carpenter, to which he later added the business of contracting, in which he continued to do a most successful and prosperous business until his retirement in 1898. A large number of the best business buildings and residences of the Capital City were built under his direction. In his business he employed for many years, constantly from five to ten carpenters. He was also interested in the manufacture of brick during the years of his business life. He was united in marriage in Germany, to Barbara Schoetel, who died in Liberty township in 1851, leaving one son, George, now in Jefferson City, working at the business of cabinet maker and carpenter. Mr. Opel was again united in marriage to L. Dierking, who is the mother of his children Carrie, the wife of Wm. W. Davis of Jefferson City, and Charles, now an architect with a number of interests, among them Vice-President

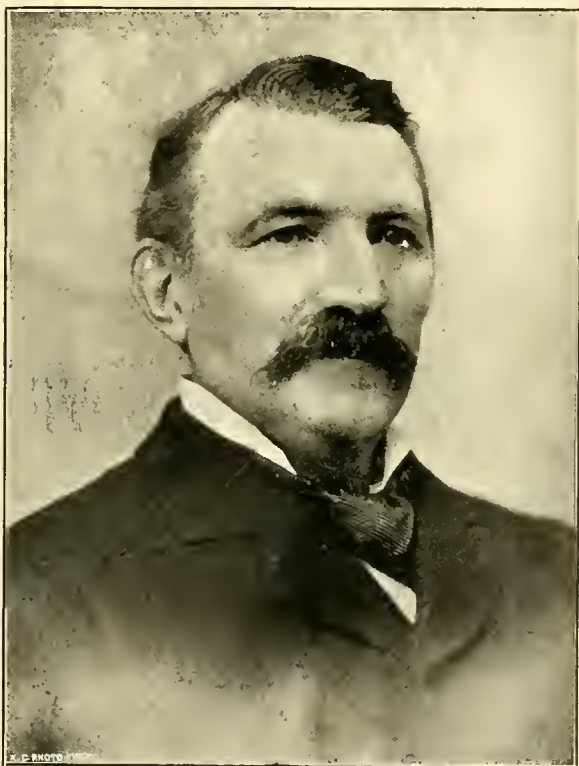

Treasurer and Manager of the Missouri Illustrated Sketch Book Co. Mr. Opel had the misfortune to lose, by death, his second wife, and in 1879 was reunited in marriage to Margaret Mayer. This union has been blessed with three children, Louis, Hilda and Anna, all of whom are at home. Mr. Opel is a member of the Baptist church, which he served many years as a trustee, while Mrs. Opel is a member of the First Presbyterian church, both of whom make an active and a prominent part in church duties. Mr. Opel is one of the prominent characters of Jefferson City, whose name has been identified with many of its advancing steps during his long residence here. He served the city several terms as Alderman. He was a member of the Home Guards and also of the militia during the War of the Rebellion. In politics his sympathies and affiliation is with the Democratic party. He is a large property owner in Jefferson City, and is held in high esteem by all who know him. Unwilling to cease his work as builder, altogether, he has just completed a fine set of flats, which he has built more to occupy his time than to advance his pecuniary interests. He is a warm supporter of the Single Tax theory; in fact, most all of the ideas of the great writer, Henry George, on social problems. His home, with his family, is 505 Jefferson street.

COL. W. Q. DALLMEYER.

Col. W. Q. Dallmeyer, Cashier of the Exchange Bank of Jefferson City, and one of its most prominent and wealthy citizens, was born in Dissen, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, October 23, 1829; immigrating to America, he landed in New York in 1845. After employment in the dry goods business until 1849, he went to New Orleans, where he was engaged in the commission business from 1849 to 1854, when he removed to St. Louis, Mo., where he was employed in the dry goods store of Mr. Polkoskey. Leaving this position in 1856, he removed to Gasconade county, Mo., where he established a general store on the old State road near Second Creek, and subsequently established another general store on Third Creek, Cooper Hill. At the same time he owned and conducted a farm. While here he served as Justice of the Peace and also as Postmaster. During the War of the Rebellion he served in Capt. Cooper's Company of Home Guards, and later served in what was known as Dallmeyer's Battalion, of which he was Lieutenant-Colonel. In 1864 he was elected member of the Legislature, serving in 1865, and in an extra session in 1866; being re-elected in the Fall of 1866 he served a second term. In 1868 he was elected Treasurer of the State of Missouri, in which capacity he served, 1869-70. In 1868 he removed to Jefferson City, where he has continued his residence and been prominently identified with its business, social and commercial interests since. In January, 1871, the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States authorized W. Q. Dallmeyer and Nelson C. Burch to organize a national bank in Jefferson City, with a capital stock of $75,000. This organization absorbed the Capital City Bank, which had been organized in 1867, and of this bank W. Q. Dallmeyer was elected Cashier in 1874, continuing until August, 1882, when he disposed of his interests in this bank, having been unanimously elected Cashier of the Exchange Bank, which position he still occupies. He was united in marriage April 15, 1875, to Miss Louise Sophia Lange. To this union have been born six children, five of whom are living: Ferdinand P., of Jefferson City; Pauline, now Mrs. Adolph Elsner; W. Augustus, Assistant Cashier of the Exchange Bank; H. Rudolph, book-keeper of the Exchange Bank; Viola is the wife of Theodore W. Dulle, book-keeper of the First National Bank. Col. Dallmeyer is a Mason, a member of the Blue Lodge and Royal Arch Chapter. He has been for 18 years a member of the Board of Education, of which he is Treasurer. Col. Dallmeyer, while an enterprising and progressive citizen, who has been identified with the progressive spirits of the Capital City since he made it his home in 1868, is a man of prudence and fine judgment, who ranks with the best financiers of the State. Under the direction of his well-balanced mind his movements in life have been attended with uniform and substantial success. His sterling integrity and prudent business judgment has been a great factor in making the Exchange Bank one of the greatest financial concerns of Central Missouri.

F. M. BROWN.

Frank Mullins Brown, a prominent member of the bar of Jefferson City, was born in Albemarle county, Virginia, February 26, 1852. When 2 years of age his father, Dr. B. D. Brown, moved to Callaway county, Mo., settling on a farm, where the subject of this sketch was reared and received his early education. He later attended the Missouri State University at Columbia, where he graduated from the academic department in the class of 1878. After this he began the study of law in the office of the late Judge G. B. McFarlane and Mr. J. McD. Trimble at Mexico, Mo., where he was admitted to the bar in June, 1880, and engaged in the practice until January, 1881, when he was appointed to the position of assistant in the office of the Attorney-General, Hon. D. H. McIntyre, where he continued the following four years. In January, 1885, he was appointed Reporter of the Supreme Court of Missouri, which office he held until July 14, 1897, since which time he has devoted his time entirely to the practice of his profession. In January, 1885, he formed a partnership with Edwin Silver, the firm name being Silver & Brown. In July, 1887, Judge Jackson L. Smith, now of the Kansas City Court of Appeal became a member of the firm, it being Smith, Silver & Brown. In March, 1899, Mr. Silver removed to Kansas City, since which time Mr. Brown has continued successfully in the practice alone. He was united in marriage May 15, 1880, to Miss Bettie I. French, of Mexico, Mo., daughter of William L. and Eliza J. French. To this union seven children have been born: Mary is a student at the High School; Linn F., and Rose are attending the public school; Paul M., and William F., (an infant) are at home; Floyd F., and Frances died in infancy. In the person of Mr. Brown are represented the characteristics of the Virginia gentleman. He is smooth and courteous in his social relations. During his long service as Reporter of the Supreme Court his work was most satisfactory to both the bench and bar, which services afforded him a splendid schooling for thorough equipment in the practice of his profession, an experience by which he has profited

He is President of the Business Board of the Christian church, trustee of the Jefferson City Library Association, and an active member of the Commercial Club, taking a deep interest in every measure for the advancement of Jefferson City materially, intellectually and morally. His elegant home, with his interesting family, is 903 Jackson street, south suburbs of the city.

G. L. ELSTON.

George L. Elston, Secretary and Director of The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, son of Dr. Addison Elston of Jefferson City, was born in the village of Elston, this county, July 28, 1869. His early life was spent with his grandfather on a farm near Elston, his early education being in the neighboring district school. In the Spring of 1888 he entered the Missouri State University at Columbia, Mo., where he continued three years, when he came, in 1891, to Jefferson City, and engaged with L. S. Parker, who had charge of the Jefferson Shoe Company, as foreman in the sole leather department. After one year in this position he was a student at Central College, Fayette, Mo., one term, after which, returning to Jefferson City, he became a stockholder, and was made Secretary and Treasurer of the Star Clothing Mfg. Co., in which position he continued three years, when he retired, taking a position as book-keeper with Mr. L. S. Parker, in which position he continued until February 11, 1899, when he became a stockholder and was made a director and Secretary of the corporation. Mr. Elston is a member of the A., F. & A. M., No. 43, of Jefferson City, of the National Association of Accountants, of which he is Vice-President, a member of the Christian church, of which he is Secretary and Treasurer, also Secretary and Treasurer of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. In addition to his interests in The L. S. Parker Shoe Company, he is a stockholder of the Missouri Central Building & Loan Association, of which he is a director; is a stockholder in the Jefferson City Building and Loan Association, and recently purchased the valuable residence property formerly occupied by Mr. A. J. Shockley. His ancestors on his father's side immigrated from Wales, settling in New Jersey in the early part of the 19th century, soon after removing to Virginia in 1820. From there they immigrated to Missouri in 1828, settling first in Boone county, ten years later, in 1838, removing to Cole county. The mother of Mr. Elston, now deceased, Jane C., nee Smith, came to Missouri in 1844, from Ohio, her ancestors being English. Mr. Elston is a well-balanced young man, of character and integrity, whose business ability has given to him his present important position with the large shoe manufacturing concern as stated above.

H. A. GASS.

Howard Allen Gass, editor and publisher of the Missouri School Journal, was born in Audrain county, on a farm near Mexico, August 22, 1852. His education was in the district school nearby and at the Mexico Private High School for Boys. On the completion of his education he engaged in teaching the following fifteen years. His first work in this profession was in the High School at Mexico, of which he had been a pupil, and the latter seven years Principal of the High School at Vandalia, Mo. In 1887 he accepted a position as chief clerk under W. E. Coleman, then State Superintendent of Public Schools, in which he continued three years, followed by two years in the same position with L. E. Wolfe, who succeeded Mr. Coleman, when he resigned to devote his whole time to his publication, the Missouri School Journal, of which he became owner in December, 1887. This journal is recognized as the organ of the school teachers, and has more influence in the educational field than any other like publication in the State. Mr. Gass was united in marriage to Miss Alice Josephine, daughter of Judge

J. H. Shell, a prominent farmer of Audrain county, near Mexico, Mo., December 25, 1876. To this union have been born two children: Miss Alma, an accomplished young lady, and one of the most talented musicians of the Capital City, is at home with her parents; Howard Ray is a civil engineer, at present located at Texarkana, Texas, where he has a position with the Pittsburg & Gulf Railway Company. Mr. Gass is a member of the First Baptist church, in which organization he occupies the important position of Moderator, and is also Superintendent of the Sunday School. He is a Mason, member of the Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Chapter and Commandery, of which organizations he is Past Master, Past High Priest, Past Eminent Commander, and is now Captain of the Hosts in the Royal Arch Chapter and Warder in the Commandery. In politics he is a Democrat, and an active worker in that political organization. Few men, who have been drawn by official position to make their homes in Jefferson City, have been more valuable as citizens or identified themselves more completely with its interests than has Mr. Gass. In the First Baptist church he has been a most important factor in bringing that organization to its present high position of usefulness and influence. He was for many years a trustee, and was one of the Building Committee who pushed forward to completion the present elegant structure. He has, through the medium of his School Journal, which goes to all parts of the State, been a potent factor in advancing the interests of the teachers, and the means of introducing in the Legislature many measures which have materially helped the educational interests of the great commonwealth of Missouri. With both his church and educational work his cultured and congenial wife is in thorough sympathy. His comfortable home is 319 East High street.

F. E. CARTER.

F. E. Carter, foreman of the book bindery of the Tribune Printing Co., was born September 15, 1851, at Philadelphia, Pa., where he remained until seven years of age, when he removed with his parents to Freeport, Ill., where he was educated in the public schools. After completing his education he learned the trade of book-binding. He then removed to Leavenworth, Kansas, where he engaged in business on his own account, opening a book binding and paper box factory, continuing nine years, when he disposed of the plant, after which he was with a number of large printing offices and binderies. He came to Jefferson City, December 9, 1899, accepting the position he now occupies with the Tribune Printing Co. Under his supervision the binding the entire issue of the Revised Statutes of the State of Missouri (the largest contract of printing and binding ever executed in the State) was completed. He also bound Lesueur's Manual, Election Laws, School Laws and various other State laws and reports were bound. He also had charge of the binding of the Cole County Sketch Book. He was married to Miss Nettie A. Hunter, of Freeport, Ill., November 2, 1876. His son, Lawrence A., now 15 years of age, is a pupil of the Jefferson City High School. Mr. Carter is a member of Ivanhoe Lodge, No. 14, K. P., of Leavenworth, Kas., in which organization he has held all the important offices and is at present Past Chancellor; also a member of Stephens Camp, No. 2892, M. W. A., of Joliet, Ills.

JOHN PRICE.

John Price was born near Canterbury, county of Kent, England, April 5, 1817, and immigrated to the United States when eleven years of age, with his parents, who first settled in Albany, N. Y. They came over in a sail ship, and were seven weeks crossing the ocean. The subject of this sketch received his education in the public schools of Albany, N. Y., and in Rutland, Vt. He went to Rutland, Vt., when 16 years of age to learn carriage painting from Jared C. Burdick, a carriage manufacturer, harness-maker and also a dealer in fine horses, and with whom he made his home as a son. While living with Mr. Burdick he married the second of his three daughters, Lydia Elizabeth (who was born in Rutland, Vt., November 23, 1824, the Castle Rock, Osage county, Mo., and settled on a farm, and later engaged in the business of merchandising. During the Civil War he had three mail contracts, one between Jefferson City and Rolla, one between Jefferson City and Little Pina, on the Gasonade River, and the other between Jefferson City and Castle Rock. He recruited for the 26th Missouri, under Col. Boomer, who was afterward killed at Vicksburg, and while recruiting stopped one night with a man named Getty, who was killed the following night by the Bushwhackers, who were after Mr. Price a number of times, and from whom he had several narrow escapes.

Mr. Price came to Jefferson City in December, 1863, soon after which he joined the Home Guards, and was forced into service as guide for two regi-

house where she was born is still standing, and of which she has a good picture) July 22, 1840, she being seven years his junior and still his genial companion, at the ripe age of 76 years. At the death of his father-in-law he took charge of the business, conducting it successfully until the shop was destroyed by fire, which was a complete loss, the insurance having expired three months previous. After the fire he accepted a position in the shops of the Rutland & Burlington Railway Company, in Rutland, Vt., painting engines and cars complete; later in the shops of the Western Vermont Railway and Saratoga Railway Companies, and he yet has letters of commendation from the superintendents of all these railroad companies. He continued at his trade until his health failed, when he went to ments from Jefferson City to Rolla. He, with Dr. Peabody, acted as Trustees and started the first public school in Jefferson City after the war. At the close of the strife he again engaged at his old trade, painting, in Jefferson City. There was one other painter here at the time, John Ross, with whom he formed a partnership, and continued several years, when the partnership was dissolved, and he worked alone until 1897, when he retired on account of advanced age.

Mr. and Mrs. Price were the parents of nine children: John Jared, makes his home in Des Moines, Iowa, and travels for Heath & Milligan of Chicago; Emma Amelia is now Mrs. James E. Ross, residing in Bunker Hill, Ill.; Lillie, is now Mrs. Robert Cruikshank of St. Louis, Mo.; Wil-ham, Mrs. Julia Davis, Mrs. Elizabeth Ross, Mrs. Jennie Ross, Mrs. Lucy McComb and May are deceased. Mr. Price is a member of the L. O. O. F., and has been connected with that organization 62 years. He makes his home with his devoted wife, a most amiable and lovely Christian woman, at 308 Madison street, where, for more than a third of a century, she has been the companion of his joys and sorrows. Both Mr. and Mrs. Price bear on their peaceful and contented faces, which are the indexes to the soul, the evidences of a well spent life. They have eleven grand-children, and at a family reunion, July 22, 1890, their golden wedding, the 50th anniversary of their marriage, was celebrated. Rev. Dr. Gauss, of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Mrs. Price has been a member of this church since its reorganization after the war, she now being the only one of the twelve original organizers living.

G. H. KNOLLMAYER.

George H. Knollmeyer was born May 24, 1867, in Osnabruck, Germany, and immigrated to the United States when nineteen years of age, arriving at Carlisle, Ill., from which place, after working on a farm a short time, he removed to Commerce, Scott county, Missouri, where he engaged in milling. In 1886 he went to St. Louis, where he worked at the same business until 1890, when he came to Jefferson City, arriving August 12. Here he accepted a position as second miller for the G. H. Dulle Milling Company, where he continued until August, 1891, when he removed to Little Rock, Ark., taking charge at that point of the largest mill in the State. On account of failing health he returned to Jefferson City in 1894 and engaged in general merchandising with his father-in-law, J. B. Bruns, the shoe manufacturer, and now President of the J. B. Bruns Shoe Company. He has continued in charge of this business since, the firm being J. B. Bruns & Co., who handle, in addition to a large stock of general merchandise, farm machinery of all kinds including buggies, surries, wagons and threshing machines. Mr. Knollmeyer was united in marriage April 25, 1892, to Lena, daughter of J. B. Bruns, who is the mother of his two bright little daughters, Mary and Helen. He is a member of St. Peter's Catholic church and of the Catholic Knights of America. He is a bright young business man, under whose direction the business of which he is manager has grown to large proportions, the volume of which is probably greater than that of any other general store in Cole county. Mr. Knollmeyer deserves credit for the position he now occupies in the business and social world. He came to America with little education and no knowledge whatever of the English language, but by individual application and practical experience has made himself thoroughly familiar with the language, which he both speaks and writes fluently. His home, with his interesting family, is 200 Broadway.

OTTO P. BOHN.

On January 29, 1900, the sudden death of Otto Philip Bohn, one of the brightest and most promising youths of Jefferson City, gave a painful shock to his family and very wide circle of admiring and devoted friends. He was born November 4, 1888, in Centralia, Ill., and was a son of Edward and Louisa (nee Betz) Bohn. When he was three years of age his parents removed to Jefferson City, where, after attaining school age, he was a regular attendant at the public schools; at the time of his death being one of the brightest members of the Junior Class. At the age of 11, being advised by his physician to have some outdoor exercise or employment, and anxious to begin his life work, he began to carry city papers, first for Miss Maggie Miller (then located at the stand now occupied by the Claude Clark Stationery and News Co.), later adding to his duties the work of distributing the Press and State Tribune. He was a most consistent, conscientious and duty-loving member of the Presbyterian church, with which he united without any advice or suggestion from his parents. He was also a member and active worker of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and a regular attendant at Sunday School. As a student at school his bright and receptive mind enabled him to keep in advance of his class with apparent slight application. He would have graduated next year with honors, and was looking forward to a course at the State University, which he felt would help him climb the ladder to excellence in the literary and scientific world. His death occurred at 12:10 p. m. while en route from school to his home, the result of heart failure. The school dismissed in deference to his memory, and attended, in a body, his funeral, preached by Dr. J. F. Hendy at the Presbyterian church. His remains were accompanied by his parents, brother and sister to Centralia, Ill., where he now rests. He had a bright mind, impelled by an ambitious desire to make something of himself, with a disposition and make-up that made of him a character of which contemplation drew forth admiration for one who had such a bright promise of success; while his warm and tender heart was such that all were drawn to him with a feeling of affection rarely associated with a boy. His sudden death produced a keen sorrow in the hearts of all his admiring friends, while with his family, who knew him better, it was a dark shadow which Time, the great healer, is converting into a sweet memory, the recalling of which affords to them a sacred and refined pleasure.

MISS ROSE GOETZ.

Miss Rose Goetz, whose portrait accompanies this sketch, is a young lady of rare natural talent as a musician, and is one of the most accomplished vocalists of the Capital City. She devotes her talent, however, almost exclusively to sacred music, her sweet voice being one of the most fascinating attractions of the delightful song service of St. Peter's Catholic church. She, however, renders some choice songs to the very great delight of her wide circle of friends. She is a daughter of the cigar manufacturer, Mr. Joseph E. Goetz, her home being with her parents at 126a West High street.

H. J. WALLAU.

Henry J. Wallau came to Jefferson City with his wife and four children in the fall of 1882, from the Province of Rhine, Germany. He began work for Fred. H. Binder on the Catholic church, having learned the carpenter's trade in his native place under an uncle. Leaving Mr. Binder's employ, he engaged with the firm of A. T. Manchester & John Beckby, three years. In the Spring of 1886 he began work on his own account as general contractor and builder, starting a planing mill with a two-and-a-half horse-power engine on West Water street, where he remained until the property was sold, when he moved to the old stone church in the rear of the Madison Hotel (where have been cradled so many of Jefferson City's concerns of importance) and later, to his present location on Jefferson street. Business, under his active and skillful direction has steadily increased to its present proportions. His first contract on his own account was that of Bockrath's store building on Richmond Hill. Among the many buildings which he contracted for and completed are St. Peter's Hall, Lincoln Institute Normal Hall, Capitol Brewery and Ice Plant, G. H. Dulle Mills, Cole County Court House, Gasconade County Court House, Dormitory for the State University, Columbia, extension of Chapel and Kitchen, at State Hospital No. 1 for the Insane at Fulton, and Hospital at the same institution; also the Hospital for the Deaf and Dumb at that place and the magnificent Missouri Pacific Station, of which Jefferson City is justly proud.

Mr. Wallan was elected to the City Council from the Fourth Ward, April, 1899. He was born July 14, 1851, in the Province of Rhine, Germany, receiving his education in his native place, where he was married May 13, 1876, to Miss Annie M. Dinkellbach. To this union has been born ten children. Mr. Wallan is a member of St. Peter's Catholic church and her three societies, Catholic Knights of America, St. John's Orphan Society and St. Peter's Benevolent Society, the latter of which he has been President since 1890. Mr. Wallan is one of the Capital City's most substantial citizens, who has built up his present large and prosperous business strictly on his merits as a thoroughly equipped man in his important branch of industry.

DICK LEE.

Dick Lee, the artist who produced the accompanying sketch, is a young man of rare talent, as evidenced by the production. He was born Sept. 6, 1886, in Keytesville, Chariton county, Mo. He attended the public schools in Keytesville, and with his parents came to Jefferson City in 1893, where he now resides. He attended St. Peter's school for two years, when he attended the public school and has entered the High School. He received no special instruction in drawing; all he has learned has been in the regular drawing classes at school, and aided only by his observing nature and taste for the art. His father, John A. Lee, is book-keeper in the office of State Auditor J. M. Seibert.

THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH (SOUTH).

The Methodist Episcopal church (South), of Jefferson City, was organized in October, 1841, with forty members. The only names preserved on the records, however, were R. F. Kerr, H. Hough and James A. McClain, who were the officers of the first quarterly conference. Prior to this, William M. Kerr erected a residence near the penitentiary where he organized a class in 1838. Prayer meetings had also been held alternately at the homes of Peter McLain, John D. Curry, William Kerr and as pastor, the church was dedicated (Rev. Thomas Wallace preaching the dedicatory sermon), where they worshipped many years. The next pastors in charge were Revs. W. H. Lewis, J. H. Linn, W. Wharton, J. Stamper, T. H. Caper, Thomas T. Ashby, A. L. Hamilton, T. M. Finney, Joseph Boyle, J. V. Headenbarg, John H. Headly, William M. Leftwick, each serving one year except Rev. T. M. Finney, who served two years. At the breaking out of the war, Dr. Leftwick, who was the presiding elder

AS THE CHURCH NOW APPEARS, MAY 25, 1900.

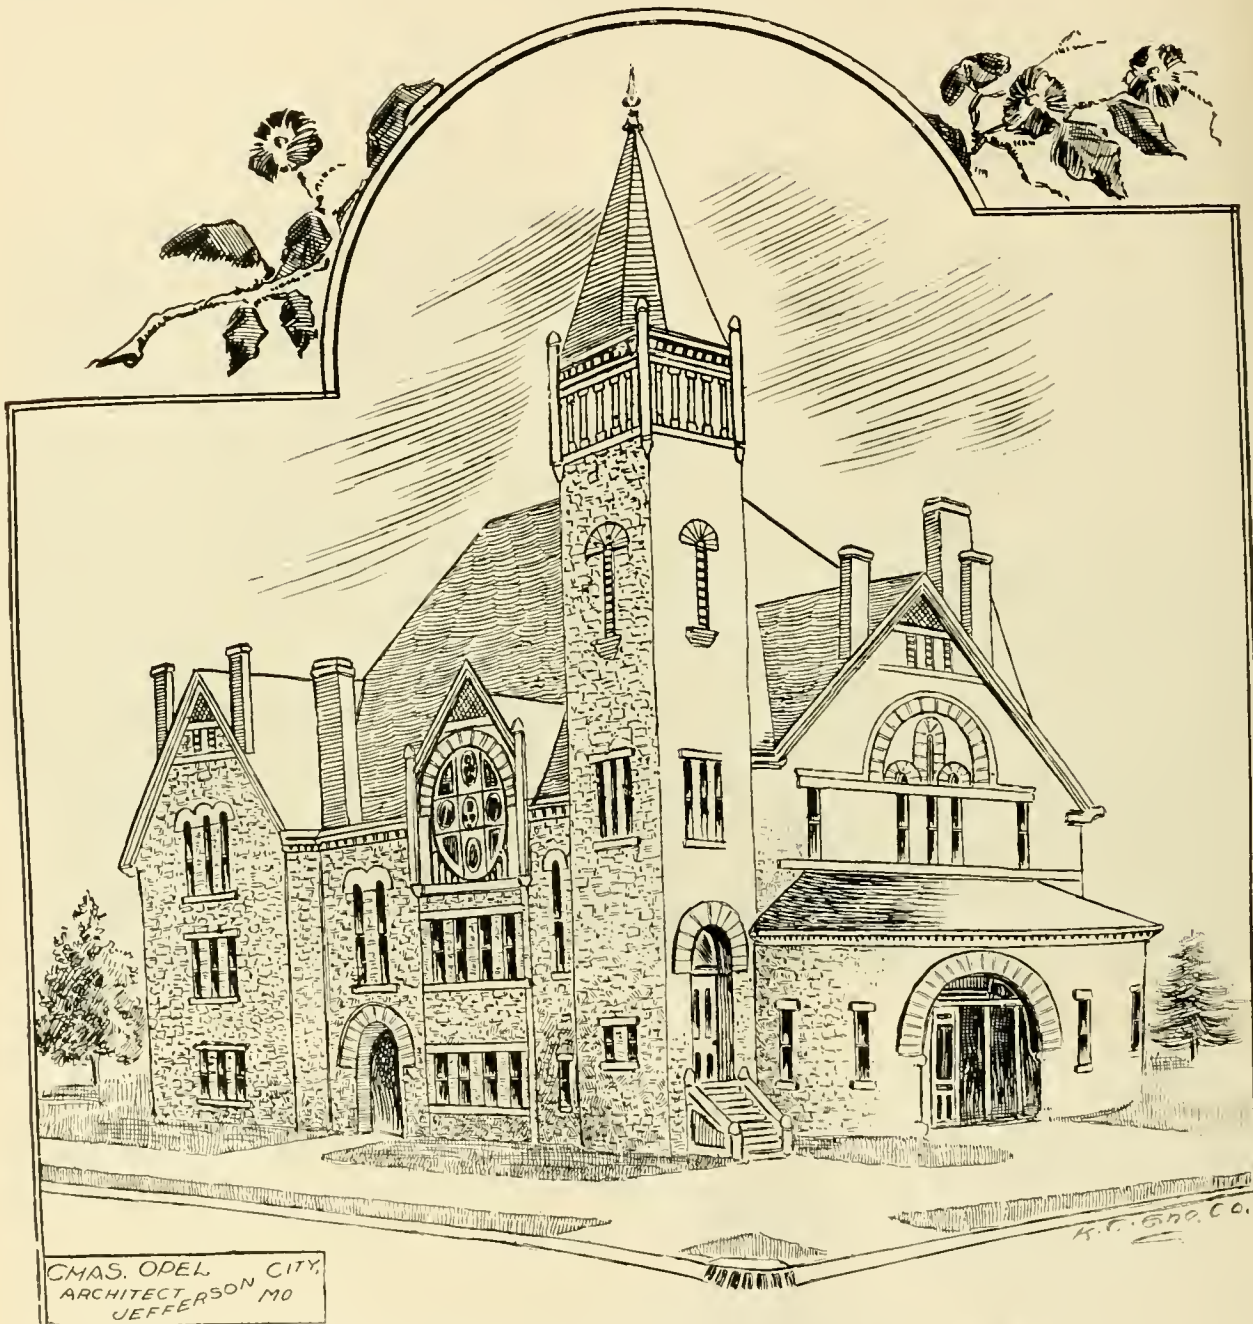

The above cut represents the new M. E. Church (South) now in course of construction at the corner of Main and Monroe streets. The exterior walls are being faced with native lime stone, which presents not only an indestructible face to the elements, but a very pleasing and harmonious effect, equal, if not superior, to the celebrated Carthage or Bedford stone. The importance of this particular piece of stone work in its bearing upon the future stone industry of Cole county and Jefferson City can hardly be computed. Mountains of this valuable and really beautiful building stone surround the city, and it needs only to be quarried by the proper machinery to make it the cheapest as well as the best building stone in Missouri. No Cole county or Jefferson City building in the future need depend upon outside quarries for stone.

Jesse Waldron. Public services were held in the old State House, where the Mansion now stands, the old County Court House and an old school building. The old church (now used as a residence, 222 East Main street,) was begun in 1839. The first pastor in charge here was Rev. Jesse L. Bennett (1841), serving one year. In 1842 Rev. J. W. Chandler took charge, who greatly assisted in pushing forward the completion of the church building then in course of construction. During the second year of this district, continued to hold services as long as he could. Services were also held by Rev. Jacob Ditzler, who became pastor later. The church was broken up and the membership scattered, most of whom worshipped with the Northern church. During his pastorate here Rev. Ditzler expressed freely his opinions, and was to have been arrested by the Northern soldiers, when Mrs. Allen Richardson, wife of Col. Richardson, a Northern sympathizer, and a warm friend of Rev. Ditzler, advised him to leave, which he did. After his departure Rev. Josiah Godbey, from Saline county, held services once every three months. The Northern soldiers had taken possession of the church building and the members worshipped at the old court house and different places by the water, resulting in tearing the corner away, when they were compelled to again seek the shelter of the old court house. This was during the pastorate of Rev. Dr. W. M. Prottzman (1872-3). It was then decided to build a new church, a fund being whenever they could. After the war (1866) the first pastor was Rev. George W. Horn, who, with the congregation again worshipped in the old church, although the building was much abused and out of order, continuing until the walls were undermined started for this purpose by selling the old church and the parsonage, which was at 517 East Main street. The membership was not very large, although the largest of any church in the city at the time. The building was finished and simply furnished

1874, during the pastorate of Dr. C. C. Woods, who laid the corner stone of the church, Bishop Marvin assisting in the services. Later the ladies of the Round Table Society purchased a pipe organ, which is still in use by the organization, and which was the second organ of its kind in the city. In 1879 Dr. W. B. Palmore, now editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, was sent to take charge, and during his stay the alcove in the church was built, other improvements made and a parsonage erected. This pastor did more to build up and put the church in a prosperous condition than any who preceded him. He denied himself the comforts of life that he might give money to the up-building of the church, sleeping in the little room above and taking his meals at the hotel. This church has been repaired and refurnished from time to time, but never added to since the alcove was built. The history of the church, with a list of pastors, officers and members, was placed in the corner stone of the new parsonage on East Main street, which was laid under the auspices of the Grand Masonic Lodge, the Grand Master officiating. Dr. Palmore remained four years, until 1882, the only pastor who had been retained that length of time. He was succeeded by Rev. Thomas M. Cobb, who after three years was followed by Rev. James M. Boon, two years; Rev. S. R. Hunter, two years; Rev. W. T. McClure, two years; Rev. William B. North, one year; Rev. J. N. Huggins, two years; Rev. J. C. Given, three years. The present pastor is Rev. A. H. Barnes, who came in 1898; the Presiding Elder of this district, Rev. W. T. McClure, is stationed at Marshall, Mo. The congregation now has a membership of over 500, this making it necessary to build a new and larger church house. They purchased a lot on the corner of Main and Monroe streets, and are now pushing to completion the magnificent church building, the outlines of which are shown by the accompanying views:—The cost of this building will be about $25,000, and they hope to have the building completed and ready for occupancy by December of this year. The building committee is composed of Gen. H. Clay Ewing, President; L. D. Gordon, M. R. Sinks and T. M. Bradbury. The church, with all its auxiliaries, is in a most happy and prosperous condition. The present officers are: Board of Stewards; Gen. H. Clay Ewing, Chairman; A. R. Johnson, Secretary; Frank Stanfil, George B. Anderson, Max Thiel, J. M. Jobe, Gov. Lon V. Stephens, T. M. Bradbury, M. R. Sinks, Jefferson Men-teer, John Ruthven and L. D. Gordon. The Board of Trustees, M. R. Sinks, Gen. H. Clay Ewing, Gov. Lon V. Stephens, T. M. Bradbury, Frank Stanfil,

J. W. Ruthven, A. R. Johnson. M. R. Sinks is Superintendent of the Sunday-School; A. R. Johnson, Assistant; Harry Gordon, Secretary; Miss Annie Ober, Treasurer. Of the Ladies' Missionary Society Mrs. M. D. Williams is President; Mrs. A. R. Johnson, Vice-President; Mrs. W. E. McMahan, Secretary, and Mrs. George B. Anderson, Treasurer. Earl Oliver is President of the Epworth League; Mrs. Smith Arnett is Secretary and Treasurer.

DR. W. M. PROTTSMAN.

Rev. Dr. William McKendree Prottzman was born on the state line between West Virginia and Ohio, February 19, 1815, his parents being at the time en route from Rockingham county, Va., to Marietta, Ohio. He entered Marietta College in 1839, being one of the first students of the institution. A constitutional provision of this college required each student to labor three hours every day at some mechanical trade, a rule to which there was no exception, it governing both rich and poor. The money earned by the students while engaged in this work was their own and used by the more ambitious to assist in their education. He continued here four years, completing his education in 1843 with a thorough and practical knowledge as buggy, carriage and horse cart builder, which included the wood work, iron work, trimming and painting. After leaving college he engaged as clerk on what was called a store-boat, which was loaded with furniture and other merchandise, on which he went South as far as Memphis, Tenn., where he left the boat and engaged as clerk in a grocery store, in which position he continued the following two years, when he returned to Marietta, Ohio. He was licensed to preach by the M. E. church (South) in 1844, in which ennobling work he has engaged continuously since. His itinerancy as a preacher in this great church organization covers a large part of the states of Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and California. In Missouri he was several times a presiding elder and as presiding elder and preacher his work was in the more important fields of the State, including St. Louis, Kansas City, Springfield, Carthage, Jefferson City and other important points. While in California he was two years stationed in San Francisco, the field of his labors covering all parts of the State, from the snow-capped Mount Shasta, in the North, to Los Angeles and San Diego, in the South. The pulpits he occupied in Kentucky and Virginia were the most important and prominent of those states. Few preachers of that great church organization have been the equal of Dr. Prottzman, physically or mentally. Even now in his 86th year his humor is irresistible, and although his thoughts and expressions are of the highest order he is thoroughly practical and wielded a powerful influence wherever located, not only in his church, but in business and social circles. But the work of this great man has not been confined to his oral declarations from the pulpit. He has given to the world some choice books. His volume published a few years ago, "Autumn Leaves," not only contains the choicest, most beautiful and elevating thoughts expressed in well-chosen words, but is full of humor with sufficient pathos to make it doubly interesting and helpful to the reader. He has published several other books of great value and is now engaged in writing a book entitled "The Unknown," which he expects to complete this year. His home is in Jefferson City, where he enjoys, with his devoted wife (nee Anna, daughter of the late Edward Lewis, a prominent and wealthy farmer and tobacco manufacturer of Glasgow, Mo., who has now been the companion of his joys and sorrows nearly a half century), the warm friendship and esteem of a wide circle of friends and admirers.

REV. A. H. BARNES.

Rev. A. H. Barnes, pastor of the M. E. church (South) of Jefferson City, Mo., was born in Cambridge, Saline county, Mo., February 25, 1865, where he spent his youth and attended the public schools of the village. When eighteen years of age he entered the State Normal at Warrensburg, where he continued four years, the latter two of which he was a student and teacher. He was ambitious to obtain a thorough education, but his means were so limited it necessitated his teaching to procure sufficient funds to complete the task. After leaving the Warrensburg Normal he was two years at the Pilot Grove College, taking a course in Latin and Greek. In 1889 he resumed teaching, which he continued until the Fall of 1890, when he became a member of the Southwestern Missouri Conference of the M. E. church (South), his first charge being at Versailles, the county seat of Morgan. His work here was followed by three years as pastor at Harrisonville, after which, in the Fall of 1896, he was placed in charge of the station at Clinton, where he remained one year, and while there secured sufficient funds to pay a church debt which had been running as a heavy burden on the congregation twelve years. He was later stationed one year at Sedalia, where by his well-directed efforts, that church was relieved of a debt of $2,100, which had been standing eight years. From there he came to Jefferson City in 1898, where his work has been attended with marked success, resulting in the building up of the congregation, both spiritually and financially. He has by his fact and continuous, earnest and intelligent work, with the co-operation of his faithful congregation, provided means for pushing forward the construction of the elegant church home, now building, which, when completed, will be the most imposing and thoroughly equipped church structure in Central Missouri. Rev. Barnes was united in marriage, June 11, 1890, to Christine Schlotzhauer, who was at the time in charge of the Musical Conservatory of Pilot Grove College. To this union have been born three children: Nadine, now eight years of age, Maurine, aged six, and Arthur, a babe of eighteen months. Rev. Barnes is a member of the A. E. & A. M., and M. W. A. During the Spanish-American War he was Chaplain of the Sixth Missouri. Of the ministers in the great religious organization of the M. E. church (South) none are better equipped, physically or mentally, for the successful work of preacher and pastor than Rev. A. H. Barnes. He enjoys perfect health, with an energy that impels forward continuously his well-developed physical and mental organization. He is a close student, and having engaged actively in work with men and measures has had a large experience which he uses profitably. He has a buoyant and magnetic presence that draws people to him and assists greatly in making friends, especially among the young people, who become his valuable aids to successful work. In addition to his regular duties to his church as preacher and pastor he is Vice-President of the Southwestern Annual Conference League, and one of its leading spirits. With his wife, who, in addition to her fine musical accomplishments, is a lady of rare mental culture and in thorough sympathy with her husband, he makes his home at the parsonage, 419 East Main Street.

GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

On Monday, November 30, 1840, at a meeting in the school room of Mrs. Charles W. Stuart of Jefferson City, the friends of the Protestant Episcopal church met, with the Rev. William Hommann,

Charles W. Stuart, George W. Hough and W. G. Minor each signature being made in person. The first vestrymen were G. W. Hough, C. W. Stuart, William G. Minor, James L. Minor, William A. Davison and Josiah Murfee. On Easter Sunday, April 12, 1841, the first vestry named above was re-elected, with the addition of James Dunnica, Israel B. Read, S. M. Bay; G. W. Hough being elected Secretary. At

Chairman, and James L. Minor, Secretary. Among those present were Right Rev. Bishop Kemper, Rev. James D. Meade, Rector of Christ church at Boonville. It was resolved that it was expedient to organize a Protestant Episcopal Parish in this city, and appropriate articles of association to that end were adopted, the name of the association being "Rector, Church Wardens and Vestrymen of Grace Church, Jefferson City," the signers of these articles were William Hommann, Rector, James L. Minor, William A. Davison, Josiah Murfee, S. Mansfield Bay, a meeting in December, 1841, it was resolved to apply for admission of this Parish into union with the Protestant Episcopal church in this diocese. April 12, 1842, a committee was appointed to decide on suitable plans for a church building and obtain estimates of the cost. On July 29, 1842, James A. Crump was awarded the contract to build Grace church (a cut of which accompanies this article, the original building still standing, it being the oldest Protestant church building now standing West of the Mississippi River). The cost of this structure was $2,800, the building committee being James Dunnica, James L. Minor and Charles W. Stuart. September, 1842, resolutions were adopted expressing gratitude to Gen. I. B. Read for the donation of the ground on which the church building was erected. May 20, 1843, Rev. Hommann resigned. He

(April 9, 1866), James L. Minor, Dr. G. B. Winston, R. L. Cordell, George Stemp, Israel B. Read, W. F. Billings, Thomas Roots and Theo. Stanley were elected vestrymen. August 7, 1871, articles of incorporation of Grace Church Parish were adopted under the title of "Rector, Church Wardens and Vestrymen of Grace Church of the City of Jefferson." The vestry named in the articles were Dr. G. B. Winston, Senior Warden; Dr. A. C. Davison, Junior Warden; James L. Minor, William E. Miller, Dr. W. A. Curry, Thomas Cottsworth, E. Clark, J. H. Bodine, Dr. A. M. Davison and F. N. Judson. February 27, 1892, Rev. Charles G. Davis was elected Rector. April 18, 1892, A. A. Lesneur, Jonathan was followed by Rev. C. S. Hedges, who was elected April 29, 1844. On April 13, 1846, the vestrymen elected were Charles W. Stuart, S. M. Bay, James L. Minor, M. M. Parsons, D. J. Lisle, William A. Davison, G. W. Hough, Israel B. Read, E. L. Edwards, James W. Morrow, J. H. Cordell, and Benjamin F. Stringfellow. May 9, 1848, Rev. James Stephenson was elected Rector, which office had been vacant since the resignation of Rev. C. S. Hedges, August 23, 1847. From May 9, 1848, at which time Rev. Stephenson was elected Rector, there are no records preserved of a vestry meeting until April 9, 1866, an interval of eighteen years, which included the period of the War of the Rebellion. At this time and Rev. John Gierlow, who had formerly been a Rector of this Parish for six years, from 1883 to 1889. In 1897 it was determined by the Parish to erect a new church building, and the necessary steps were taken to carry out that determination. In June, 1897, the Parish was regularly incorporated under the name of "Rector, Church Wardens and Vestrymen of Grace Church, Jefferson City, Mo.," the former incorporations being defective. September 6, 1897, the Vestry purchased a lot at the corner of High and Adams streets for the erection and location of the new church building. The consent of the Bishop to a change of location of the church having been obtained, the vestry, on April 30, 1898, adopted plans for a new church building, and on June 18, 1898, contracted for the construction of the present beautiful church, and the first service was held in the new church on Sunday, January 15, 1899, when the church was appropriately dedicated and consecrated by the Bishop according to the beautiful ceremony of the Episcopal church. The building, lot and furnishings of this beautiful new church cost about ten thousand five hundred dollars. The present vestry is composed of Ashley W. Ewing, Albert O. Allen, William Elliott, William C. Marshall, Arthur M. Hough, Albert Caison, Thomas O. Towles, John S. Sullivan and David Callahan. Ashley W. Ewing is Senior Warden; Albert Caison Junior Warden; David Callahan, Treasurer; Arthur M. Hough, Secretary of the Vestry. The following Bishops have had charge of this Diocese and Parish: Rt. Rev. — Kemper, Rt. Rev. Cicero S. Hawks, Rt. Rev. Charles F. Robertson, Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, the present Bishop. The Rectors of this Parish have been: Rev. William Hommann, from 1840 to 1843; Rev. C. S. Hedges, from 1845 to 1847; Rev. James Stephenson, from 1848 to 1849; Rev. R. H. Weller, from 1851 to 1852; Rev. J. Adlerly, from 1853 to 1856; Rev. R. H. Weller, from 1857 to 1860; Rev. W. H. D. Hatton, from 1865 to 1868; Rev. O. Bulkley, from 1868 to 1874; Rev. E. C. Gilliam, from 1876 to 1877; Rev. W. A. Masker, from 1878 to 1881; Rev. John Gierlow, from 1883 to 1889; Rev. William W. Mix, from June, 1889, to October, 1889; Rev. D. L. V. Moffett, from 1890 to 1891; Rev. Chas. G. Davis, 1892 to 1895; Rev. George L. Neide, jr., from 1896 to present time.

Grimshaw, William G. McCarty, John S. Sullivan, Albert O. Allen, A. P. Grimshaw, William S. Davison, J. C. Fisher and A. M. Hough were elected vestrymen; the officers being A. A. Lesneur, Senior Warden; Jonathan Grimshaw, Junior Warden; William G. McCarty, Treasurer, and A. M. Hough, Secretary. At this time the Parish owned a church building, the Rectory and 80 acres of land, and their indebtedness was about $1,000.

The first baptism that appears on the church records was Ann Murry Davison, July 9, 1840, by Rev. Wm. Hommann, and the first confirmation was Mrs. Mary C. Hough, April 17, 1841, by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Kemper. The records of the Parish show the baptism, confirmation, marriage and burial of many persons who have been prominent in the history of the State of Missouri.

REV. G. L. NEIDE, JR.

Rev. George L. Neide, jr., Rector of Protestant Episcopal (Grace) church of Jefferson City, was born in the City of New York, a son of the distinguished George L. Neide, D. D., of that city, one of the most prominent men occupying the pulpit in that religious organization. The subject of this sketch, who is American on both his father's and mother's side for more than 200 years, attended school in the city of his birth until the age of 14, when he entered St. Stephen's College, Anondale, N. Y., where he graduated with the degree of A. B.; he then entered the Theological School at Syracuse, N. Y., from which he graduated in 1885. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Hugh Miller Thompson, his first charge being at Bay, St. Louis, where he remained one and a half years. His next charge was Grenada, Miss., where he remained two years, from there to Greenwood, Miss., remaining two years, followed by the same length of time at Lexington, where, during his pastorate a new church house was erected. He was made priest in 1891 at Jackson, Miss., by Hugh Miller Thompson. He came to Jefferson City May 1, 1896, where he has continued in charge of the Episcopal church since. In June, 1898, with his congregation, undertook the work of raising funds to build a new church, the corner-stone of which was laid September 15, 1898, the present model and beautifully appointed building being completed in February, 1899. Rev. Neide was married May 26, 1889, to Miss Jennie Odell McCormick, of Batesville, Ark. He is highly favored both physically and mentally, has enjoyed unusual educational advantages, and has been an extensive traveler throughout the United States and Canada. He conducts the beautiful and interesting services of the Episcopal church in a manner most pleasing, while his sermons are models of practical thought expressed in choice words forceful and convincing. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. His home, with his cultured wife and two interesting daughters, is at the Rectory, corner of Jackson and Water streets.

GERMAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

When a German Methodist congregation for Jefferson City was first contemplated, the circuit contained many fields of labor. Sebastian Barth, who was sent out by the American Tract Society to look after the spiritual welfare of the Germans in this part of Missouri, first visited the German settlements at Jefferson City, California, Lake Creek, Jamestown, Lexington, Boonville and Pilot Grove. After doing work as colporteur for the society a short time during 1843, he was sent to these places as pastor by the German Methodist church, which had its headquarters at Cincinnati, Ohio. A short time after an assistant was necessary, and H. Nuelson, then only nineteen years old, was engaged. The first administering of the sacrament was at Lake Creek, near Sedalia, in 1844, to which place Rev. L. S. Jacoby (the first missionary of the German M. E. church to Germany), Rev. Barth and Rev. Nuelson had come on horseback from Hermann, Mo., via Jefferson City. Revs. Barth and Nuelson were succeeded by Revs. Eisenmeyer, H. C. Dreyer, Nicholas Reitz, Jacob Haer, John D. Kruse, Adam Klippel, C. Steindl, Peter Hehner, F. Janson, Jacob May, J. M. Dervein, H. Muehlenbruck, J. J. Eichenberger and G. W. Reitz. The service as pastor at that time was limited to two years (a rule since abolished), which made the list of ministers during all these years a long one. As the fields grew they were divided and sub-divided until at present there are ten pastors doing the work of the district that at first required only one. The first preaching, before the societies were organized, was in private homes.

In 1875 Rev. George Reitz succeeded in completing the present brick church building on the corner of Elm street and Broadway. He was followed in his work as pastor in charge by the following ministers in the order named: Revs. Wm. Baltke, Chas. Wehrman, J. G. Hildenstein, C. C. Stahman, J. J. Steininger, Smith, Brinkmeyer, Fred Koenig, Emil Goetz, E. F. Schewe and J. P. Koeller, the present pastor. The congregation has at no time had a large membership. At times, on account of deaths and removals from the city, it almost passed from existence, but through the work of a few faithful members, among them Miss Jane Artz and Father Petry, the congregation continued to live. The organization now has a membership of 34, an active Sunday School of which George F. Lessenhop is Superintendent and a Ladies' Missionary Society, with Mrs. George F. Lessenhop, President; Miss Jane Artz, Vice President; Mrs. Catherine Saar, Secretary, and Mrs. J. P. Koeller, Treasurer. The officers of the church are: John Eberhardt and George F. Lessenhop, trustees; Fred. Weymeyer, William Petry and

George F. Lessenhop, stewards. The regular services are twice a month, at the usual hours, with mid-week prayer meeting on Wednesday evening, and Sunday School every Sabbath at 2 p. m.

In the history of this church organization the first work was done in Jefferson City in 1851, but soon abandoned and not resumed until in 1864, and it was not until ten years later the present church home was erected.

OSAGE BLUFF M. E. CHURCH.

One of the monuments erected in honor of the Master, the result of the work of the German M. E. church organization in Cole county, is a neat frame structure (a view of which is shown on the preceding page), erected in 1899, and dedicated on October 29, of that year, near the place Amplius spueis qamqz Soj pio auj areqia between Osage Bluff and Brazito, Mo., which served the congregation at Osage Bluff many years. The church is now in a prosperous condition, the pastor being Rev. J. P. Koeller of Jefferson City, who is also pastor of the German M. E. church of that place, its previous pastors being those in charge of the German M. E. church of Jefferson City, whose names appear in the article on that church. The present officers of the church are: Wm. Crede and John Engelbrecht, sr., trustees; Louis Bachman and Chr. Engelbrecht, stewards; Julius Engelbrecht is Superintendent of the Sunday School.

REV. J. P. KOELLER.

Rev. John Phillip Koeller, pastor of the German M. E. church, of Jefferson City, was born on a farm near Little Berger, Gasconade county, Mo., November 22, 1869. His father was Julius Koeller, a grandson of one of the few who returned with Napoleon from that terrible expedition to Moscow in 1812, his mother being Rosa Lauer. At the age of ten the father died, the subject of this sketch being the eldest of four children, the duties of the farm fell upon him. He attended the public school until sixteen years of age, when he entered Central Wesleyan College, Warrenton, Mo., continuing three years. Leaving college he taught school three years at Gasconade City and one at Johannesburg, Ill., after which he returned to college at Warrenton, Mo., where he remained one year. During 1894 he was converted, and decided to study theology. One year of teaching at Johannesburg, Ill., was followed by two at Central Wesleyan College as student and teacher, and two Summers at the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago. In 1897 the conference assigned him to his present field of labor, which included the congregations of Jefferson City, Osage Bluff and McGirks. He was married, October 17, 1899, to Miss Helen, daughter of Rev. H. Nuelson, the first minister of the German M. E. church of Jefferson City, occupying the pulpit in 1844. His home is 523 Clarke avenue, Jefferson City, Mo.

BETH EL HEBREW SYNAGOGUE.

The Beth El (House of God) Hebrew congregation of Jefferson City was organized in 1883 by the Ladies' Hebrew Sewing Society, then composed of the following membership: Mesdames Carrie Bodenheimer, Emily Hochstadter, Matilda Wolferman, Hannah Straus, Carrie Vetsburg and Minnie Goldman. The first trustees were: Jonas Hochstadter, President; Louis Wolferman, Vice-President; William Fishel, Secretary and Treasurer; Joseph Straus, Joseph Obermayer, Jacob Goldman, Abe Heim, Max Rauh, Isaac Bodenheimer, Jacob D. Straus. They held services regularly every Friday evening for three years, and on holidays, in their synagogue at 318 Monroe street, which was built the year of organization. The congregation never had the regular spiritual advice of a Rabbi, but services were conducted by laymen at various times. The organization now holds services only on the Hebrew New Year's Day and Day of Atonement. The officers at present are: M. Schiele, President; Abe Heim, Vice-President; C. Czarlinsky, Secretary and Treasurer. Trustees: Isaac Bodenheimer and Jacob Goldman, who are also trustees of Maple Grove Cemetery, east of the city limits, which belongs to the congregation.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST (SCIENTIST).

In 1886, upon the solicitation of several invalids and other interested parties who desired Christian Science treatment, Mrs. T. R. Weeks of Kansas City, Mo., visited Jefferson City, and practiced the Christian Science healing art, continuing here several months and healing several well known and prominent persons who have since taken an active part in Christian Science work. After her departure a number who had been healed began the study of Christian Science, holding neighborhood meetings for that purpose. In the Spring of 1891 a public meeting place was secured in the old Tennessee House where they continued their meetings until they removed to the Odd Fellows' Hall, in the City Hall Building, and from there to the Christian church on Main street. Later the congregation met in the Jewish Synagogue on Monroe street, where they now hold their services. On March 26, 1896, the following persons met at the home of Mrs. Sallie A. Noland: N. T. Richardson, Mrs. M. S. Richardson, Master Elwood Richardson, Mrs. Sallie A. Noland, Mrs. Sarah Winston, Mrs. Kate M. Henry, Chas. B. Maus, H. F. Sarman, W. W. Davis, Mrs. C. E. Davis, Miss Lottie Davis, Mrs. Gilfillan, Chas. Opel and Mrs. Myrtle C. Opel, who agreed that a Church of Christian Science (Scientist) be organized and incorporated under the laws of Missouri, which act was duly consummated on March 30, 1897. Mrs. Mattie S. Richardson, C. S., of Chicago, Ill., was the first President, who was later succeeded by the present President, Mrs. Kate M. Henry of Jefferson City, Mo. Instead of a regular or ordained minister, the Christian Science church has two readers, reading alternately selections from the Bible and correlative passages from "Science and Health," with key to the Scriptures by Mary B. G. Eddy, which comprise the sermons. Silent prayer, followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's prayer, with its spiritual interpretation, with hymns, constitute the services. The present officers of this church are Mrs. Kate M. Henry, President; Stuart C. Davis and Mrs. Myrtle C. Opel, Readers; H. F. Sarman, Clerk; Chas. Opel, Treasurer; Board of Directors, Chas. B. Maus, Mrs. C. E. Davis, Mrs. Myrtle C. Opel, Mrs. Mamie Bartlett, Chas. Bartlett and H. F. Sarman. Capt. C. B. Maus has donated to the organization a lot on the northeast corner of Atchison and Madison streets, on which a church building will be erected in the near future.

MRS. F. P. GRANT, CHURCH WORKER AND WRITER.

Mrs. Frank Palmer (nee Mary Wisdom) Grant is a native of Missouri, her birthplace being the old historical town of Huntsville, the judicial seat of Randolph county. Her father, William Monroe Wisdom, was of one of the most prominent families of the State, a man highly educated, being a graduate of several colleges, and one whose inheritance and association with the refining influences of several generations of highly cultured men and women made of him a most distinguished and cultured gentleman. He was many years of his life a prominent and wealthy banker of Huntsville, whose financial loss was doubtless a circumstance which led his now distinguished and talented daughter, to be a much more useful and valuable member of society than if she had continued in the luxurious home of wealthy and indulgent parents. Her mother was Miss Anna Carpenter Hallack, a grand-daughter of Station George Carpenter of Kentucky, a distinguished and prominent character of the Blue Grass State. The mother of Mrs. Grant (Mrs. Anna Hallack Wisdom, now of Houston, Tex.) is regarded by those who know her and have had the good fortune to associate with and observe her character and life, as one of the most noble of a noble class of Christian women, which now grace the membership of the Christian church, and one whose whole impulse is to do good, more fully described as one of those characters in whose presence one can not think a mean thought or speak an ungenerous word. From such parentage, with the added blessing of being required by what some would call a misfortune

(the loss of wealth) to engage in the practical stern duties of life, it is not strange that she has developed into a broad-minded and useful woman. The early education of Mrs. Grant was in her native town where she attended school, going from the palatial home of her parents. When fourteen years of age, her father having suffered heavy financial losses, she opened a private school in his home for the purpose of securing means to aid in the completion of her education. She was later a student of the High School of St. Louis, after which she attended the famous Christian College at Columbia, Mo. (the "Athens" of the State), where she graduated, the valedictorian of her class, her mother being a graduate of the same institution just a quarter of a century before. She taught English and History in this college for several years, when she resigned to take charge of the Department of English in "Our Daughters'" College of Fulton, Mo. The growing responsibilities of teacher added earnestness to her naturally intense nature, marriage and motherhood deepened and enriched her character, and the sum of these forces can be felt in her work in the Sunday-Schools of the State of which she is one of the most active and effective workers, being at present State Superintendent of Sunday-School Work of the Christian Church of Missouri. After her marriage to Mr. Grant (a prominent and successful business man, and now a Director and Secretary of the Giescke Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Jefferson City, Mo.) she for some years made her home in St. Louis, where she continued until her husband became interested in the above manufacturing business, and in consequence removed to this city. While in St. Louis she was Superintendent of the Sunday-School of the Central Christian church, being the only lady who occupied that important position in that city, she being at the time lecturer of the Sunday-School Union, and did much valuable work among all denominations of St. Louis. Since leaving St. Louis, Mrs. Grant has resigned as Superintendent of the Sunday-School, but her field has broadened. She contributes regularly to Sunday-School publications under the head of "Help for Primary Teachers." Her timely notes and suggestions aid the teachers greatly in their noble work, and give evidence of her close and analytical study of the Book of books. Mrs. Grant has been exceedingly fortunate in her marriage, which occurred at the home of her parents in Huntsville on August 19, 1891, her husband's ideas on social and religious life being in perfect harmony with her own and their domestic relations being ideal. To this union has been born a son, Barton Stone, now a bright boy of seven years, the three making a most charming and interesting family circle. We give a few quotations from the press: The Christian Evangelist, April 26, 1900: "Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant is the foremost primary teacher and writer of the Christian church." Rev. F. G. Tyrrell, pastor of the Central Christian church of St. Louis: "I am glad in the first place to know that Mrs. Grant is a reading, thinking woman, and in the second place that she knows how to give her intellectual store to others." "Our Young Folks" of December, 1899, says: "Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant, who is our primary assistant, has given great satisfaction during the first year of our work. Her primary talks have become famous and words of appreciation have come from various and prominent sources." Nevada Mail: "Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant, though still a young woman, has a national reputation as a writer, orator and lecturer; though logical and instructive, her talks are never tiresome. She cleverly combines humor, pathos and eloquence, and never fails to inspire her audience, and draw out the best in the people." The St. Louis Globe-Democrat in its report of the International Christian Convention at Sedalia: "There were many prominent workers from other states present. The strongest and by far the most interesting address at the convention was that of Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant. She is a natural orator, and easily held the attention of the large and uncomfortably crowded audience." Mexico Ledger of June, 1898: "Mrs. Mary Wisdom Grant is a natural, graceful and easy speaker. In her self-forgetfulness and earnestness she carried her audience to a high pitch of patriotic enthusiasm, her remarks being followed by a deafening applause. During the entire session of the convention her ready wit and prompt and timely response to all questions were much enjoyed." Christian Evangelist of February 8, 1900: "Few women or men are more self-possessed in public speaking than Mrs. Grant, and few are more analytical in their methods. There is nothing slow or dry in her public addresses. Her leading line of work, however, is in the Sunday-School." Mr. W. H. Balthis, editor and publisher of the Huntsville Herald, in speaking of a Christian service in which Mrs. Grant took part on a visit to Huntsville, says: "Mrs. Grant held the close attention of the congregation the entire evening, the packed condition of the church showing the love and esteem in which she is held better than words could express. Huntsville was the scene of her childhood and watched her ripen into young womanhood. Since leaving her native village the years have crowned her with good grace and noble traits of character until she is now one of the leading women of the land in Christian work." W. W. Hopkins, in the Christian Evangelist of June 24, 1897: "The closing scenes of the Bible school work led by Sister F. P. Grant held the well-filled house for three hours on a hot afternoon, her ability to reach, interest and instruct an audience is certainly remarkable. Her ready wit and wisdom kept her audience in a state of joyful expectancy from first to last." The "Outlook" of Cincinnati, O., a prominent publication of the Christian church, in reporting an important meeting at Houston, Tex., April 28, 1900, says: "Mrs. Grant understands how to speak to scholars about their souls, and after a beautiful talk of ten minutes in response to an appeal, seventeen came forward." Mrs. Grant has cast her lot with the Christian church at this place, and both the congregation and Sunday-School have been greatly enriched by her presence and active and effective work. In addition to her intellectual attainments she is a fine musician, playing on both piano and guitar, and has a rich, highly cultured contralto voice, which she freely uses in the song service of the church and Sunday-School. She also has exceptional talent as an artist, which she uses effectively in illustrating her otherwise highly interesting lectures and talks. Her special work in the church has been in enlisting young men and women in making the church attractive and Bible study interesting for them. Like her mother, she is intensely interested in young people, and generally beloved by them. She has a peculiar way of winning their confidence, and has thus helped many a boy and girl out of trouble, and started them on the road to a higher life. She believes religion is helping people, and uses much of her time in a tactful way in securing positions for deserving young men and women. Some of Mrs. Grant's best lectures are along the line of development of spiritual power, she is particularly happy in her talks to children, and never fails to enlist their sympathy and attention, in this department her services are in demand by all denominations. Mrs. Grant, in addition to her bright, highly cultured mind and many accomplishments, is highly favored physically. She has every promise of a useful life, and her sphere of usefulness will not be limited within the scope of any one city, county or state.

OUR EDUCATIONAL INTERESTS.

It is conceded by all who have had the opportunity to investigate the natural resources of the different states of the Union, that Missouri is by far the most favored by nature, while certainly none have been more fortunate in the character, enterprise, intelligence and hospitality of its people. The pioneers of the great commonwealth of Missouri laid broad the foundation for the education of her youth, and as a result she has the largest available school fund of any State in the Union, while none enjoy a more liberal and thorough system of education. The schools of Jefferson City and Cole county are fully abreast with the most progressive and advanced of the State. The Superintendent at present of this, the most important element effecting the material as well as the intellectual progress of the State, is Prof. W. T. Carrington, a brief biographical sketch of whom follows:

PROF. W. T. CARRINGTON.

Prof. William T. Carrington, State Superintendent of Public Schools, was born on a farm in Callaway county, near a town bearing his name, January 23, 1854, where he attended the nearby district school until the age of fifteen, when he entered Sugar Grove Academy, continuing two years. He then attended Westminster College one year, where he was a member of the Sophomore Class, and McGhee College, graduating from the latter in the Commercial Department. He began teaching in the Fall of 1872, near his father's home, after which he entered the Kirksville State Normal, and, after alternately attending school and teaching, graduated from this school in June, 1876, when he engaged in farming and teaching. He was then chosen Principal of the school at Piedmont, later serving in the same capacity at Arrow Rock, Oak Ridge and Cape Girardeau. While at the latter place he served as County Commissioner of Schools. In January, 1883, he was appointed Chief Clerk by State Superintendent of Public Schools Coleman, which position he held four years. During 1883 he founded and published the Missouri School Journal, through which he has urged school libraries, reading circles, teachers' institutes, county supervision, grading country schools and the articulation of High Schools with the Missouri State University. In 1887 he was elected Principal of the Springfield High School, which position he held until his election to his present office, with the exception of two years (1893-94), when he was Superintendent of the Mexico schools. He has been a regular attendant at the annual meetings of the State Teachers' Associations since 1875, and served as its President in 1888. He has been an active member of the N. E. A. for some years, and is at present Missouri's Director of that body. He has spent his Summer for many years in conducting institutes or in attending Summer schools. He was married in 1879 to Miss Mollie Holloway, of Saline county. To this union have been born two children: William J., who is attending the State University, and Paul, aged five years. Prof. Carrington is an active member of the Christian church, and is a member of the Business Board of that church in Jefferson City, a member of the A., F. & A. M., at Springfield, Mo., and of the M. W. A. No man in the State is better qualified for the important position of State Superintendent of Public Schools than Prof. Carrington. He is an active and intelligent worker in his official position, and has included in its scope every measure that tends to harmonize all school interests, and to advance the interests of the rural schools of the State. He is a ceaseless worker, and finds plenty to do in the educational field. His home is 801 East High street.

CITY SCHOOLS OF JEFFERSON CITY.

The public schools of Jefferson City are in keeping with the progressive spirit of the community. The system is that which prevails in cities of this class throughout Missouri. The number of pupils in attendance the past year were 1,100, of which 140 were colored. This does not include about 400 who attend St. Peter's Parochial School; about 300 who attend Lincoln Institute; about 100 who attend the German Lutheran Trinity School, and about the same number attending the German Evangelical Central School, and about 25 who attend the private school of Miss Eppes, which makes the number of school children in attendance in the city something over 2,000, for which 45 teachers are employed. There are eight grades below the High School, all of which are well attended; in fact, the city is in great need of more and modern school buildings, a question which is now being agitated and will doubtless result in the erection of additional buildings in the near future. The High School has a four-years' course, articulating with the State University in several departments; an excellent library and ample apparatus adds to the efficient work being done in the courses, in which there was enrolled about 100 the year just closed. In the graduating class there were six young ladies and two young men who received their diplomas on May 25, at the hands of, and following a most excellent address by State Superintendent of Schools, Prof. W. T. Carrington, the commencement exercises being held on the evening of that day in the Representative Hall of the Capitol building. There are four large

J. W. RICHARDSON, A. M.

Prof. John W. Richardson, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Jefferson City, had the degree of A. M. conferred upon him by the College of Emporia, Emporia, Kansas. Since the completion of his education he has devoted his efforts, with the exception of a few years as publisher and editor of a newspaper, entirely to educational work, in which profession he has been principal of a number of prominent schools and academies of Kansas and Missouri. He served a number of terms as County Superintendent of different counties in the State of Kansas, and was a number of years U. S. Supervisor of Education of the Fourth District, composed of Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory. He was elected to his present office in the Fall of 1899, and has recently been re-elected with an advance of salary to serve a second term. He is a fine specimen of physical and mental manhood, well preserved, vigorous and active. His well-balanced mind is richly stored, not only with much of the accumulated wisdom garnered in books, but has profited by his wide experience and observation in the various relations of life. He has been a constant attendant and promoter of the Teachers' Institutes, of which he was generally conductor, where his receptive mind was quick to catch the best ideas advanced by the many teachers with whom he thus came in contact. His ideals are the highest, yet thoroughly practical, he believes in the importance of a general education, the trend of his mind being to the idea that education should include in its scope physical development and manual training, associated with a technical and broad culture; that the High School should have not only a broad course of study preparing the students for entering the higher colleges and universities, but such as to thoroughly equip them for the practical discharge of the duties of life in all its relations. Prof. Richardson uses every means within his reach to advance the interests in his charge, his timely suggestions (which appear regularly under the head of "School Notes" in the Jefferson City papers) are doing much to enlist the interest of not only the managers of the educational affairs of the city but of the parents and students.

ST. PETER'S PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

St. Peter's Parish was organized in 1846, at which time their first church building was erected. The organization not feeling equal to the task of providing a school building, the late Francis Roer opened his spacious home and invited the little ones of the Parish to come there for instruction, which he cheerfully gave, teaching them to read and write and also giving them religious instruction, which included the catechetical instruction. In 1854, under the administration of Father Blaarer, the first parochial school building was erected east of the little frame church on High street, on the ground now included in the convent garden. It was a one-story brick building, and served as a parochial school until the completion of the second church under Father Walsh in 1857, when the school was removed to the old frame church, the first building erected by Catholics in the city. This building was used for school purposes until 1868, when the convent was built and placed in charge of four sisters of the Notre Dame Order, who had been sent from Milwaukee, Wis.,

at the request of Father Mueller. January 12 the convent school (a three-and-a-half-story brick building, including basement) was blessed by the Rev. Father Mueller, in the presence of the congregation, and on Monday, January 13, Sister M. Clara, the Superioress, opened school with 38 pupils, which during the year increased to 120. Another edifice was built during Father Mueller's administration in 1872, where St. Peter's Parochial School building now stands. It building was completed in 1890, the dedicatory ceremony being performed on Easter Monday (April 7) by Right Rev. Mgr. H. Muehlsiepen, V. G. The length of the building is 109 feet; width, 87 feet, and height, 52 feet. The basement contains six rooms divided by a passage or hallway running the entire length of the edifice. Three of these rooms are used as a meeting place for the Benevolent Society and C. K. of A., two as club room and gymnasium of the Young Men's Sodality, and which contain bil-

was a two-story brick building, the first floor serving as a school for boys, while the second was occupied by the assistant priest. The building was removed to give place to the present splendid structure, a view of which accompanies this article. The building, as is shown, is a handsome two-story brick, with basement, perfectly in keeping with the other magnificent and valuable properties of St. Peter's Parish. The general structure is superior to any parochial school building in the Archdiocese. The liard tables and other appliances for healthful sports and physical development. The central passage is traversed by a bowling alley 68 feet long. The school rooms, six in number, are on the first floor high, spacious and comfortable, sufficiently large to accommodate the ever increasing attendance which is at present something over 400. Five of the rooms are presided over by the School Sisters of Notre Dame, with Sister M. Illydia, Superioress while the boy's High School is conducted by Prof

H. A. Smihausen, the whole, of course, being in charge of the pastor, Father O. J. S. Hoog. The second floor is used as a parochial hall, familiarly known as St. Peter's Hall. The length of the hall is 65 feet; width, 83, and in addition has a stage 60 feet wide and 40 feet deep. The scenery and sundry stage apparatus are complete and equal in taste and arrangement to the best appointed theaters of the country. During the day thirty-four arch windows admit light. The entire building is furnished with gas light, steam heat and water conduits. St. Peter's Parochial School at present is most fortunate in its management, and prosperous both financially and in the number and character of the pupils in attendance. Although beginning at the primary department where the little ones are taken under the loving and tender care of the sisters, who are not only devoted to the work of imparting instruction for the purpose of equipping their pupils for the regular duties of life, but by example and precept, teach them the Christian truths which add to their usefulness and lead them to look higher, this is the only school of the kind in Central Missouri whose graduates are received at the State University of Missouri without re-examination.

GERMAN EVANGELICAL CENTRAL SCHOOL.

The German Evangelical Central church recognizes the necessity of the public schools and fully appreciates their usefulness. At the same time, however, it feels an obligation resting upon itself to offer its members the additional opportunities of having their children instructed in religion and in the German language. For this reason it maintains a parochial school. The sending of their children to this school is not compulsory but optional with the members of the church. The school building, a two-story brick, on South Washington street, was erected in 1871, when a school was organized and continued the following three years, after which there was no school under the Evangelical Central church until 1892, when it was reorganized with 65 pupils, in charge of Prof. Theo. Braun of Evansville, Ind., whose work was successful and whose resignation for the purpose of preparing for the ministry the congregation reluctantly accepted in 1894. The past five years the school has been in charge of Prof. Carl Braun, a most successful teacher, who, in the Summer of 1900 resigned to accept a position in a German Evangelical school of St. Louis. In addition to the teaching of German, work in the English branches is a prominent feature and conforms as much as possible to that of the public schools, the same text books being used. The very successful term just closed was completed under the supervision and charge of Miss Pauline Dallmeyer, a young lady of rare culture, who has just completed a several-years' course in prominent schools of Germany. The school is under the general supervision of the pastor, Rev. Th. L. Mueller, who also assists daily in the work.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN TRINITY SCHOOL.

It is an invariable rule of the Lutheran ministers of the Missouri Synod to establish a school wherever they gather a congregation. They and their people are not enemies of the public schools, but believe a child should be educated in religious principles as well as in secular branches. The Lutheran Trinity congregation of Jefferson City following this idea established a school and called a teacher even before they had a church and minister. The beginning of the school was in 1870, different students teaching. Two years later the congregation called their first minister, Rev. J. Walker, now of Cleveland, Ohio, who began teaching the day after his installment as pastor. After his departure students again instructed until the second minister was called, Rev. H. Wesche, who served other charges in his pastoral work in addition to this one, teaching at the same time. After faithfully serving some seven years he accepted a call to another charge, Rev. H. Kaepfel being his successor, whose father, Mr. John Kaepfel, was a teacher by profession, and had charge of the school, except the English branches, which were taught by the son, now Professor of Concordia College. Mr. Kaepfel continued in charge of this school one year after the departure of his son, when Rev. C. Purzner was called. Under his care the school became so large an assistant was necessary and J. S. L. Deffner was engaged, who continued several years, when he accepted a position to teach in St. Louis. The minister taught for a while, when the congregation called W. C. Poll, a graduate of the Addison (Ill.) Normal. Both minister and teacher were called to other fields, when the present pastor, Rev. Fred. Meyer, was called, who had charge of both school and church one year, when Prof. H. H. Beiderwieden was engaged for the school. The attendance grew so large that an assistant, Miss Minnie Wolfrum, was employed, the number of scholars being 110. During Prof. Beiderwieden's term the school building was remodeled and is now one of the best furnished in the city. At the end of the present school year he resigned, accepting a call to St. Louis. His successor, A. Ameiss, a graduate of Addison Normal School, will have charge the coming year. The school building is a two-story brick structure, corner of Monroe and McCarty streets, open to all pupils. The terms and the English text books are the same as the public school. Besides catechetical instruction, reading, writing and grammar in German, all branches are taught in English.

MISS EPPES' PRIVATE SCHOOL.

In the educational advantages of Jefferson City is included the private school of Miss Julia Eppes. After teaching a number of years in the public schools of the city, Miss Eppes opened a private school at her home, 101 W. McCarty, in 1896. Many pupils whom she taught in the public schools came and finished under her instruction. She has had excellent success, the average enrollment being about twenty-five pupils, coming largely from the prominent families. This is the only private school in the city, the liberal patronage of which is a strong endorsement of Miss Eppes as a teacher of exceptional qualifications, which have enabled her to give universal satisfaction to her patrons.

RALPH MEYERS.

Ralph Meyers, eldest son of William W. and Bertha Meyers, was born October 14, 1881, in Jefferson City, Mo. In the year 1888 he entered the public schools, and gradually worked his way through. For two or three Summers, after the public school closed, he took courses in Summer schools. In 1896, after completing the grammar school, he entered the High School. At the close of the Junior year he secured a position with the Giesecke Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Company, at which he faithfully labored until September 1, 1899. He then went to school again, and entered the Senior Class graduating May 25, 1900, at which time his oration "The Martial Spirit of Man" was one of the best delivered on the occasion. He has always taken a active interest in his school work, especially the literary. It was in his last year of school that the White and Red Rose Societies were organized, he being the first President of the White Rose Society. He was also elected President of the graduating class of 1900.

POULTRY INDUSTRY.

To many, perhaps to most, people the Poultry Industry seems of little importance; but when compared in the aggregate with other industries a most astonishing revelation awaits the investigator.

This unpretentious but ever active industry is so diversified and capable of development under so dissimilar and varying circumstances as to elude and deceive the ordinary observer.

The experts in this industry are not always able to judge the vastness of the supply in the poultry market; a case in point being an attempt by a New York firm a few years ago to corner the goose market, which resulted in literally flooding the city with geese, chief of which were the speculators, for the stronger their attempt to corner the market the greater the supply of geese. No such attempt has since been made.

All poultry breeders and shippers now know that such a thing as cornering the poultry market is an impossibility.

The two main features of the Poultry Industry are fancy or standard-bred birds and commercial poultry, the best, if not the main supply of the latter, comes from the cullings of the former.

There is a mistaken belief that the standard-bred poultry is of utility only to those directly engaged, but all of the best in commercial poultry is directly indebted to standard poultry breeding; besides, all standard-bred birds go the way of the scrub finally; that is, to the table.

Of statistics there is ample to prove that the poultry industry exceeds the cattle, hog and sheep industry of Missouri, is close second to the horse and mule industry, and does not suffer, in comparison, but rather takes proud rank with the railroad earnings of this great commonwealth.

The approximate recorded output of Poultry for the year 1899 in the United States is $300,000,000,

The much discussed money question is silenced in the presence of the poultry output, which exceeds the yearly output of both gold and silver in the United States.

Of no little importance is the fact that Jefferson

City and Cole county is becoming one of the leading poultry points in this, the greatest of poultry states, and there is no reason why she cannot soon attain to the proud distinction of being the very best point. Her natural advantages, sheltered valleys, east and south hillsides, grass and gravel gives her every advantage to become such.

The poultry breeders elsewhere listed in this book are honorable and progressive citizens of Jefferson City and Cole county, and be it said to their credit that their annual poultry exhibits have become important events in this city, and are second to none of the local shows held in the State.

In point of fairness and good will toward competing fanciers from other localities, they stand as models of excellence; this alone will go far toward making Jefferson City one of the leading Poultry centers in the country.

in the production of which the State of Missouri stands first. The recorded shipments furnished by the records in the office of the Labor Commissioner for the year 1899 are: Pounds of poultry, 106,502,679, the value of which is $9,872,921.57; dozens of eggs, 34,267,633, the value of which is $4,112,115.96.

THE BERRY INDUSTRY OF COLE COUNTY.

To be able to say that the berry product of any one county is the recognized and established standard of excellence of the berry market, covering thousands of square miles of berry-producing country, is indeed a proud distinction, and it gives us genuine pleasure to be able to state that the Cole county and Jefferson City strawberries have and hold that distinction in the great Western berry market of Omaha, said to be the largest of its kind in the West. Other varieties of berries find a congenial home here, and are cultivated to perfection in great abundance, but the strawberry is the leading product in small fruits. All strawberries coming to Omaha are quick or slow of sale, as their condition is near to, or far removed from, the standard established by the Cole county and Jefferson City, Mo., product. The perfection of our berries establishes not alone the standard referred to, but affords for tunity for the boys and girls who wish to earn money. Nor is the picking and shipping of the berries all of this very useful industry. The local market is freely supplied with the choicest of the crop, which means that this delicious and most popular of berries can be afforded and used in abundance in the homes of all people.

The berry-raisers and shippers of this community deserve great credit for their untiring efforts to uphold the standard of berry-culture here, and to this is due the fact that Jefferson City and Cole county them a ready sale, and carries with it the highest market price paid, which is an item of no small consequence when we learn the immense amount of berries shipped from this point daily during the season of the month, beginning about May 15, and ending June 15. The appended table of shipments, while representing a goodly sum, does not tell the whole story of this important industry. Berry-picking during the season gives remunerative employment to many persons, and coming as it does at the close of the schools, affords a good oppor-strawberries are what they are, and what they bring in increased wealth to the community. The record shipments of berries from this point average one car-load per day for the season, or about 3,600 gallons each day. The local consumption will run up to 1,000 gallons per day; the average daily income to shippers on this product is $1,000.00; the pickers earn about $200.00 per day; the aggregate value of the crop to the community is therefore about $1,500.00 per day for 30 days, or about $45,000.00.

BIRTHPLACE OF MAJ. W. H. LUSK OF JEFFERSON CITY.

This picture is a photographic representation of the birthplace of W. H. Lusk of this city. The building is located in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, and is still standing. The building was also the birthplace and home of Mr. Lusk's father, William Lusk, who reared his family of eight children, three boys and five girls there, of whom William H., of Jefferson City, is the only surviving member. The house was built by Mr. Lusk's grandfather (also named William Lusk) in the year 1772, and is at this writing 128 years old. But few homes in this great land are so old or have such a remarkable history of family succession.

F. LOEFFLER.

Frank Loeffler, now President and General Manager of the Loeffler-Guenther Shoe Company, of Sedalia, Mo., was born in the City of New York, February 9, 1861, from which place when an infant his parents removed to Rochester. From there, when seven years of age, they removed to Sheboygan, Wis., where the subject of this sketch attended school until sixteen years of age, when he went to Milwaukee for the purpose of learning the business of manufacturing shoes, and was there engaged the following three years in a prominent factory. In 1880 he returned to Sheboygan to accept a position as foreman of a shoe factory at that place, in which position he continued the following eight years, when he was offered a more lucrative position at Milwaukee as foreman of a shoe manufacturing concern of that city, which he accepted. He continued in that position until 1894, when he came to Jefferson City as superintendent of the Standard Shoe Co., in which position he continued until May 1, 1896, when, with others, he organized the H. Bockrath Shoe Co., of which he was made manager, and in which position he continued until May 1, 1900, when he disposed of his interest to engage in manufacturing more largely on his own account. As a result he has organized with others

the Loeffler-Guenther Shoe Company, the office of which are Frank Loeffler, President and General Manager; William Mackey, Vice-President; and Fred. N. Guenther, Secretary and Treasurer. The company has leased on very favorable terms a well adapted building in Sedalia, in which they are placing the most modern machinery now used in the production of artistic and substantial foot wear. They are pushing everything as rapidly as possible, and will open their doors for manufacturing by July, commencing with an output of 300 pairs of shoes daily. Mr. Loeffler was united in marriage to Miss Tena Bacot of Sheboygan, Wis., November 21, 1888. To this union have been born four children: Frank, who has been a pupil of the High School, will soon take a position in his father's factory at Sedalia; the three charming daughters, Elnora, Kate and Edna, complete a charming family circle. At home, with his interesting family, is still at 212 Jefferson street, but will remove about July 1, to Sedalia. Mr. Loeffler is highly favored, physically and mentally, and blessed with a happy, social disposition, which enables him to make friends rapidly wherever located. He has from his early childhood taken a deep interest in the manufacture of shoes, and it was he who demonstrated, in the very great success of the H. Bockrath Shoe Co., that a shoe factory could be successfully operated in Jefferson City outside the walls of the penitentiary. Sedalia is indeed fortunate in securing so thorough a shoe manufacturer, associated with a man of unquestionable business integrity and ability in the establishment of the first shoe manufacturing plant in that city. They may rest assured the business under his skillful direction will be a success far beyond their expectation and of immense value to the material wealth and prosperity of that ambitious and enterprising city.

OUR HELPERS.

We have been signally fortunate in the selection of assistants in the production of the Illustrated Sketch Book and Directory of Jefferson City and Cole county. In every department, necessary to the perfection of the work, we have met with the most courteous treatment, prompt execution and the best service possible to be rendered. We cannot refrain, however, from adding our meed of praise and sincere appreciation to the Tribune Printing Company, who have published and bound this tasteful volume for us. In every particular, it is most artistic; the excellent press-work and correct composition, could not be surpassed by any printing establishment in the United States. We particularly desire to express our thanks to Hugh Stephens, manager of the above firm, for his uniform affability, prompt and energetic management of his extensive office, and for the excellent and artistic taste displayed throughout the volume. We wish also to here extend thanks to J. E. Murphy, foreman in the Composition Department: the evidence of his good taste and painstaking work is shown on almost every page of the book. We also wish to express our appreciation to Thomas Fisher, foreman of the pressroom, for the very excellent press-work done, which gives evidence of his skill, ability and thoroughness in this important department, so necessary in a production of this kind. We can speak with equal candor in commendation of the very excellent, substantial and artistic binding of the volume, which work was in the special charge of F. E. Carter, foreman of the Tribune Printing Company bindery. We wish also to express our appreciation for the very efficient work and close attention of our associates who assisted in the office, and especially to the very thorough work done by S. A. Salisch, whose intelligent and pains-taking interest in the make-up and production of this book has been not only invaluable but indispensable. Our artists, the Kansas City Engraving Company, have the strongest evidence of our appreciation of their very excellent work in the production of the half-tone plates which embellish the book, in our giving to them our exclusive business when other engravers offered to execute our orders for less money.

The accompanying cut shows a front view of the Binder Building, 212 East High street, the property of Mr. Fred. H. Binder, a retired contractor and capitalist, the President of the Jefferson City Water Works Company, the Jefferson City Bridge and Transit Company, and the owner of a large amount of valuable property in the Capital City, included in which is the Music Hall, in which is his private office and that of the Water Works Company. Mr. Binder also owns a handsome park in the western suburbs of the city. Before retiring, he built, under contract, a number of the most modern and imposing public buildings in the State outside of St. Louis, among them the magnificent new structures which took the place of the Missouri State University buildings destroyed by fire. He superintended the erection of the U. S. Government building of this city, which is conceded to be the most perfect piece of architecture in the State. (See sketch, page 328.)

We have spoken on another page of this volume of Mr. Lester S. Parker as a business man, at which time we had no knowledge of his exceptional culture or his talent and genius for the production and rendering of vocal and instrumental music. Since then, however, he has consented to publish a few of his musical compositions before his departure for Europe.

He has had plates made for three pieces, and is having the music printed by the Tribune Printing Company of this city, all of which are now coming from the press. "Rag Time Rastus, the Whistler," is his most novel production, and has met with hearty approval by the public and press; it is decidedly unique in the line of song-writing, and has a whistling chorus. It describes the predicament of "Rastus," a rag-time negro, and is humorous in the extreme.

dicament of "Rastus," a rag-time negro, and is humorous in the extreme.

"The Pickaninny's Lullaby," is considered by many his most choice melody, having in its make-up a definite purpose and being a true and poetical description of darkey life. The coarse element found in most darkey dialect songs is eliminated, and the ludicrous common to darkey character is pictured in a pleasing and vivid manner.

But to many, his most popular song and certainly the most unquestionable hit, full of spice and music, is "People Will Talk," a most happy mixture of fact and wit. The music and chorus are by Mr. Parker, the words being adopted. The following are two of the stanzas:

Someone will surely take notice of that;
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your way,
But don't get excited whatever they say,
For people will talk.

Chorus—

For the people, all the people will watch you with eyes like a hawk,
Never sleeping;
Ever keeping
Their tongue busy wagging with talk, talk, talk."

If you dress in the fashion, don't think to escape,
For they criticise, then, in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or you're tailor's unpaid;
But mind your own business, there's naught to be made,
For people will talk.

Chorus: For the people, etc.
